Mr. Carnera Is Quite Well.
A Better Eye Than Ours.
A Name Worth While.
The Nizam's Gold Hoard.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IT IS good news that Senator Borah has undergone his operation at the Johns Hopkins Hospital successfully. He is a man who thinks for himself and ABOUT the people of Idaho, that sent him to Washington, and others living in the United States.

He is not forever concentrating on the inhabitants of other countries and their wants and wishes. The United States needs men of Mr. Borah's kind.

COLUMNS and pages are devoted to Jack Sharkey, whose real name is something else, present owner of the title "heavyweight prize fight champion of the world," and Carnera, the giant Italian artificially made into a prize fighter because there is "big money" in prize fighting, and little money, two dollars a day at most, in useful work that Carnera knows how to do.

The men are weighed, measured, carefully examined to make sure that they are in condition to be knocked unconscious without being killed.

It is announced that Primo Carnera stands 6 feet 6½ inches tall, weighs 263 pounds, blood pressure "both systolic and diastolic" satisfactory, namely, "120 over 80."

SOME DOCTORS would consider that pressure rather low for such a huge body, but Carnera seems naturally sluggish. His pulse, normally 68, rises to 72 only after exercise.

It has been said that this fight for the heavyweight championship to take place tomorrow is "already in the bag" for Carnera, by which it is meant that the gentlemen managing the fight have thought it desirable to arrange the result in advance.

Damon Runyon, who knows about such matters, denies this. The interesting thing about it is that the fight interests at least 10 times as many Americans as are interested in the extremely important gathering of scientists in Chicago.

DR. VLADMIR K. ZWORYKINS has invented "an artificial eye" expected to make television in the home practical and inexpensive. With its help those radio listeners will actually see those whom they hear, singers, talkers, prize fighters or actors.

The artificial eye, far superior to the human eye, has 3,000,000 photo-electric cells in place of the millions of rods and cones back of the human retina, the photo-electric cells so small they can be seen only under a microscope.

THIS ARTIFICIAL eye records wave lengths invisible to the human eye, at either end of the spectrum, the ultra-violet and infra-red.

The human eye, as is well known, is considered by scientists a most imperfect product of evolution, far inferior to the eyes of many birds.

A great physiologist said:

"If I could not make a better eye than that I would be ashamed of myself."

Dr. Zworykins appears to have made a better one.

ORDINARY "christian" names, Jones, Smith, Robinson, Brown, seem prosaic compared with the more picturesque names of the noble red men, "Sitting Bull," "Rain in the Face," or "Sar-Go-Ye-Wat-Ha," Indian name of the Chief "Red Jacket," meaning "He Keeps Them Awake."

Police of Chester, Pa., discovered that the Siamese have names that make the names of red men seem commonplace. One Siamese musician booked at the police station, gave his name, something spelt with sixty-one letters, meaning "Great Mountain—Wonderful Strength—the Bear of the Lake."

Desk Sergeant John Denmark let the man go because he, Denmark, couldn't write the name or pronounce it.

THE GREATEST individual hoarder of gold in the world is said to be an Indian potentate, the Nizam of Hyderabed, whose ancestors accumulated a fabulous gold treasure, which he has increased.

The British hope that he can be persuaded to deliver that gold to England in return for the extension of his rulership over Behar, which was formerly under his dominion and is craved by him.

If he had his hoard in the United States it would be much simpler. He would be told to bring in the gold and take nice green paper instead, and he would bring it.

THE NEW German government consciously or otherwise imitating recently established authority in Spain, Mexico, Russia and some other countries, appears anxious to demonstrate that religion is a public enemy.

Wholesale arrests of members of the Catholic Bavarian Peoples party are reported with numerous cases of alleged ill treatment of Catholic priests in the Rhineland and the Palatinate. The Protestant German church complains of forceful intervention in its affairs by the Prussian government appointing a "church dictator."

It had been understood hitherto that the only "church dictator" dwells a long way from Prussia.

CHANCELLOR HITLER, apparently, believes that whatever he does becomes right and wise the moment the order is given. Democratic government he pronounces a failure, adding:

"The whole German nation is behind me."

THE FORMER Ambassador to Germany, James W. Gerard, assures the congregation of Temple Emanu-el, a large New

HEAT BREAKS RECORD HERE

No Relief in Sight; Crop Destruction, Death in West

Another scroching heat wave today sent the mercury four-tenths of a degree past the previous record of 90 degrees for this date in Pittsburgh, established in 1885. Weather Observer W. S. Brotzman said there was a prospect the thermometer would reach 94 in spite of a brief cloudy spell that sent it down to 89 at 2 p. m.

The new record high for today was established at 12:40 p. m. and was augmented by high humidity in bringing discomfiture to Pittsburgh.

Predictions of probable showers for the district, coming from Washington two nights in succession, faded today as conditions on which the forecasts were made cleared up during the night, according to Brotzman. Early temperatures today were five to six degrees above those of yesterday when the temperature reached 92 at 4 p. m., equaling the record made in 1901.

The searing heat which baked the Ohio and Central Valleys claimed another victim in Mercer County today when W. J. Daily, 60-year-old health officer, died from a sunstroke suffered Monday while at work.

The Chicago World's Fair was 100 degrees in the shade while temperatures over 100 were reported from many points in the Plains States, resulting in many deaths from drowning and heat prostrations.

Although scattered thundershowers were reported throughout the Middle West, the federal forecaster saw no relief in sight before late tomorrow.

BROADWAY SEES GIRL SHOOT MAN

NEW YORK, June 28.—(AP.)—An attractive young woman fired a bullet into the head of Albert Pearson, 29, near one of the busiest corners in the Broadway theatrical district about dawn today.

Leaving Pearson prone on the sidewalk, she stepped into a taxicab and sped away.

A moment or two later, a young woman entered a police station nearby.

She said:

"I am Marquita Lopez, a night club hostess. I've just shot a man."

She refused to say anything else.

Police, after taking a pistol with one exploded cartridge from her handbag, took her to a hospital where Pearson lay near death.

He refused to identify her as the woman who shot him. He moaned:

"I like her. I like her."

Witnesses told police that Pearson apparently had followed the girl from Broadway into West Forty-eighth street. Suddenly she stopped, opened her handbag, took out the gun and fired.

THIRD OF U. S. VOTES FOR REPEAL

West Va., California Bring Total of States to 16

Associated Press.

One-third of the 48 states have now voted to strike the Eighteenth Amendment from the Constitution.

West Virginia and California made the score 16 to 0 in favor of repeal when their voters returned majorities yesterday for the Twenty-first Amendment, which aims to delete the Eighteenth.

In West Virginia, a border state dry for 20 years, the margin of the repeal victory was about 79,000 with approximately three-quarters of the ballots counted.

California, which had wiped its own prohibition law from the books last year, was giving repeal a lead of about 3 to 1 as tabulations poured in today.

Repealists must win 20 more states to delete prohibition from the Constitution.

The states which have voted to ratify, besides West Virginia and California, are: New York, New Hampshire, Indiana, Connecticut, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Wyoming, New Jersey, Delaware, Nevada, Illinois and Massachusetts.

West Virginia Wet By 100,000 Majority

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 28.—(INS.)—A majority of almost 100,000 was rolled up in favor of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment at yesterday's election in West Virginia, practically complete returns showed today.

The vote from 1,800 of the state's 2,338 precincts was:

For ratification, 210,512.

Against ratification, 131,407.

As a result of the repeal victory, 20 wet delegates will meet in Charleston on July 25 to ratify the Twenty-first amendment and line up West Virginia as the fifteenth state against the Eighteenth Amendment.

All but 15 of the state's 55 counties were marked in the wet column this morning with indications that others will be added to the list as soon as the returns are completed.

Patrick D. Koontz, of Charleston, chairman of the United Repeal Council, said this morning that complete returns will show all but five counties on the wet slate.

Drys Overwhelmed In California Vote

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—(INS.)—California today became the sixteenth consecutive state to vote for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The vote was approximately 3½ to 1, and the majority probably will exceed 600,000.

With 5,669 of 9,347 precincts reported the vote was: For repeal 637,414; against repeal, 208,743.

Los Angeles County, most populous center, voted 247,151 to 82,021 for repeal, with less than two-thirds of the vote counted. The margin for repeal was 15 to 1 in San Francisco.

California also voted 2 to 1 for return of horse racing with parimutuel betting.

STEEL OUTPUT AT 53 PCT.

NEW YORK, June 28.—(INS.)—Steel production has continued its sensational pace of advance with present operations placed at 53 per cent of capacity, a three-point gain over the preceding week, the Iron Age Review points out today. The upward swing of output, which has been uninterrupted since operations reached a low point at 14 per cent in the third week of March, has marked one of the sharpest recoveries in the history of the trade.

The expansion of production has been closely paralleled by a comparable growth of consumption, especially on the part of automobile makers and other industries making consumer goods.

Steel needed for the government's public works program cannot reach mills before autumn, and no material enlargement of railroad purchases is in early prospect.

Increases in steel output in the various producing centers are still impressive. At Chicago operations rose from 50 to 55 per cent, at Pittsburgh from 40 to 45 per cent, in the Cleveland-Lorain area from 67 to 71 per cent, in Eastern Pennsylvania from 26 to 36 per cent, and in the South from 50 to 54 per cent.

Additional blast furnaces have been fired at Chicago, Braddock and Johnstown, Pa., and Birmingham.

Herron Due Back From Fair Saturday

Mayor John S. Herron is expected to return to the city Saturday from Chicago, where he and Mrs. Herron are attending the World's Fair. The Mayor flew to Chicago yesterday afternoon.

PROFIT-TAKING HITS MARKETS

NEW YORK, June 28.—The wild uprush in the grain market came to a halt today, but prices did not collapse. It was a tug-of-war back and forth over a 4 or 5-cent range all day, with bulls and bears alternately in control. Stocks followed a similar course.

Reports of rain over the seriously sun-scorched grain belt brought in some selling, but the big volume of offerings was for profit-taking following the 14-cent rise in two days. Wheat closed off 5 to 6 cents.

The American dollar collapsed abroad, going above $4.41 against the British pound, the lowest for the dollar since England left the gold standard in September, 1931. It looked like France was about to abandon the gold standard or revalue the franc on a lower basis.

The stock market opened strong but wavered under a flood of selling only to come back to a new average high for the recovery under the leadership of Steel common. The big leader made a new round top at 60.

Pinchot to Decide On Extra Session

HARRISBURG, June 28.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today said he may have "something to say" soon about the possibility of an immediate extra session of the Legislature.

Usually well-informed persons at the capitol believed that Pinchot will not call the Legislature until December.

KAHN ESCAPED TAXES 3 YEARS

WASHINGTON, June 28.—(AP.)—Ferdinand Pecora, counsel of the Senate Banking Committee, said today his evidence showed Otto H. Kahn, senior partner of the Kuhn, Loeb & Co., paid no income tax in 1930, 1931 or 1932.

Pecora told newspapermen he also expected to submit evidence that the total income tax payments of the firm's other partners in those years was "negligible."

The disclosures were expected by investigators to give further impetus to the drive for changes in the tax laws.

Evidence recently was received that partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. paid no income taxes in 1931 or 1932 and only $48,000 in 1930.

DEFAULT GUARDED

Benjamin J. Buttenwieser, partner of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., testified his firm had not put into the prospectus on which it sold now—defaulted Chilean bonds to the American public, information that Chile had an unbalanced budget.

Buttenwieser, questioned by Pecora, contended, however, that the budget figures were not as important as Chile's favorable trade

VERONA AND O'MALLEY HELD WITH SENATOR; 50 NOW ACCUSED

State Senator James J. Coyne and eight other Republican leaders, including John J. Verona and Patrick O'Malley, were indicted by the federal grand jury today for conspiracy to violate the election laws.

Conviction on the charges carries a maximum penalty of $5,000, or 10 years' imprisonment, or both.

Conviction also bars the person found guilty of holding federal office or position of public trust with the government.

Verona, boss of the Hill and Third Ward chairman, yesterday sought refuge behind his constitutional rights to avoid testifying before the grand jury. He feared he might incriminate himself, he said.

O'Malley is boss of the "Strip" and Second Ward chairman.

LEADERS NAMED

The others named are:

John A. Fugassi, mercantile appraiser and former head of the county road maintenance department.

Louis J. Conley, assist fire chief and chairman of the Ninth Ward.

Frank O'Holloran, clerk in the Board of Mercantile Appraisers and chairman of the Ninth District, Ninth Ward.

Patrick J. Maloney, member of the State Legislature.

George W. Savage, city assessor.

Martin Mullen, chairman Fourth District, Tenth Ward.

Today's broadside by the grand jury brings the total number of those indicted to 50.

CHEATING CHARGED

All are accused of vote cheating in connection with the Congressional election in the Thirty-second District, which resulted in Michael Muldowney, a Coyne follower, winning over Mrs. Anna E. Felix, the Democratic nominee. She contested the election, charged fraud and the grand jury probe followed.

The indictment sets forth that "the defendants did unlawfully, knowingly and feloniously conspire to oppress the voters" and that they also "caused to be signed and executed certifications and returns of a large number of voters of election districts in the Thirty-second Congressional district in the November election, that they knew were false and untrue."

Coyne was brought into the picture, it is believed, as a result of examination of hotel records on the night of the last November election and several days previously.

ORDERS CHECKED

The Oakland Senator and his "big shot" aides were said to have occupied a suite in the William Penn Hotel whence they directed operations.

The government, it is reported, obtained details of orders to sub-

Find 'Missing' Fliers After Broadcast

There was a great to-do for possibly five minutes today when the police radio broadcast that Pilots Robert Esken and Tony Lavere had been missing for two weeks after hopping from Fayette City for Washington.

A worried brother of Esken had reported the case to Fayette County police. But the fliers were found at Emporium, Pa., where they've been for days.

J. M. Phillips Gets City Planning Job

Allied Powers, Greedy for Spoils, Prolonged World War, Notes Reveal

Germans Asked for Peace Nearly Year Before End

Univers. Service.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—The Central European powers were appealing to the United States for peace nearly a year prior to the World War armistice on November 11, 1918, but were turned down as France and other allies of America fought over the prospective spoils.

This was revealed with publication by the State Department today of secret diplomatic documents dealing with the final dramatic year of the war. For historical purposes, the department each year has been publishing war notes 15 years after the period they covered.

Only a threat by President Wilson to withdraw from the war to end wars, which was to make the world safe for democracy, forced the Allied powers finally to accept his famous 14 peace points and agree to the armistice.

Although State Department officials averred the publication of the notes, revealing allied maneuverings for territorial and other gains at the expense of Germany and the central powers, was a routine matter, the capital read especial significance in their being made public at this particular time.

The question of war debts—loans which America made to its associates with a lavish hand—was immediately revived. Less

FRANCE READY TO CHEAPEN FRANC, MAY GO OFF GOLD

NATION FACING CURRENCY CRISIS

Britain Refuses to Give Support on Stabilization

PARIS, June 28.—(AP.)—Financial experts said today that the battle of the franc is lost and it is only a question of time until France will be obliged to devalorize.

Telephone conversations between Premier Daladier and Finance Minister Bonnet, who is at the London conference, are said to have revealed that hope has been abandoned of Great Britain's stabilizing with Europe.

CHEAPENING OF FRANC

Economic forces either will push France off gold or compel the cheapening of the franc, probably a fourth or a fifth, to meet dollar competition, financial experts said.

A source conversant with the views of the government said:

"It is wiser to act now but the public must be educated."

Nothing except the "miracle" of high dollar stabilization can save the franc, it was said, because diminution of foreign trade will henceforth be accelerated as tax receipts diminish and the budget deficit grows, compelling the government to get money, as the treasury is almost empty.

GOVERNMENT THREAT

If Parliament and the people were awake to the danger devalorization could be effected soon with less suffering, it was said, but the country is so thoroughly imbued with the idea of maintaining gold to make the franc safe that the government would be immediately overthrown if its value were changed now.

Marcel Regnier, reporter for the finance committee, yesterday warned the Senate of the "gravity" of the French financial situation.

Former Premier Joseph Caillaux predicted a "collapse of the public finances" if an additional burden were imposed through a too large aid to agriculture.

U. S. and Britain Seek To Appease France

LONDON, June 28.—(INS.)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Senator Key Pittman, Prime Minister MacDonald, of Great Britain, and J. H. Thomas, British Secretary of State for Dominions, went into conference suddenly late this afternoon.

It was reported they are attempting to find some formula that will appease France and other gold bloc powers demanding a currency stabilization agreement.

ordinates and these were spread before the inquisitors.

Today's indictments are believed virtually to have wound up the Grand Jury's investigation of the Thirty-second Congressional district.

Its next inquiry will center on the Thirtieth Congressional district, North Side. In this district Congressman Edmund F. Eark, Republican, was defeated by Twing Brooks, Democrat.

North Side witnesses, voters and election board members of the district, have been supenaed to appear Friday.

Senator Coyne was attending a State Republican meeting at Selinsgrove, north of Harrisburg, when the indictment against him was handed down today.

The Senator's brother, Thomas Coyne, recently was indicted as one of the "Three Toms" on liquor and gambling charges in the Monaca Club case.

O'Malley was reported in New York for the Sharkey-Carnera fight tonight.

CONLEY 'SURPRISED'

Assistant Fire Chief Conley was surprised over his indictment. He said:

"I didn't expect anything like that."

Conley said he answered fully all questions put to him in the grand jury room and tried to help out in the investigation in every way he could.

Verona was to have had a hearing tomorrow on his refusal to testify before the Grand Jury, but the hearing was called off today by United States Attorney Louis E. Graham as a result of Verona's indictment.

Federal Agents Hunt Capone's Successor

CHICAGO, June 28.—(INS.)—Federal operatives throughout the country today were asked to watch for Murray Humphries, successor to Al Capone as Public Enemy No. 1, who has been indicted by a Federal grand jury for evasion of income taxes.

Humphries' bond was fixed at $35,000 and a bench warrant for his arrest was issued by Judge James H. Wilkerson. When police could not locate the new kingpin racketeer the United States Attorney's office announced that precautions have been taken to prevent him from leaving the country.

HUMES ASSAILS VOTE CHEATS

A political machine never did and never will win an election honestly, Attorney E. Lowry Humes declared in an address at a meeting of the Exchange Club in the Roosevelt Hotel yesterday. He added:

"But I do not say that a political machine never won an election."

Political machines have corrupted and nullified the vote of entire cities and counties, he said in assailing "phantom" votes, coercion of the underworld and terrorism of "unfortunate and dependent groups."

Humes declared it is impossible to get people to go to the polls without an expenditure of $50,000 to $100,000.

PA. SWEAT SHOP QUIZ SCANS PAY

HARRISBURG, June 28.—(AP.)—With the next of its public hearings to be held in Lebanon tomorrow, the joint legislative committee investigating alleged sweatshop conditions in Pennsylvania is studying minimum wage laws of 13 other states to aid it in drafting similar legislation.

Representative Eugene Gorman, of Lehigh, secretary of the committee, said yesterday information has been requested from California, Colorado, Massachusetts, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Oregon, Washington, Ohio, New York, New Jersey, Utah and New Hampshire.

Gorman said Prof. Felix Frankfurter, of the Harvard Law School, also has been consulted in connection with the committee's task.

Hearings remain to be held at Doylestown, Norristown, Johnstown, Pittsburgh and York, in addition to Lebanon, with the concluding session set for July 18 in Harrisburg.

CAPPER CITES RECOVERY FOES

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., June 28.—(AP.)—Senator Arthur Capper told the annual convention of the Advertising Federation of America today that a widespread campaign already is under way to defeat the recovery program of President Roosevelt.

The Kansas Republican said that despite such a campaign "we may be sure that business—big business and little business—will never again be exactly the same as it was in the booming '20's."

Doolittle Predicts Pacific Air Service

EUROPEAN BLOC GIVES MOLEY WARNING

Stabilization Drive Greets Roosevelt 'Messenger'

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

LONDON, June 28.—Arrival in London of Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley, who is considered by some European statesmen as the "real voice" of Washington, was signaled today by a renewed drive to persuade the United States to agree to some form of de facto currency stabilization.

Behind closed doors, the American delegates to the World Economic Conference are being told that unless they agree to hitch the dollar to the pound and franc, the parley will fail and the blame will be placed on the United States.

It is patent the stabilization issue was revived to coincide with Moley's arrival in order to impress upon him, and through him upon President Roosevelt, the European contention that the responsibility rests with America.

Smilingly uncommunicative, Moley conferred for an hour with Secretary of State Hull at Claridge's Hotel, after which the American delegation held a two-hour session.

Moley did not attend this meeting but returned to the American embassy, leaving Hull to communicate to the other delegates the latest tidings from Washington.

Moley made it clear, however, that he is not here to discuss debts, which is a severe disappointment to the British, nor currency stabilization, which is equally disappointing to the French.

balance, which had been ascertained.

He also pointed out his firm had not mentioned the budget later, when it was balanced.

Pecora asked:

"Don't you think the American public was entitled to know what you knew, that the Chilean budget had not been balanced for a number of years?"

Buttenwieser replied:

"No, the trade figures were more important."

Butlenweiser told investigators that originators made a net profit of $247,000 on the sale of $20,000,000 of Chilean bonds in 1925.

The witness said his firm, the Guaranty Company, and Lehman Brothers shared the profit.

Pecort asked:

"That profit was for a risk that was passed on in 24 hours to others?"

The witness replied:

"In this case that is correct, but it is not always the case. Sometimes we have to stand in the breach."

He said the gross profit was $1,000,000.

REVOLT CITED

A memorandum from Kuhn, Loeb files was read by Pecora saying a military council which had seized control of Chile in September, 1924, was overthrown in January, 1925, by another council which arranged for an election the following July of delegates to draw up a new constitution.

Saying the loan was made in June before the election, Pecora asked if there was any way of determining whether the loan would be recognized by the new government.

Buttenwieser said Kuhn, Loeb's Chilean counsel advised the firm that under principles of international law such a loan would be recognized by the subsequent government.

He added the loan was recognized and principal and interest payments were made until the default six years later.

During sharp cross examination of Buttenwieser, the banker said the Mortgage Bank of Chile had been indorsed by the United States Commerce Department in 1925, the year the first bonds were issued.

BANK RECEIVER SCORES U. S.

DETROIT, June 28.—(AP.)—A one-man grand jury that has developed on successive days testimony that Michigan's banking holiday was designed to bring the Ford Motor Company under Wall street dominance, and that it was the fruit of governmental "incompetence," today will hear the version of the receiver for one of the nation's largest financial institutions.

On call as the inquiry resumed today was William F. Connolly, a former judge, a prominent Democrat and now receiver for the Detroit Bankers Group, holding company for the closed First National Bank-Detroit.

Connolly was quoted as saying he shared the views of former Gov. Alex J. Groesbeck, who charged that Detroit's two national banks were closed and kept closed because of the incompetence of federal officials.

Connolly insisted that "something sinister" prevented the reopening of the banks and declared that Michigan's banking problem "could be solved in 24 hours if just one responsible federal official would come out here and decide what should be done."

JURY INDICTS GRAYSON KIN

WASHINGTON, June 28.—(AP.)—John Cooke Grayson, brother of Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, was one of four men indicted today by a District of Columbia grand jury in connection with a shortage in the funds of the Park Savings Bank of Washington, now closed.

A charge against Grayson, former clerk in the chief national bank examiner's office of the Treasury Department, is that he informed the late Robert S. Stuntz, former vice president of the bank, on pending visits to the institution by federal bank examiners.

In return, it was charged that Stuntz accepted overdrafts from Grayson and credited the latter's account with approximately $4,000 he never deposited.

Stuntz killed himself last March. He left a note taking the blame for a shortage in the Park Bank's funds estimated at $1,700,000.

VETS ASSURED 'FAIR DEAL'

CINCINNATI, O., June 28.—(AP.)—America's disabled war veterans were assured today by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines that men of "sympathy and humanness" would be named by President Roosevelt to review their cases.

Hines, federal administrator of veterans' affairs, addressed the convention of the Disabled Veterans of America before going into conference with the rehabilitation division of the organization to hear what the D. A. V. expects the administration to do in the handling of disability claims of veterans.

Sympathy and humaneness, rather technical training would qualify appointees to the reviewing boards, Hines said. He asked the veterans to show patience and fortitude until the new regulations had been worked out and proved.

TAX FEE SPLIT INVESTIGATION ORDERED

School Board Probe Also to Be Made By Legislators

Representative William A. Walker, of Avalon, new member of the legislative committee investigating costs of municipal government in Allegheny County, today had succeeded in putting the committee on record as intending to ascertain whether the collector of delinquent taxes received his appointment with the understanding that he was entitled to only a portion of his fees.

This resolution was adopted at a meeting in Walker's office yesterday, attended by Senator Morris Einstein and Representatives Walker, Joseph A. Rectenwald and Leonard P. Kane. Senator James J. Coyne, the fifth member of the committee, arrived after the motion had been approved. He offered no objection.

ATTACKS AUDIT

Representative Rectenwald, chairman of the committee, was ousted several weeks ago by the County Commissioners from his job as clerk in the transcribing room in the tax office. Rectenwald declared yesterday the commissioners' audit had gone far enough and was a waste of money. He said:

"The auditors get something to report only when their appropriation runs low. It's gone a bit too far now. The Commissioners want to economize. They spend $240,000 for an audit and save by firing an few scrubwomen. If an audit is necessary, the County Controller has auditors who can do the work."

Representative Walker added:

"The Controller never found anything. An audit is all right as long as it does some good. Personally I believe the Commissioners and auditors are playing the old army game. They wait until they need a report and then dig up old stuff which they have known for months."

SCHOOL BOARD TARGET

It was decided to investigate all fee offices in the county and any other city or county office that may appear to need examination as the quiz develops. It was decided that all persons or offices investigated would be allowed to present a defense.

The first subject to be taken up will be the school board, about which much was said at previous committee meetings. It was decided to request the president of the board and the school superintendent and their associates to appear.

Representative Kane declared:

"It looks as though the school board was 'punch drunk' from spending. They waste a lot of money on elaborate buildings. In the grandstand at Arsenal School they used Indiana limestone, which I believe was a waste of money."

RAPS 'GOLD ROOM'

The question of selecting a place to hold open hearings was brought up and Rectenwald said:

"I think we should use the Commissioners' gold room on the days they do not meet. It would give a chance to invite the taxpayers in to see how much money the Commissioners spent on their room."

Senator Einstein then moved that Rectenwald be appointed a representative to ask the Commissioners for use of their room. Kane was also appointed to the committee and the motion was approved.

SESSION NEXT WEEK

The committee decided to have an executive session next week at which time counsel will be named to represent the committee and to interrogate the witnesses.

The resolution presented by Walker to learn whether the delinquent tax collector retained all his compensation read:

"That this committee proceed to investigate the office of Delinquent Tax Collector to determine the amount of fees received, the cost of operating his office and to determine, if possible, whether or not that official is permitted to retain his entire compensation, or whether he is appointed with the distinct understanding that he retain but a portion thereof and surrender the balance directly or indirectly by gift, donation or otherwise for political purposes."

Honolulu Heiress Marries at Reno

RENO, Nev., June 28.—(AP.)—W. J. Shivery, 27, formerly of Wilmington, Del., and Miss May A. Cunha, 22, daughter of the late Albert R. Cunha, Honolulu capitalist, were married here yesterday by District Judge T. F. Moran. Neither had been married before, the license application stated.

Judge Patterson Out Of Primary Race

Judge Frank P. Patterson today definitely removed himself as a possible candidate for the independent mayoralty nomination, but independent forces were certain he would take the helm after the primary in the event they could not agree on other timber.

The judge said, and asserted it was final, that he was not and would not be a candidate.

That removed him definitely as a prospect for the primary race. Judge has said repeatedly that the independents should unite on another, and expressed the hope that they would enter the primary with a strong candidate.

Political followers felt that because of the Judge's deep interest in their cause, however, he would not desert them if they came into the home stretch after the primary without a suitable candidate.

The judge said he could not even be drafted for the race, and that he had conveyed his final refusal to a group of industrial and financial men who were insistent that he run.

Judge Patterson said he was convinced the independents would unite behind a man qualified to carry their banner.

Harriman Trial July 5; Senators Excoriated

NEW YORK, June 28.—(INS.)—A year's delay in the trial of Joseph W. Harriman so that prospective jurors might forget "cruel, unfair and cowardly" statements by United States Senators was vainly sought today by his counsel.

Federal Judge William Bondy refused to grant any delay and definitely fixed July 5 for the trial of the former head of the Harriman National Bank on charges of false entries and defalcations totaling $1,600,000.

Harriman's attorney, George S. Leisure, bitterly denounced the sub-committee of the Senate Judiciary Committee to fix responsibility for delay in the prosecution of Harriman and Albert M. Austin, vice president of the bank.

He particularly attacked questions asked by Senators Neely, of West Virginia, and Ashurst, of Arizona, the former having referred to Harriman as "a bank president who stole more than a million."

Leisure said:

"I wish I had the vocabulary of a longshoreman to say what I think of that statement and its author. But what can you expect from Senators from West Virginia and Arizona? No one expects them to have intelligence."

HOLLYWOOD GEM THIEVES GET $15,000 IN BOLD HOLDUP

MYSTERY NUTS BUCKSHOT, SAY 200 WOMEN

Purveyors Fined as Bulbs Fail to Redeem Legend

More than 200 Pittsburgh women today denounced an ancient Chinese legend to beautiful flowers growing from mysterious nuts; and their verdict was, in effect, "nerts."

And the alleged purveyors of legend and ancient bulbs were held for court on a charge of cheating and defrauding, in addition to being fined $50 or 30 days in jail for violating a city ordinance.

The legend came to light in Magistrate Leo Rothenberg's court at Central Station, when Bernard Wolf, 35, of Portland, Me., and Larry Straut, of Boston, Mass., faced the accusation of the women that their Chinese water roses and sacred horn nut bulbs were nothing more than a lot of buckshot.

The pair was arrested as a result of an investigation by the Better Business Bureau when more than 200 women, according to police, complained that the bulbs they purchased did nothing more than lay on the bottom of their flower bowls.

Mrs. Charles Farrell testified that after waiting a month for the bulbs to bloom she opened one and found it contained buckshot and a foul-smelling chemical.

Several girls, who said they were hired to sell the bulbs, testified they didnt' dare go near their friends now because they had boasted about the beautiful flowers that were certain to sprout from the little bulbs.

City detectives pointed out even if the nuts weren't pretty, they have a pretty legend attached to a certificate guaranteeing they would blossom. It reads:

"A thousand years ago a drought came over Southern China, the crops failed to grow and the people did not have anything to eat, so they went to their sacred cow and prayed for food. She told them that it would rain three days and three nights, that on the fourth morning to go to the rivers and ponds and they would find food. They went and found these nuts, and ate them, and to this day the Chinese do believe in the sacred cow."

BOY VOWS LOVE TO SAVE GIRL

A vow of true love was sworn in Morals Court today by a 19-year-old youth who said he ran away with his 17-year-old sweetheart from Washington, Pa., because he couldn't bear seeing her abused at home.

William Felton, of Manifold, Washington County, and Esther Hutton, 17, of Washington, were arraigned as runaways. They were arrested here last night.

Felton testified he and Esther hitch-hiked to Pittsburgh and decided to visit relative in New Kensington. Asked by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones why they ran away, Felton said:

"I got tired of her old man treating her cruel, so we decided to run away and get married. Just as soon as I get a job and enough money, Esther and I are going to be married."

They were turned over to social workers.

THE ROOSEVELTS—ALL BUT ELLIOTT—TOGETHER ON THE AMBERJACK II IN MAINE

DAVIS CALLS ON ROOSEVELT

LAKEMAN BAY, Roque Island, Me., June 28.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt, held here three days by fog, received from Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador-at-Large in Europe, latest reports on the Geneva Disarmament Conference and the general situation in Europe.

It was the President's first personal contact with the outside world since he sailed the Amberjack II into this port Sunday night.

Davis came here a day late as a result of the fog. A cutter from the destroyer Ellis reached the destroyer Bernadou seven miles out at sea early this morning and brought him to the Amberjack at 11 a. m.

James Roosevelt and Marvin H. McIntyre, a secretary to the President, came back wtih Mr. Davis aboard the Bernadou.

If the fog lets up late today or tonight, President Roosevelt hopes to cruise about Grand Manan Island before pulling into his Campobello destination. The trip to Nova Scotia is out.

Carnegie Steel Head Sees Boom for Mills

Hughes, at Firing of Stack, Forecasts Big Rail Orders

Predicting a big steel rail output, I. Lamont Hughes, president of Carnegie Steel Company, addressed a throng that packed Scott Field, Braddock, last night in celebration of the lighting of a third furnace of the Edgar Thompson Works yesterday.

The magnate declared the railroad's need for rails would boom the steel business, and promised that the Edgar Thomson Works would get its share of the business. He said last year's rail output was the lowest since 1870.

Hughes participated in the parade of hundreds of automobiles that moved through Swissvale, Rankin, East Pittsburgh, Braddock and North Braddock to the field. The parade and demonstration were arranged by civic bodies of the five boroughs in celebration of the lighting of the furnace, which means the employment of another 1,000 jobless.

Frank Slick, superintendent of the steel works, and many officials of the five boroughs completed the speaking program. The demonstration ended with a fireworks display.

Burgess James Rose, of Braddock, whose father was one of the first employes hired at the plant, threw the switch lighting the furnace yesterday afternoon as thousands looked on.

Of the 10 furnaces blown in recently by the Carnegie Steel Company, three of them have been at the Edgar Thomson Works.

ANDRE MAUROIS VISITOR HERE

Andre Maurois, celebrated French biographer and novelist, visited Carnegie Institute today as the guest of its president, Samuel Harden Church.

Maurois, having written lives of Disraeli, Byron and Shelley, now is working on "King Edward VII and His Times." This book he hopes to publish in the fall.

Maurois thinks better times are at hand, saying:

"There is no doubt that the depression is ending. With such a leader as United States has and the co-operation that the nation is giving him, it is bound to end."

DOUG DOCTORS BAR JOAN VISIT

NEW YORK, June 28.—(AP.)—Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., suffering from lobar pneumonia, was reported "about the same" last night.

Although he passed a fairly comfortable day, he was said by his stepfather, Jack Whiting, to be too ill to receive any visitors except his mother.

The young actor regards the offer of his former wife, Joan Crawford, to come to his bedside as "very sweet," Whiting said, but feels it would be a useless gesture since his physicians would not permit her to see him.

15 RUSS PLANES HOP IN SEARCH FOR MATTERN

Vanished Texas Flier Alive, Marooned in Wilds, Reds Believe

By LINTON WELLS
International News Service.

MOSCOW, June 28.—In the belief he may be safe in some isolated Siberian spot, the Soviet government today ordered an intensive search made for James Mattern, Texas aviator long missing on his attempted flight around the world.

Fifteen planes, manned by experienced pilots and stationed in the far eastern districts, were ordered aloft to scrutinize miles of barren territory in the hope of finding Mattern.

Soviet experts, it was learned by International News Service, believe it possible Mattern was forced down in some remote section and may still be alive, either subsisting on the rations he carried aboard his plane, Century of Progress, or safe in the care of some group of Siberian inhabitants out of touch with civilization.

The 15 planes recruited for the search will first make a survey of the territory surrounding the Gulf of Anadir, St. Lawrence Island and the Behring Straits.

At present, a search south of this area is not considered necessary, as in the Soviet view all signs point to a forced landing along the northern route Mattern planned to follow from Khabarovsk to Nome, Alaska.

If Mattern had taken the southern route, it was pointed out, he would have flown over fairly well populated spots.

The shorter northern route, however, would have taken Mattern over vast stretches of unpopulated territory. No word of his progress was received after he left Khabarovsk, determined to become the first man to fly around the world alone although his hopes of setting a new speed record had been hopelessly blasted.

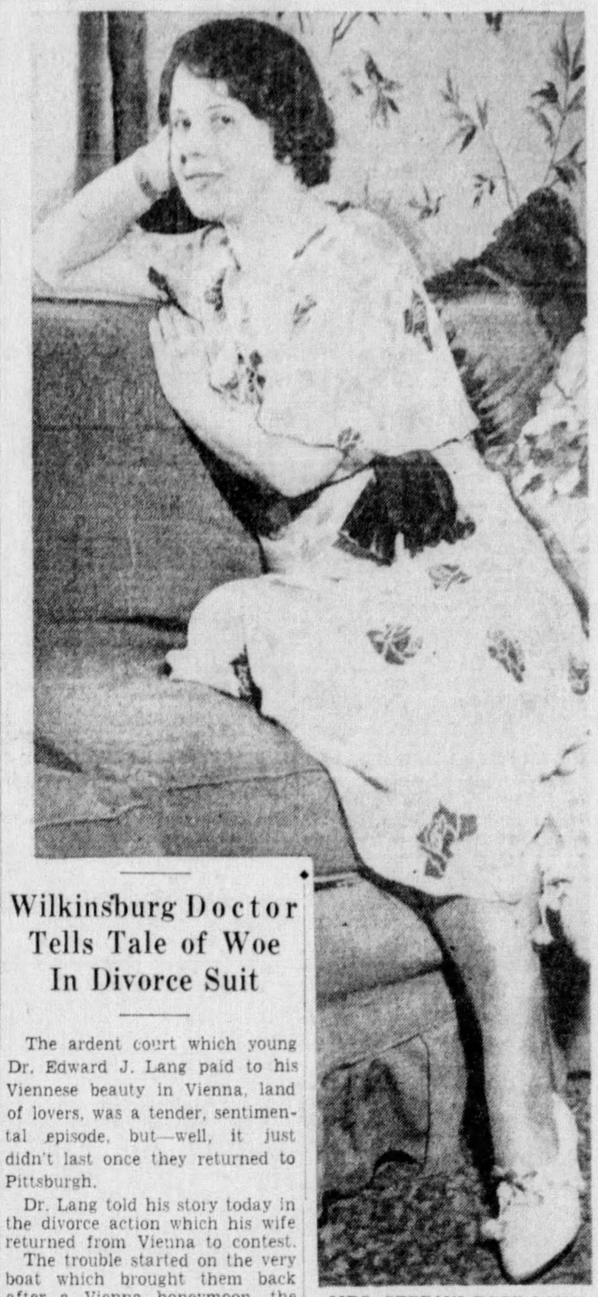
Says Viennese Beauty Battled on Honeymoon



MRS. STEFANI ROSE LANG

Wilkinsburg Doctor Tells Tale of Woe In Divorce Suit

The ardent court which young Dr. Edward J. Lang paid to his Viennese beauty in Vienna, land of lovers, was a tender, sentimental episode, but—well, it just didn't last once they returned to Pittsburgh.

Dr. Lang told his story today in the divorce action which his wife returned from Vienna to contest.

The trouble started on the very boat which brought them back after a Vienna honeymoon, the Wilkinsburg physician testified. He said even then his wife accused him of having affairs with other women aboard ship.

The Viennese beauty denied the general charges. Not only that, she counter-charged that her husband once slapped her for refusing to return 15 cents in change and that he paid more attention to his mother than to her.

In Pittsburgh, with a depression on, they moved in with Dr. Lang's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lang, but:

"She told me my people were common and my mother was an old witch. I had to agree with her in everything to have peace."

His wife "nagged" him because he didn't provide their own home, she complained about the women patients and one night in a drugstore, before an audience, she knocked his glasses off with a slap in the face, Dr. Lang complained.

But after he had quit the witness chair Judge Thomas M. Marshall indicated that his legal sympathies were with the wife, who contends that her husband shipped her back to Vienna simply to obtain a quiet divorce.

Judge Marshall, after reading six letters young Lang wrote to his wife, in which he failed to mention the divorce action, announced:

"It is going to take some convincing that she left other than under favorable circumstances. In these letters he tells her how much he loves her and misses her on Sunday afternoons."

Dr. Lang testified that fellow-physicians joked him about black-and-blue marks on his arms—marks which he said were due to his wife's punching him in bed.

He denied stirring jealousy in his wife by telling her he loved a Miss Walsh. Once, he asserted, his wife "raved" because she found a nurse swabbing his throat when he had tonsilitis. And he added:

"She repeatedly threatened to shoot me but I paid no attention for a barking dog never bites."

Another Lang witness, Miss Bernadine Walsh, a nurse, testified that Mrs. Lang cursed her for swabbing the doctor's throat and scratched the doctor's face.

But Mrs. Lang denied the "nagging," denied accusing him of affairs with other women and, in broken English declared:

"I could not do such a thing because I love my husband too much."

The handsome Viennese, who was Stefani Rose, sat in court listening to her husband's complaints.

They were married in Vienna in September, 1931, while the doctor was studying there. Last month she received an alimony order of $25 monthly.

AIMEE'S SPOUSE TO SHUN RENO

LOS ANGELES, June 28.—(AP.)—Returning to Angelus Temple after an absence of several days, David Hutton was non-commital yesterday concerning divorce rumors about him and Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton, evangelist, now in Paris. Hutton said:

"I've learned a lot in the last couple of weeks and as a result I'm not going to either deny or affirm anything.

"Probably, if I got a divorce, I wouldn't go as far as Nevada. I might stay right here. But mind you, I'm not talking about anything."

The rumors had speculated upon the possibility that a divorce might be sought in Reno.

Physician Snores, Telephone Girl Scents Mystery

FERNDALE, MICH., June 28.—(AP.)—It was just like a mystery story, those weird sounds that came over the wire to the telephone company switchboard during the early morning hours, and the operator knew just what to do.

She notified police that someone apparently was in distress at the address indicated and the homicide squad made a flying call.

But at the other end of the line they found that Dr. W. G. Beattie had overturned a bedside telephone in his sleep and was snoring contentedly into the transmitter.

YEAR'S LOSSES $125,000 IN COLONY

Butterworth Latest Victim of Mysterious 'Gentlemen' Crooks

By WALLACE X. RAWLES
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, June 28.—A mystery as engrossing as any portrayed on the screen emerged today in Hollywood.

Attention was focused anew on a supposed highly organized gang of "Hollywood Jewel Thieves" as the result of the spectacular daylight robbery of the home of Charles Butterworth, famous comedian of the stage, screen, and radio.

TOTAL NOW $125,000

The bandits made away with $15,000 in gems and Butterworth's car. This brings the total value of jewels stolen from film celebrities since January 1 to more than $125,000.

The two bandits, who forced their way into Butterworth's home past his maid and butler, were described as well-dressed and polite.

Police believed the men were members of the same "mob" that attempted to hold up a film party last week, attended by Clara Bow, as well as having held up a number of famous film gatherings.

The mystery of the Hollywood robberies, in some cases accompanied by the binding and gagging of victims, has never been solved despite the best efforts of Hollywood police and private investigators.

OTHER VICTIMS

Other victims and amounts of their losses as reported to police since the first of the year were:

Betty Compson, $41,000.
Aileen Pringle, $1,000.
Samuel Briskin, $24,200.
Harry Warner, $15,000.
Zeppo Marx, $30,000.

Some of the gems were recovered upon payment by insurance companies of 20 per cent of their value.

Last autumn, Mae West, famous New York stage star, now in the fore rank of screen luminaries, was victimized to the extent of $25,000.

GERMAN BEER BEATS FOG

NEW YORK, June 28.—(INS.)—The North German Lloyd liner Columbus foamed into port today with 13,803 beer barrels tucked away in her hold just before a blinding fog settled down over the harbor for the third successive day and retarded shipping.

Ferries were delayed from three to five minutes and coastwise traffic was held up slightly. The White Star liner Majestic and the Hamburg-American liner St. Louis, due today, were also behind schedule.

So swift was the Columbus' race through the harbor that she was tied up at her dock at the foot of Fifty-eighth street, Brooklyn, before customs and health officials caught up with her. Capt. A. Ahrens, her master, ended a 30-hour stretch of duty on the bridge.

BOMB SUSPECT ARRESTED

Suspected in connection with bombing of the Ban Box cabaret in East Liberty, John Aliberti, 35, of 806 North Highland avenue, arrested early today at Penn and Highland avenues, is being held for further investigation.

City detectives have been looking for Aliberti since the bombing, they said. Today they found him after they had shadowed another suspect, Joseph Rose, 30, of 1847 Funston street, who was released on bail yesterday.

Baltimore Kidnap Victim Released

Ralph Hyman, 32, of Baltimore, who said he was kidnaped and thrown from an automobile near Moon Run, was released from jail today. He trudged off wearing a new pair of shoes bought for him by Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren.

Detectives said they doubt his kidnap story but he stuck to it. He had no shoes when found yesterday.

Chauffeur Faces Court In Maid's Slaying

John Davis, 62, Negro chauffeur for an East End physician, was held for court charged with murder today in the mysterious slaying of Hilda Lindberg, 42-year-old maid.

Before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court, Frank Ferris, lieutenant of homicide detectives, offered in evidence a note found in the woman's coat when her body was discovered in Supreme way the night of April 1. It read:

"If anything happens to me, I am going to meet J. D."

Ferris testified Davis had promised to obtain a good position for Miss Lindberg and failed to do so. Ferris later said he believed the woman had given Davis money for investment.

Davis, represented by Attorney Harry W. McIntosh, did not testify.

Meanwhile detectives were perusing the memoirs of Hilda to learn if it would throw light on her murder.

In her autobiography she told of love affairs with two young men of prominent families—romances which, she wrote, were shattered because their parents objected to her lack of education. She wrote:

"Fate has deemed it that I was to be unhappy."

The memoirs reveal her intention to invest in stocks and bonds so that she might be in a position to improve her education.

LABOR DEMANDS COTTON MILLS PAY $14

WASHINGTON, June 28.—(AP.)—Organized labor, having already tasted victory on important points of the competition code formulated by the cotton textile industry, concentrated today on demand for a $14 weekly minimum wage.

The case reached the open with Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America, making the recommendation at the second day of hearings under the industrial control act at the Commerce Department.

Addressing Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the law, and now and again turning to the plentiful audience, the labor executive also advocated that hours of labor in the industry be restricted to 35 and that there be no differential in the minimum wage accorded for Northern and Southern mills.

The code as drafted provides for minimum wages of $11 a week for Northern mills, $10 a week for Southern mills, and a 40-hour week, with machinery operation restricted to two shifts daily.

McMahon was the first labor representative to appear, but labor interests already had gained two important points.

Yesterday the "stretch-out system" was injected into the discussion and Johnson named a committee to study the advisability of banning practice, and today T. M. Marchant, president of the American Association of Cotton Manufacturers, announced for the industry that it was willing to have elimination of child labor included in the code.

Under the "stretch out system," one worker may be required to attend a larger number of machines than labor thinks desirable.

NORTHERN COAL OPERATORS UNITED

Full co-operation between coal producers of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Northern West Virginia in completing a code to be submitted to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the Industrial Recovery Act, is believed assured.

Following an all-day conference yesterday between officials of the newly formed Coal Control Association of Western Pennsylvania and representatives of associations of other northern districts, J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company and chairman of the association, declared that a satisfactory working arrangement was being developed by which the producers could present a united front in the negotiations with Gen. Johnson and his aides.

Assurance that local strife between operators has been eliminated was given late yesterday when the Coal Producers' Association of Western Pennsylvania announced that resolutions had been adopted empowering the executive committee to comply with the government's request for concerted action by joining as an association, the Coal Control Association of Western Pennsylvania, as well as Central Coal Associates, an organization of national scope.

This action effectively unites all the associations of operators in the Northern fields and is expected to make it possible for producers paying higher wage scales to present their case against the low wage-paying Southern operators in an effective manner.

Potters Launch Battle To Curb Foreign Rivals

Code Adopted Here, Manufacturers Seek Tariff Safeguard

A code of fair competition having been adopted by the pottery industry, plans today were being made by the United States Pottery Association to appeal to President Roosevelt for protection of the American market from imports.

The code, adopted at yesterday's meeting of the association, which represents 75 per cent of the manufacturers of dinnerwares, earthenware and semi-vitrified and vitrified china, was concurred in by the American Vitrified China Association. This group today was meeting in the William Penn Hotel to discuss the code and problems that will directly affect its manufacturing and sales problems.

Failing to obtain relief from the Tariff Commission upon several appeals to protect the American market, 50 per cent of which has been won by low-waged foreign manufacturers, the industry will forward an appeal for tariff protection to the President, as provided by the Recovery Act legislation. This appeal will follow the filing of the code with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, according to J. M. Wells, of Newell, W. Va., chairman of the code committee.

While the code stipulates the minimum wage scale for unskilled labor at 25 cents an hour for women and 30 cents for men, President W. Edwin Wells, of the association, cited this type of worker represents about 10 per cent of those employed in the industry. Skilled labor at considerably higher rates predominates in the industry, he declared. Few plants will find it necessary to raise wages of unskilled help as stipulated in the code, he added, since most operators already pay this scale, or higher.

The maximum working week has been set at 40 hours. Marcus Aaron, of Pittsburgh, president of the Homer Laughlin China Company, of Newell, W. Va., insisted upon the code specifying that skilled labor predominated in the industry.

P. R. R. TO SPEED REPAIR WORK

PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Railroad has announced that "in view of increased traffic, and to meet present and prospective needs of the service," the railroad will place in effect during July an augmented program of maintenance and repairs of both track and equipment. The company said:

"This will result in giving additional work during the month to a number of men on part time, and also will increase employment in the supply industries from which the railroad obtains its materials."

The announcement added:

"In the case of maintenance of way, the chief additional activities will be concentrated on ballast cleaning, improving the surface of the track, and increased renewals of rails and ties. The maintenance of equipment department activities will principally be increased repairs to locomotives and cars, and the installation of air-conditioning apparatus in passenger cars."

Leather Workers On Surprise Strike

PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—(AP.)—Several hundred employes of 14 leather goods factories are on strike against what labor leaders termed "inhumanly long hours and low wages."

The workers walked out yesterday, and Jacob Antinoph, president of the Philadelphia Leather Goods Company, said the action took manufacturers by surprise.

BUSY STUDENT WINS HONORS

LAWRENCE, Kan.—(INS.)—Besides keeping his scholastic standing high enough to earn one of six scholarships awarded in the United States annually by Tau Beta Pi fraternity, Charles E. Manning, Roxbury, Kan., a senior in the school of engineering, holds a record here for extra-curricular activities.

He has, during the 1932-33 school year, held the offices of president of the men's senior honorary society; secretary of the men's student council; president of the school of engineering; president of the school of engineering council, and business manager of the school of engineering publication.

These activities were preceded by a place on the men's student council as a representative of the school of engineering, a sophomore class dance managership and membership in the men's junior honorary society.

His Tau Beta Pi scholarship will allow him to study engineering for one year at the University of Illinois.

U. S. to Consolidate Job Agencies Here

Single Director Will Supervise Placing Of Thousands

All Pittsburgh employment agencies will be united under a single director to provide thousands of jobs both in private industry and on public works projects under tentative plans announced here today by A. M. Motley, federal director of employment for Pennsylvania.

Following conferences with Maj. H. F. Bucher, head of the State Federal Employment Office here, Motley announced he would present the plan at Washington Saturday. It provides for the expansion of the local headquarters under provision of the Wagner bill setting up $1,500,000 for employment organizations to care for the federal public works plans.

Examiners and assistants would be created for five groups—trades, institutional and domestic, factory, clerical and professional. Under the tentative plan, the present federal junior employment office in the Fulton Building would be merged with the new unit, and efforts are being made to bring all relief group employment agencies into the arrangement, it was reported.

To care for workers whose jobs have disappeared in the industrial evolution, an occupational guidance division will be organized if present plans carry. This unit would co-operate with the University of Pittsburgh, according to Maj. Bucher.

The new employment set-up has so far advanced that the men for executive positions already have been tentatively named, Bucher said.

As the proposed plan was announced, an army of 2,000 shopmen and mechanics marched back to work in the Pennsylvania Railroad shops at Altoona, Pa., to put additional rolling stock into use.

Two hundred men will return to work at the New Castle works of the Lehigh Portland Cement Company July 10, according to W. H. Klecknew, superintendent.

A 10 per cent wage increase at Kinloch mine of the Valley Camp Coal Company today will affect 200 miners.

Fifty-two families have been withdrawn from relief rolls in Monongahela, Pa., as a result of increased employment. Another 100 men are expected to be taken from the rolls in a few days.

LANG TO OFFER WORK PROGRAM

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang has asked Gov. Gifford Pinchot for an appointment next week to go over Pittsburgh's proposed public works program totaling about $15,000,000.

The request was in answer to the Governor's letter to Mayor John S. Herron asking for a list of municipal projects intended to be furnished by federal funds.

Councilman George S. Oliver and City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt probably will accompany Lang to Harrisburg.

Gen. Lindsay, War Hero, Found Dead

TORONTO, June 28.—(AP.)—Maj. Gen. W. B. Lindsay, who commanded the Royal Canadian Engineers at the Battle of Vimy Ridge in the World War, was found dead yesterday at the Toronto Hunt Club, apparently a victim of heart disease.

Gen. Lindsay was said to have taken part in every main battle fought by Canadian troops in France from 1916 to the end of the war.

SEEK KIDNAPING RANSOM CASH

DENVER.—(INS.)—South Dakotans, believing that if there isn't gold, there at least ought to be a large sum of currency hidden somewhere in the rolling prairies near Mitchell, S. D., are digging up the ground in the vicinity of the Verne Sankey "turkey" ranch, according to federal officers.

The "gold rush" started after Arthur Youngberg, member of the kidnaping gang which held Charles Boettcher II, young Denver broker, captive while they extorted $60,000 from Claude K. Boettcher, his father, revealed the hiding place of $9,300 of the ransom money, buried near the ranchhouse.

New York Third In Young People

NEW YORK.—(INS.)—New York is third among the great cities of the world in the number of young people in its population. Rome and Tokio lead. Life insurance statistics show that 67.07 per cent of Tokio's population is under 30. New York's percentage is 53.02 and Rome's 56.84. In the entire United States, those under 30 make up 55.70 per cent of the population.

YOUNG DOCTORS FAVOR STUDY

Further study and further specialization are among the goals set for themselves by a majority of 2,000 young medical practitioners who will have completed their year of internship in some Pennsylvania hospital by June 30.

Full-fledged doctors now, the end of the internship marks for them the climax of seven years' preparation in college and medical school.

Their education completed, in many cases with the aid of borrowed funds, they enter on their profession at a time when it is more harassed than ever by economics, according to the Hospital Association of Pennsylvania.

A hospital residency is seen by many as the ideal temporary solution to earning and learning, according to the Hospital Association. Because it might possibly bar them from keeping up with latest developments, the "country doctor" idea does not find favor with the majority.

U. S. PAIR WINS BRIDGE TITLE

NEW YORK, June 28.—(AP.)—Mrs. J. H. Slager and Fred Levy, of Montgomery, Ala., are world bridge Olympic champions. The National Bridge Association announced today that they had the best score of North-South pairs in a world-wide contest May 1, in which more than 100,000 persons participated.

Leo D. Craine and J. Frederic Benedict, of Sherburne, N. Y., were tied with Otto Krefting and Isak Neilsen, of Olso, Norway, for the international championship of East-West pairs.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Matt Johnson, of Cottonwood, Idaho, won the United States North-South championship. The East-West title went to William Savery, Jr., and Stanley Jaloff, of Seattle.

State winners for Pennsylvania were William S. Frye and Charles F. Wagner, Susquehanna, North-South, and Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Harmon, Corry, East-West.

J. G. TIM DIES IN EAST END

John G. Tim, 76, son of the founder of the well-known whip, cane and umbrella business, died today in his home at 6200 Jackson street.

His father, John W. Tim, started his business in Wood street in 1848. Later, his sons, the late A. G. Tim and John G., ran the establishment, continuing under the Tim name until 1912.

Tim leaves his wife and two daughters, Miss Elizabeth Tim and Mrs. Wallace R. McCarty, of Cleveland.

Funeral services will be held from his home Friday afternoon.

ADMITS THEFTS IN HOSPITAL

Several recent thefts from rooms of Mercy Hospital internes at 61 Pride street, were alleged by police to have been solved today when John Mulholland, 18, of 1618 Fifth avenue, was held for court on a larceny charge by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones.

The youth was arrested yesterday in the room of Dr. M. E. Farrell after he was caught taking an armful of clothing, the doctor testified.

Mulholland admitted ransacking the house four different times and stealing a $50 watch, belonging to Dr. G. L. Beaumont. The watch was recovered in his room, according to police.

RATION MARKET IN BALANCE

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 28.—(INS.)—Continuance of the state's balanced ration market, the model used by Gov. Giffort Pinchot in introducing the commissary system of relief to Pennsylvania, hung in the balance here today.

Abolition of the local commissary topped the list of 14 demands presented to county relief authorities by the Lycoming County Workers' Federation, a recently-formed organization, which gave the relief agency 48 hours to reply.

The members warned:

"If no answer is forthcoming by that time we will accept it as negative and proceed to act."

The unemployed did not indicate what action they would take. It appeared unlikely today that the relief committee would take any official notice of the demands until the weekly meeting next Monday.

BLIMP TO JOIN BOG MANHUNT

LAKEHURST, N. J., June 28.—(INS.)—The Navy Blimp, ZNC-2, an all metal ship, was held in readiness to take off today if weather conditions permit to join in the search for Charles L. Carslake, missing Columbus, N. J., justice of the peace.

Almost 20 men were scouring the cranberry bogs near Goose Pond, Chatsworth, for the former Burlington County undersheriff and prohibition agent who disappeared last Thursday.

Plane pilots were ordered to keep watch for Carslake as ground searchers trailed his footprints from the place where his abandoned car and empty pistol holster were found.

Two-Hour Day Assured, Says Technocrat

CHICAGO, June 28.—(INS.)—That a two-hour work day is inevitable in America, was the assertion today of Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde, daughter of the wartime Premier of Canada, in addressing the opening session of technologists here.

Mrs. Lunde added that a two-hour work day is sufficient to produce the necessities of the community.

Howard Scott, member of Technocracy, Inc., which called the convention, said that it is the job of technocrats to run the country. Scott declared:

"We want men of action, and when I say men I mean males and females. Our fight is to abolish the price system. Bayonets will line up those who willfully refuse to join the movement."

GERMANY GOES INTO MOURNING OVER TREATY

BERLIN, June 28.—(AP.)—All Germany went into mourning today in protest against the treaty of Versailles, signed 14 years ago by representatives of the Allied powers and Germany.

The new regime of Chancellor Hitler, which moved closer to complete domination of the national scene with the dissolution of the Nationalist party and its affiliates, is responsible for the first observance of the anniversary.

Flags were flown at half staff from churches, public buildings and homes. Demonstrations were planned all over the country and the Berlin Protestant Cathedral announced a special prayer service on the theme, "God Liberate Us."

PRESS ASSAILS PACT

All newspapers devoted editorials to the pact, which provided for changes in Germany's boundaries on the south, north and east; for the ceding of all Germany's oversea colonies to the principal Allied powers, and for the limiting of Germany's military, naval and air forces, among other matters.

Chancellor Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter asserted:

"We now realize that we were misguided through President Wilson's fourteen points, extended to Germany as a bait for accepting the terms of this devastating truce."

PARTY DISSOLVED

While the protests held the center of the stage today, developments in the political and church fields aroused great interest. Among them were:

Dissolution of the national front of the Nationalists and affiliated organizations, leaving the Catholic Center party the only political group outside the Nazi fold.

Confirmation of reports that Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, Nationalist leader and minister of agriculture and economics in the Hitler cabinet, had submitted his resignation.

The declaration by Capt. Hermann Goehring, Prussian Premier and Hitler leader, that the Landeskirchen, representing all 29 Protestant church groups, had no right to elect Dr. Friedrich Von Bodelschwingh as reichsbishop without his approval.

Nazi German Christians, meanwhile, laid plans for bringing about a "re-birth" of the church and for accepting the challenge of conservative Protestantism headed by Dr. Von Bodelschwingh, with whose appointment the Nazis are dissatisfied.

BIRTH CONTROL HIT BY NAZI

BERLIN, June 28.—(AP.)—Minister of Interior Wilhelm Frick, addressing the first session of the Experts Council for Race Policy today, urged German women to bring forth strong, healthy children and promised the government's aid along the lines of better salaries and lower taxes for heads of families of numerous children. The Nazi minister said:

"Exaggerated scientific education of women is as harmful to the founding of families of numerous children as exaggerated participation in sports."

He presented a gloomy picture of German offspring. Not only had the German people adopted a one-child system, he said, but "20 per cent of the German population, according to some authors, are inferior from a hereditary biological standpoint."

NAZI LEADERS AT VATICAN

ROME, June 28.—(AP.)—Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen of Germany and the German ambassador to Rome, Ulrich von Hassel, arrived today and were welcomed by the ambassador to the Holy See and other authorities.

Vatican prelates said Von Papen's visit is in connection with the Nazi hope of negotiating a new concordat for the whole Reich, combining, and possibly extending, the existing concordates with Prussia, Bavaria and Baden.

It was believed the projected agreement may be based on the abandonment by the church of political and semi-political organizations such as the Catholic Labor and Apprentice Associations in return for a Nazi agreement clearly recognizing the Catholic Action movement in Germany.

RHEINGOENNHEIM, Germany, June 28.—(AP.)—The Rev. Father Garoli, a Catholic priest, was beaten so severely by three unidentified men last night he was taken a a hospital.

At a nearby village, windows in a Catholic parish house were smashed and the priest was harassed after vain attempts had been made to break into the homes of Catholic parishioners. In both instances Nazis blamed provocators.

Bomb Rips Up Track Of Vienna Railway

VIENNA, June 28.—(AP.)—A bomb exploded today on the Vienna-Baden suburban electric railway tearing up a stretch of track.

An unexploded bomb was found on the city railway.

(A series of bombings beginning two weeks ago was attributed by officials to Austrian Nazis, who subsequently were outlawed by governmental decree. Nazi leaders said they took the edict as a challenge for further activities).

Insurance Plan Inventor Dies

LONDON, June 28.—(AP.)—Sir Charles Starmer, 62, credited with being the originator of newspaper insurance schemes for readers, died today.

WAR PROLONGED BY GREED OF ALLIES

than two weeks ago, the debtors, war allies, paid but 8 per cent of their installments, while France again defaulted in June as it did in December.

France was revealed in the notes as one of the leaders in the squabble over how the war spoils were to be divided.

It was also considered significant the former war allies, notably France, are aligned against the United States at the World Economic Conference in London, demanding concessions from America.

REASONS FOR PAYMENT

Speaker Henry T. Rainey, epitomizing capital opinion, declared of the notes:

"The disclosures don't surprise me a bit, although they show additional reasons why the allied nations should pay their debts to us.

"The last few months of the war obviously were over spoils, as it was apparent with America's entrance that Germany would be defeated.

"We received nothing out of the war. We returned all the ships we captured from Germany . . . more than were taken by all the Allies. We paid Germany for everything we took, such as coal tar dye patents, while allied nations took and held on to German property and ships."

The documents revealed that even after formal requests for immediate peace were made by Germany, Austria-Hungary and Bulgaria in early October, 1918, the war was continued more than a month, while Italy, France and Great Britain indulged in a squabble over how the spoils were to be divided and how large a slice of the defeated powers each was to get.

HOUSE ULTIMATUM

On October 30, the situation had reached such a point that Col. E. M. House, Wilson's personal representative in Paris, cabled the President:

"It is my intention to tell the prime ministers today that if their conditions of peace are essentially different from the points you have laid down and for which the American people have been fighting, you will probably feel obliged to go before Congress and state the new conditions, and ask whether the United States shall continue to fight for the aims of Great Britain, France and Italy.

"Unless we deal with these people with a firm hand everything we have been fighting for will be lost. I would suggest that you quietly diminish the transport of troops and begin to gently shut down upon money, food and raw materials."

Of significance was the fact the Central Powers' peace proposals began at a time when the war fortunes of Germany and her sister nations were at a high ebb.

CONCESSIONS DEMANDED

France, however, insisted the Wilson terms be clarified so there could be no question of her getting Alsace-Lorraine from Germany and part of the German colonies, and Italy kept demanding Trieste and other territories from Austria-Hungary.

Telling a vivid story of the eventual crumbling of the German, Austro-Hungarian and Bulgarian governments in the closing months of the war, the notes show Germany made formal offers of peace to President Wilson as representative of the Allies as early as October 6, following months of informal negotiations which had borne no fruit.

A similar note from Austria-Hungary was received by Wilson October 7.

TWO DROWNED NEAR NEW LOCK

Eighteen hours after Joseph Walsh, 11, of 1825 Main street, Sharpsburg, was drowned while bathing in the Allegheny River near the new Aspinwall lock, the body of a man was taken from the river today near the lock.

The man's body was not identified. Louis Medra, 39, and Pete Merkal, 37, who accompanied the victim on a skiff ride, according to police, were to be taken to the morgue in an effort to identify him after being questioned by police. The three were drinking liquor when the boat capsized, the police said.

The boy's disappearance was discovered by his mother, Mrs. Edward Walsh who summoned police. The body was recovered an hour later by Police Chief Chester Zygello, of Sharpsburg, and River Patrolman Charles Snyder. Efforts to revive him failed.

Barbers Shave Price of Haircuts

MONONGAHELA, Pa., June 28.—(AP.)—Turning from haircutting to price-cutting, local barbers have shaved the cost of haircuts down to 15 cents and shaves, 10 cents.

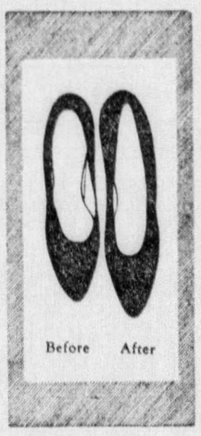
Belligerents in the "war" say the unkindest cut of all is the sign one member of the profession displays to customers:

"Your price is mine."

COUNTY TO ASK PARK BUS RIGHT

The County Commissioners through Assistant Solicitor Mortimer B. Lesher, will make formal application to the Public Service Commission for the right to operate buses to and from the county parks in competition with the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company. This was decided at a conference between Commissioners C. M Barr and C. C. McGovern with several members of the commission in Harrisburg yesterday.

Commission officials indicated the application will be listed for a hearing here at an early date. Negotiations have been under way to organize independent bus owners for the service.



When we first heard of widening and lengthening shoes we were skeptical, but we were convinced when we saw some of the transformations that had been made. Heavy winter suede shoes transformed into smooth leather for warm weather wear—short shoes lengthened and narrow shoes widened (a boon to feet that seem to swell in hot weather); leather shoes dyed (not painted) so you can wear your favorite pair with a new dress and not have the colors clash. It's a great idea!—especially if you have shoes you paid high prices for and you hate to part with them. Drop in tomorrow and we'll be glad to "diagnose" the case of your own particular shoes in our Shoe Clinic.

COUPLE PARTED BY SOCIAL LIFE

Three evenings a week were not sufficient for his wife's social engagements, and trouble resulted, Henry N. Haas, drug salesman, 213 Meridan avenue, testified before being granted a divorce from Helen S. Haas.

Haas told Judge Thomas M. Marshall he could not take more nights off on account of his business, and said:

"One night she locked me in the room. She also would come into the prescription department and call me down in a loud voice. On one occasion she struck me."

Haas said that his wife went to a camp for several weeks without asking his permission. They were married at Cumberland, Md., April 8, 1930, when she was 20, and he was 26.

CHECK REVEALS TRAFFIC GAIN

A 3.6 per cent increase in Pittsburgh traffic as compared with a year ago was reported in the Boy Scout count May 25, according to the Bureau of Traffic Planning.

Downtown entering and leaving volumes totaled 133,522 vehicles between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m. The biggest increase was shown at Point Bridge, from 8,799 vehicles last year to 10,479. Large decreases were registered at the Smithfield Street Bridge, and on Fifth and Liberty avenues.

Bigelow boulevard and Seventh avenue continued as the busiest intersection.

Data obtained will be used in re-timing traffic lights, according to City Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre.

Proposed Traffic Changes to Be Topic

Members of the Better Traffic Committee will meet to consider traffic changes, recommended by sub-committees and citizens, in the Council chambers at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow. Requests for shortening of the Frankstown bus route and a boulevard connection between East Liberty and Washington boulevard will be discussed.

HOME LOAN UNIT TO OPERATE SOON

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

(This is the second of a series of articles discussing the Home Owners' Act of 1933 and explaining the procedure necessary for individuals to take advantage of federal assistance to protect the ownership of their homes.)

Within a few days it is expected that the staff of the Pitsburgh branch of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation will be appointed.

Until the organization of the unit in this city is completed, it will be impossible for those who live in Pittsburgh and the surrounding territory to make use of federal aid to save their homes. The work of organization is being pushed rapidly so that it should not be long before facilities will be available here.

STUDY IMPORTANT

In the meantime the procedure which must be followed can be studied by those who find the ownership of their homes endangered.

In order to give aid to home owners who are threatened with the loss of their properties, the act provides for the formation of a Home Owners' Loan Corporation. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to purchase stock in this corporation up to an amount of $200,000,000. The funds to do this are to be advanced by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

In addition the Home Owners' Loan Corporation is authorized to issue bonds up to a total of $2,000,000,000. These bonds may be sold by the corporation to obtain funds, or they may be exchanged for home mortgages.

SOURCE OF FUNDS

The corporation is to secure the means to give relief to home owners through the government subscription to its stock and the issuance of its bonds, which are to bear interest at the rate of 4 per cent and to mature in a period of not more than 18 years. The bonds will be guaranteed as to interest by the United States government, but not as to principal.

The article tomorrow will explain the type of home owners who will be eligible for relief.

EXPERT ADVICE ON PICNICS

Pie and watermelon-eating contests are taboo in a well-ordered outing, according to Pittsburgh Y. M. C. A. picnic experts.

Among suggestions for successful outings are:

"Start on time; have games for all and play for fun; discourage money prizes; refrain from 'rough stuff.'"

A special committee of trained men to aid in planning and directing outing programs is available for the public through the Y. M. C. A., according to announcement today.

U. S. May Intervene In Reading Strike

READING, Pa., June 28.—(AP.)—Possibility of the federal government taking a hand in the Reading hosiery strike looms as a result of the discharge of a worker for distributing leaflets calling for a mass meeting.

Union officials said employes of the Berkshire Knitting Mills were prevented from passing out the leaflets and that one of them was fired.

A telegram was sent to Gen. Hugh Johnson, administrator of the Industrial Recovery Act, demanding an investigation, leaders of the union said.

HUGE CLOTHING PURCHASE MADE

Frank & Seder Company Anticipate Rising Market

Before the recent wholesale price advances, the Frank & Seder Men's Department fortified itself against further rises by placing a tremendous order for Men's Clothing with the Hart Schaffner & Marx factory at Chicago.

More than fifteen hundred of the garments have been received at the Frank & Seder store, it was learned today, and they will be placed on sale beginning tomorrow in three price groups, actually 40% below today's inflation prices.

In view of the terrific advances in the price of raw woolens, Frank & Seder have called public attention to the fact that retail Clothing prices are bound to follow wholesale commodity prices in their upward swing, and have urged their patrons to not only take advantage of this event to supply their normal needs, but to anticipate further advances in clothing prices, and to stock up for months ahead.

All of the clothing involved in the sale has been divided into three price ranges, at $18.75 . . . $23.75 and $29.75 . . . representing the latest and most successful of the season's models by Hart Schaffner & Marx. In announcing the event, Frank & Seder state that the prices at which the clothing will be offered are even below the lowest depression levels.

LAW-BREAKERS CALLED SMART AND THRIFTY

CHICAGO, June 28.—(AP.)—Dr. Ben Reitman, "free-lance" student of the underworld and once head of a Chicago "hobo college," today told a gathering of sociologists that most criminals and "outcasts" have good mentalities and were not as great a menace to society as some other groups.

Dr. Reitman spoke by invitation on "a new classification of criminals" in a symposium on crime sponsored by the American Sociological Society and the Society for Social Research in connection with the meeting here of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

In his "new classification" of criminals Reitman listed two groups, the "big ten" and the "little ten," classified "according to their ability to harm society."

In the "big ten" he listed politicians because they "make wars and class legislation," dishonest bankers, corrupt law-enforcing agencies, dishonest lawyers and lobbyists, "exploiters" of labor, gamblers, dishonest business men, bootleggers and adulterers of food, newspapers that deceive the public.

He listed in the "little ten" thieves, gangsters, confidence men, organized vice groups, drug addicts and peddlers, auto traffic violators, murderers, drunkards and labor and business racketeers.

Happiest Homes Have No Mothers-in-Law

CHICAGO, June 28.—(INS.)—Science, it was predicted today, will soon be able to predict the outcome of marriages, thus assuring partners to a projected union in advance whether they will enjoy wedded harmony.

Dr. Leonard B. Cottrell, Jr., of the University of Chicago, explained an important phase of this newest development in social science at a round table of the American Sociological Society.

Dr. Cottrell outlined the results of two and one-half years of study of couples married from two to six years.

His statistics indicated that the wife without a mother-in-law often makes a success of marriage where one with a mother-in-law fails to find wedded happiness.

FUNDS NEEDED FOR CAMP

Without exception the 264 children who have just enrolled at the Lillian Fresh Air Home, Valencia, are in urgent need of proper physical upbuilding, according to Dr. S. M. Saul, who examined the children yesterday.

The camp opened Monday and has sufficient funds to remain open a month. After that it will have to close unless new funds are provided, according to officials of the Kingsley Association, sponsors.

A campaign has been launched, seeking $10 contributions, which will provide a two-weeks' outing for a child.

Civil Service Men To Quit Side Jobs

WASHINGTON, June 28.—(INS.)—Government employes under civil service who are holding two jobs were told today by the Civil Service Commission to give a chance to those who have no jobs at all.

The Commission said some government workers work for private interests during their spare time and announced it intends to discourage this practice.

FATHER COX STARTING ON PILGRIMAGE

THE REV. JAMES R. COX LEAVING PITTSBURGH WITH A PARTY OF 16 BOUND TO ROME

COX APPEALS FOR POOR AS HE SAILS

Father Cox is on his way to Rome making his seventh annual pilgrimage and heading a party of 16 Pittsburghers. They were scheduled to sail from New York at noon today on the S.S. Roosevelt.

While the party will visit many other outstanding points of interest in Europe, including the Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes in France, the high spot of the pilgrimage is Vatican City, where the group will remain for a week and participate in many of the notable services in St. Peter's Cathedral, arranged for Holy Year. The Pittsburgh pilgrims will also be granted an audience by the Pope.

HUNDREDS BID ADIEU

The party left Pittsburgh at 11 o'clock last night on the Pennsylvania Railroad. Hundreds of friends of Father Cox were there to bid him farewell. Father Cox will get a much-needed rest on the ocean and while abroad. He has not been well for a year and the constant strain of his many activities among the poor has retarded his recuperation. Brother Andrew will be in charge of Old St. Patrick's welfare work during the six weeks' absence of the "father of the jobless."

In the party are Mrs. Martha Fownes, Mrs. Rosalina Hook, and Miss Margaret Bovard, Pittsburgh; Mrs. Anna Sistek, her son Albert, and Frank Ertljac, North Side; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Egan and Joseph, Jr., Mary Trimber and the Rev. Valentine Lehnard, Butler; the Rev. Jeremiah Brennen, Carnegie; Mrs. Mary Berhalter, Braddock; Miss Mathilda Kane, Carrolltown, Pa.; Mrs. Sarah Voit, Grafton, W. Va.; J. P. Desmond, Jr., Oakmont, and Mrs. Clara Sheehan, Smiths Ferry.

PRIEST MAKES APPEAL

Father Cox said last night:

"I would not go away if my health would let me stay. In the meantime my army of poor and destitute will need the continued help of the public, just as much as ever and I hope that my friends will bear this in mind."

In the meantime the Father Cox-Sun-Telegraph drive for subscriptions will continue without interruption. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission. Father Cox says that the feeding of his breadline will depend entirely upon the commissions received from this Sun-Telegraph subscription drive.

CHINESE NAVY MUTINIES

SHANGHAI, June 28.—(INS.)—The northeast squadron of the Chinese Navy was reported running wild today following an attempt to assassinate Admiral Shen Hung-Lieh, its commander.

The squadron, which consists of five ships, was reported to have deserted, in advices received here. Officials said they believed it was headed for a point in the North China area demilitarized under the Sino-Japanese truce.

One report stated the squadron might join the rebel generals who have launched a move for independence of the region.

Following the unsuccessful attempt on his life, the admiral went ashore. He retained control of three small vessels.

DOG POISONINGS BRING PROBE

An investigation is being launched by the Humane Society in Crafton as residents there have complained of dog poisonings.

The latest complaint came from B. J. McHugh, 19 Oakwood road, whose greyhound died Friday morning. Several other dogs were poisoned last year.

The person responsible is subject to a heavy fine, Humane Society officials say.

LUTHERAN MEET WEIGHS MERGER

PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—(INS.)—Leading theologians of the United Lutheran Church in America, assembled for their annual conference at the Mount Airy Theological Seminary, today considered findings of a survey which revealed that laymen favor the merger of the church's 13 seminaries into five or fewer new institutions for economy's sake.

Several laymen favored consolidation of seminaries in Mount Airy, Gettysburg, Hardwick and Selinsgrove into one central unit.

Dr. Frederick H. Knubel, president of the United Lutheran Church, declared that since William Jennings Bryan the church has failed to produce outstanding lay leaders and as a result Christian influences have been lacking in political and civic life.

Kidnaper's Counsel Seeks New Trial

WORCESTER, Mass., June 28.—(AP.)—Attorney Elias Burwick, counsel for Kenneth Buck, convicted kidnaper of Margaret Peggy McMath, today filed a motion for a new trial at the Barnstable Court.

With the motion was also filed a bill of exceptions, outlining objections by defense counsel during the trial, which ended with a verdict of guilty for Kenneth, acquittal for his brother, Cyril, and a sentence of 24 to 25 years for Kenneth.

TWO VESSELS CRASH AT SEA

BOSTON, June 28.—(INS.)—The coast guard cutter Acushnet today reached the side of the Boston trawler Flow and took her in tow for this port.

The Flow was in collision with the British freighter Corner Brook in a dense fog four miles northeast of Highland Light last night, and one of her crew of 15 injured.

KILLS HIMSELF AFTER SPAT

FAYETTE CITY, Pa., June 28.—Samuel DeRosa, 60, Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad trackman, of Bellevernon, meant what he said last night when he told his wife and three daughters, following a spat, he was going to end his life.

Today his body, two bullet wounds in the head, was found in a hollow near Fayette City by miners. His wife told detectives her husband had burned the deed to his house and insurance papers last night after a family quarrel.

'Voice' to Help Tenor Lose Girl Friend

A kaleidoscopic visit to the Century of Progress Exposition is planned for daytime eavesdroppers tomorrow from 2 to 2:30 p. m., when CBS stages a multiple origin-point short-wave broadcast. WJAS will carry the feature locally.

Opening amid the wonders in the gigantic Hall of Science, the program will move to the Chinese Theater, then to Enchanted Island—the children's playspot—and finally to the gay carnival section, the Midway.

In order that Pittsburgh listeners may tune in, the 2:15 broadcast of news by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, will be carried by WCAE only.

Chicago Culture

Boosting his home town's cultural aspects, Mayor Edward J. Kelly, of Chicago, is to be heard over KDKA at 9 p. m. tonight. Among the high spots to be touched upon are the Chicago Art Institute's $75,000,000 exhibit, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra concerts, the Field Museum, the Shedd Aquarium and the new Adler Planetarium.

* * *

And now we shall hear of the trials and tribulations of a radio star's private life. It's the sad tale of a tenor, who, in a moment of levity, accepted an invitation to visit a certain woman listener and, what with phone calls and all, hasn't had a moment's peace since. What, he asks the Voice of Experience, shall he do? He gets his answer via WJAS tonight at 8.

'A Lesson in Life' On Air Tomorrow

"A Lesson in Life," dramatization from the next issue of the American Weekly, with Katharine Renwick portraying the principal role, will be presented over Station WFBG, Altoona, tomorrow at 3 p. m.

The playlet reveals a society leader's story of her experiences as a servant together with the reasons "Why Maids Leave."

Jack Pearl To Kill Baron

By AIRCASTER

That adventurous and somewhat reliable personage of the air, the Baron Munchausen, I was assured by Jack Pearl, has exactly two more days of life. With tomorrow night's broadcast the celebrated raconteur will die peacefully as a microphoner, and when Pearl returns to the air in the autumn, he will be another role—but will wear, nevertheless, the crest of baron.

The new baron will be more reasonable—an academic sort of chap whose forte will not be fabrication, but instead a kindly and vastly more dramatic line of endeavor, thickly flavored with dialect, and, so Monsieur Pearl promises, a new brand of comedy.

Al Jolson evidently has learned much of the intricacies of radio broadcasting. What he has learned he put to the best advantage recently when he was starred with Paul Whiteman, on the inaugural broadcast of the music dean's series of two-hour shows.

Jolson, as it now turns out, was oracular when he said, at the abrupt close of his recent automobile engagement on the air, that if an established artist can't do the things he wants, he may as well sign off.

It was his privilege on the Whiteman program to do just as he pleased—and he did. He lost, in the process, his earlier defects, and found his radio resurrection in the simple expedient of dramatizing Jolson.

He ceased being just another radio singer, and became the Jolson of the Winter Garden again . . . and all because of the simple dramatizations which provided him with a sort of magic baton by which he was enabled to summon whatever suited his fancy.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Walter Monaghan, sterling city sleuth, proved himself as resourceful in making an alibi as breaking one. He, with Joe Colebaugh, United States narcotic agent, and Stanley Carrington, surety company inspector, were indulging in a none-too-gentle game of mushball near the Monaghan household in Brookline the other day when—wham! One of the boys crashed the grapefruit through a neighbor's awning.

After a hurried dash for the refuge of Monaghan's house, the police scout car arrived on the scene. The two law enforcers decided to make the city sleuth the spokesman for the three of them, but they found Walter already disporting himself in the tub claiming that as far as he was concerned he'd been immersed there all afternoon.

5c CAN OF PEAS QUESTIONED IN PRIZE MENU

It was just a little can of peas, but it seems to have been the only thing questioned in the award of prizes in the first week's Sun-Telegraph Prudence Penny dinner menu contest.

Mrs. William P. Brennan, of Brentwood, who was given the first prize—$25—included a 5-cent can of peas in the makeup of her menu. Where did she get a can of peas in her menu.

Mrs. Brennan avers that in her neighborhood small cans of peas at a nickel are available.

Contest No. 3 is now in full swing. Hundreds of women are submitting entries for the $100 in weekly cash prizes to be given away by the Sun-Telegraph for the best entires based on the question: "Can four persons be served with a well-balanced, appetizing dinner menu at a cost not to exceed $1.50?"

Entries for Contest No. 3 must be in before midnight next Monday night. Contest No. 2 closed at midnight last night. The judges hope to have their selections ready for publication in Friday's Sunday Telegraph.

Irwin Funeral.

Thomas F. Irwin, 78, the "Greengoods Man" to newspaper readers of former years, was buried today in his native town of Claysville, Washington County.

He died yesterday in St. John's Hospital as the result of a cerebral hemorrhage, suffered three weeks ago. He lived at the Northern Hotel, North Side.

For more than a quarter of a century, until 10 years ago, readers of the old Pitsburgh Post had chuckled over Irwin's mixture of wit and nonsense which enlivened the drab market page statistics.

A graduate of Washington and Jefferson College, he taught school before entering newspaper work. He was on the staff of the Post-Gazette until a year ago, retiring because of failing health.

He leaves a brother, Daniel K. Irwin, of Claysville and several nieces and nephews of Washington County. Services were held in the H. H. Brownlee funeral home, Claysville.

Marie Nixon Carnahan.

Mrs. Marie Nixon Carnahan, of Carnegie, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hugo Leidenroth, 1201 North Sheridan avenue, yesterday. Funeral services will be held at the daughter's home at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Mrs. Carnahan was a member of the Monday Club and the First Presbyterian Church of Carnegie.

Besides Mrs. Leidenroth she leaves another daughter, Mrs. Joseph Hedges, of Carnegie; a brother, William Nixon, of Kansas, and two sisters, Mrs. James Silk, and Mrs. Harriet Holland, both of Scott Township.

Bell Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Alice Bruss Bell, 88, who died Sunday in her home, 205 Lehigh avenue, were held today from the Moreland funeral home.

Mrs. Bell was born in New Brighton, but had been a resident of Pittsburgh since 1850. She was the oldest member of the East End Christian Church, and widow of Andrew Bell.

She leaves two sons, A. J., of Atlantic City, and Elmer, of Cleveland; a daughter, Mrs. Alice R. Davis, of Pittsburgh; six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Johnston Funeral.

David Johnston, of 43 Perryview avenue, North Side, for 27 years chief accountant of the Pittsburgh Department of Public Safety, died late yesterday.

He leaves his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Florence, Hopf; a brother, James Johnston, and two sisters, Mrs. J. F. Nicholson and Mrs. O. D. Purvis, all of Pittsburgh.

He was a member of Allegheny Lodge, No. 445, Royal Arcanum.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at the F. W. Litten funeral parlors, Perrysville avenue, North Side.

Ink Funeral.

Funeral services were to be held today in Miami, Fla., for Lemuel W. Ink, 77, former Pittsburgh druggist, who died there Sunday. He had lived in Pittsburgh all his life until four years ago, and operated drug stores in East End and Hazelwood.

He leaves his wife, a son, Theodore B., and a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Lippert, both of Pittsburgh, and three sisters, Mrs. Theodore A. Huntley, of Washington, wife of a former Pittsburgher newspaperman; Mrs. Della Haynes and Mrs. George L. Jones, of Miami.

Lessenberry Funeral.

Funeral services will be held tonight for Mrs. Elona Spence Lessenberry in her home, 3979 Brandon road, North Side. She was the wife of D. D. Lessenberry, head of the department of commercial education at the University of Pittsburgh.

She was a member of the Fifth United Presbyterian Church, North Side. She leaves her husband and her mother, Mrs. William Spence.

Veteran Awarded Citation Medal

Ray M. Johnson, veteran, of 1135 Woodland avenue, has been awarded the Silver Star Citation Medal, recently authorized by Congress. Johnson, who served with the First Division as sergeant-major during the World War, distinguished himself by bravery in action at Cantigny and the Meuse-Argonne.

"—my skin became clear"

—wouldn't you like to be able to say this, too? Then pause a moment and reason ... skin affections usually result because of lowered resistance from below the skin surface. Then help the blood that purifies the skin, by increasing its red-cells and restoring the vital oxygen-carrying hemoglobin in these cells so that more vitality comes to the tissues. This will increase the ability of the blood to devour infectious pimple germs.

That is just what S.S.S. does—proved by tens of thousands of unsolicited letters of thankfulness.

"Shall I use a good soap?"—certainly—"and cosmetics?"—naturally, but first observe Nature's law and lay the sound foundation from underneath the skin.

S.S.S., in addition to being a valuable general tonic, has the special property of increasing the red-cells and restoring the hemoglobin content of the blood, when deficient. Try a course of S.S.S. and note the constant improvement. © The S.S.S. Co.

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

Girl Flirts Promiscuously Despite Engagement

"Why must I neck and pet, just because all the others do?

"Why must I pretend to be so crazy about wild parties, when really I'm not? I'd much rather be choosey and save my lovin' for the right one. But unless you act like the rest of the crowd, look what happens!"

You've heard that scores of times, haven't you? And usually, it was a girl who said it.

But this time it's a boy!

And the villian in the plot is a girl—his own best girl, at that!

For, believe it or not, here's a girl who wants Her Man to play around with the other Beautifuls! And for why?

So she can have an excuse to flirt herself!

Will that sort of plan work?

Are you asking me?

Dear Elsie Robinson:

I have a problem that I wish I could find an answer to, and I hope you will help me with it.

It is this. I am going with a girl whom I have known for quite a few years. I have been going steady with her for quite a while, and I am in love with her. She says she loves me, too. I have asked her to marry me, but we will have to wait a while to do that, because of present conditions.

I think she really does want to marry me, because she often asks me if I still want to marry her, and I tell her I do. But one big trouble is, she wants to go out a good deal, and I don't, because I am not working. Well, she insists on going and paying all the expense when I don't have money.

I object strongly to this, but she sees no reason for my objection, because she is working and says she wants me to forget my troubles. That may be all right from her point of view, but it seems to me that any man would feel like a gigolo when he goes out like that. Don't you think so?

KISSES OTHER MEN

However, that isn't my real reason for writing this letter. My real reason for wondering about things is that when we're out in company with friends, she will fool around with other fellows, kissing them and carrying on right in my presence. That makes me feel terribly embarrassed and uncomfortable, because I'm sure people must notice and think it is queer.

I have asked her not to do this, but she only says "why don't you do the same?" Sometimes she makes those remarks when we're with others. I tell her she is the only one I want to kiss, but that seems to make no difference.

Do you think a girl should carry on this way, when she pretends to be in love with you? Or is it okay and just "being modern," and should I do the same?

Must a man swallow all the pride he has? Or is it coming to where the woman rules the stronger man and makes him love her, regardless of what she does? I don't know what to think. I know she doesn't go out with others, because she is always with me. But still I don't know what to make of her. What do you think? BILL.

RIOT ACT IN ORDER

What do I think?

That's easy. I think your Girl Friend is just a disloyal little tramp, out for a cheap thrill, and trying to alibi herself by persuading you to do the same thing, so she'll have the drop on you.

Must a man swallow all his pride? Not if he's a Real Man and has sense and spunk, as well as masculine conceit. You have to use your head about love, Bill—just as you'd use it about buying a car, or an order of groceries—and you're plainly not using yours. You'd better do it!

Because, no matter how much this girl says she "loves" you, the only person she loves is herself, and no successful marriage can ever be built on ideas like hers.

So if you value your own happiness and future, read her the riot act!

And if she won't change her notions and her ways, get going while the going's good.

'Men Never More Catered to Than Now,' Fay King Believes

By FAY KING

Years ago the public was incensed and heartily condemned a wealthy man for leaving his elderly wife for a fascinating young showgirl.

Yet one could not help appreciating the advantage a glamorous young creature could have over a wife many years older than she and not eager to dance and gad about with a showy husband.

But today, alas! we see young wives in their early twenties deserted by young husbands for women no younger, no prettier, no more vivacious than themselves.

And what is more, we do not hear a word of condemnation for these young husbands, nor a word of sympathy for these very young wives.

Never have men been more catered to and flattered than now. Women fear to offend any man.

Harry and Hugh Make Hurried Examination of Owen

Harry Underwood went into swift, efficient action as Brock said that Owen "ought to have a shot" before he was carried any further, because he was in danger of dying.

"Put him down here," he directed. "Wynne, you know where my kit is in the car. Get it here in double-quick. Brock; hold the flashlight for me. Have a look, Hugh! I want to know what you make of him."

Hugh was at his side before he had finished speaking, and together they knelt by the unconscious Owen. I felt Ronald's body stiffen as he leaned against me, and heard Marion's low murmur. "It will be all right now; dad is on the job."

I mentally echoed her optimistic faith. Their experience in the World War ambulance service and in the far-flung outposts of civilization gave Harry and Hugh authority in wounds from combat equal to that held by any ordinary physician. But I waited as tensely as Ronald and Marion for their verdict.

I watched the faces of the two men as they were revealed by the flashlight Brock held. They were very grave and I knew that their tightened lines indicated a fear of what their examination might reveal.

ANXIOUS MOMENTS

So swiftly had Wynne obeyed Harry's terse order that he came up with the kit by the time Hugh had finished slitting Owen's sleeve. The team work that followed was so quick and so efficient that it seemed but the fraction of a second before Harry was putting away the hypodermic needle, after thrusting it into Owen's arm.

Then, with eyes scanning the unconscious man's face and fingers feeling his pulse, Hugh bent above him, while Harry again put his ear over Owen's heart.

I rarely have known greater suspense than that of the next few seconds. Had they been in time, or was the spark of life in Owen too far gone for recovery?

I had no false sentiment in the matter. If Charles Owen's life had been the only thing at stake I should have contemplated his passing without a scintilla of emotion. Indeed, I am afraid I should have experienced the same relief that one would feel at knowing that a ferocious wild beast or venomous reptile had been put to death.

But knowing what suffering the stigma of having killed even so vile a thing as Owen would give Ronald, I found myself praying fervently that the verdict of the watching men would spell recovery for Marion's kidnaper.

RONALD'S SUGGESTION

At last, when my clenching finger nails had bitten deeply into my palms and I had sensed that Ronald's nerves were almost at the breaking point, I saw Harry's head lift itself from Owen's chest, and Hugh's eyes turn from the unconscious man's face to Harry's. Both men nodded, and my taut nerves relaxed even before they spoke.

"It worked," Harry said.

"Yes; he'll probably be safe now until we get him to a bed, where we can take care of him," Hugh assented. Then Ronald suddenly slumped against me, almost inert, while Marion bent over him in quick alarm.

"Ronald! Ronald!" she called anxiously.

"I'm all right. I'm just—so relieved," Ronald whispered as Wynne and Brock carried Charles Owen toward the waiting car.

"And now," Harry said, "the next thing is to get these other babies into the car."

"I know something better to do with them than that," Ronald said tensely.

Harry turned and looked at him curiously.

"What's on your mind, son?" he asked. "We hardly can line them up against a wall and turn a machine gun on them, much as we might like to."

"You won't have to," Ronald answered eagerly. "From what they've spilled themselves, we've learned that there's a gangster named Jerry at the foot of this lane, who's very anxious to get his hands on them. All you'll have to do will be to leave them tied over by the fence there. Jerry will do the rest of the job up brown."

Hints for the Household

The freshness of fish is determined by firm flesh, bright gills, moist-looking open eyes and shiny scales. Be suspicious of any odor except the natural smell of fresh fish.

From the standpoint of cooking value baking a vegetable in its skin or in a casserole is the best method, say federal food experts. The baking should be slow with moderate oven heat.

Children's clothing should be liberally supplied with pockets large and deep enough to hold things without likelihood of losing them. Useless shallow pockets should be replaced by adequate ones before garments are worn. When a little girl's dress seems prettier without pockets these can be sewn on the bloomers of the same material usually worn beneath.

Those who want new ideas for their bedroom, would do well to consider a linen bedroom. Linen, particularly green, beige or lemon, is ideal for summer wear in the bedroom, and makes a pleasant change from all the shiny and sometimes not very durable artificial silks. A linen eiderdown is the latest idea, and this makes the ideal finishing touch to the linen bedroom.

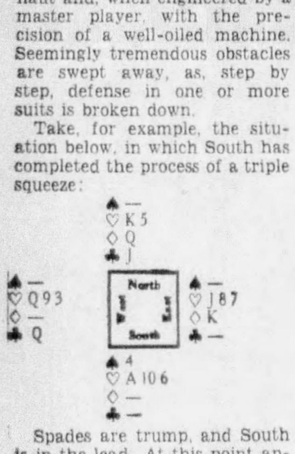
Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Workings of a Squeeze

The squeeze at Bridge works with something of the inexorableness of the famed Juggernaut and, when engineered by a master player, with the precision of a well-oiled machine. Seemingly tremendous obstacles are swept away, as, step by step, defense in one or more suits is broken down.

Take, for example, the situation below, in which South has completed the process of a triple squeeze:

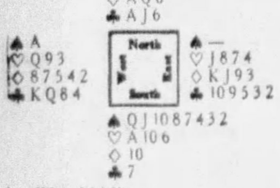


Spades are trump, and South is in the lead. At this point apparently clubs, hearts and diamonds are defended by the East and West opponents. Note, however, the difference in the situation when South leads his last trump. Obviously West must retain the club Queen, and the club Knave in the Dummy, which has served its purpose in forcing West to retain the Queen, is now discarded. The squeeze also operates against East. So long as the diamond Queen remains in Dummy, he must hold his King. Therefore he must part with a heart. South now leads the heart 6, plays the King from Dummy, returns to his own hand with a small heart, and captures the remaining trick.

This is a denouement of a well-played squeeze situation. The complete deal which brought this result was played by Mr G. A. Carlton, of Glen Ellyn, Ill., and was as follows:

South, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 N T	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

I do not entirely approve of the Opening notrump bid, but it must be admitted that North has a difficult choice. His hand contains 3½ honor-tricks plus and no suit that by the wildest stretch of the imagination could be considered biddable. If the spades and clubs were transposed a better Opening bid would be one club, but as the hand is distributed, it is probable that notrump is the best Opening, as the hand is too strong to pass. The subsequent bidding is entirely sound.

West's Opening lead was the club King, which was won with Dummy's Ace. Then the Ace of trumps was driven out. East discarding on the trump lead from Dummy the diamond 9. In response to this apparent signal, West shifted to a diamond, and the trick was won with Dummy's Ace. East and West now had the high cards in both the minor suits, and their prospect of defeating the contract appeared rather good. Then South proceeded to lead trumps up to the tenth trick, creating the situation shown in the preceding diagram.

Every Bridge player has from time to time opportunities for just as brilliant and effective play as this.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You hold

♠ A Q 5 ♡ J 10 7 ◇ K Q 4 ♣ A 10 4 2

You are the Dealer and vulnerable. What do you bid?

Answer—One club. The hand is too weak to bid one notrump, vulnerable, in spite of the balanced distribution. The shaded club suit must be preferred. Three and one-half plus honor-tricks do not suffice for a vulnerable notrump bid.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Hostess

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me whether or not it is correct, at a formal dinner of 50 or so persons, for the hostess to direct her guests to start eating the hot main course before the entire table is served? G.

I don't believe that the hostess will find it necessary to do this, but, if she sees that it is, it is correct for her to do it.

Correct Birthday Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to know if it is proper for a young lady to give a birthday gift to a young man whom she has been going about with for about four months, and seeing on an average of twice a week. It is serious on his part, but the young lady goes out with other friends.

If it is proper and right to give him a gift, what would you suggest?

Would a card or telegram do instead of a gift, and still be right and proper?

She had a birthday when their friendship was only two weeks' old, and he sent her a telegram. R.

This friendly situation seems to suggest that the most appropriate gift to the young man for his birthday would be a charmingly-worded birthday telegram or, even better, a birthday letter. Or a well-chosen book . . to read while she "goes out with other friends or a carton of his favorite cigarets, to smoke while he reads. Or one or two perfect white linen handkerchiefs, monogrammed, for evening wear. Remembering the birthday, and offering him some small, friendly tribute . . . not a consequential one, not an expensive one . . . is the correct taste.

There is nothing like the smart, hand-made blouse of crisp white linen. The very smartest women wear them everywhere.

Gaining fast is the dressy coat despite the popularity of the suit. A delightful coat is done in a pencil-striped black and gray woolen. A feature of the model is the square-cut sleeve, marked by a full silver fox skin placed over the shoulder and reaching to the elbow back and front of the arm.

BEACH SCENES PROVE THAT IN SIMPLICITY LIES SMARTNESS

WOMEN GO down to the sea in gala style this year. Bathing costumes have no nonsense about them, yet they're neither prim nor prudish. They reveal, but extreme sun-back or brassiere-top suits that were last year's scandal are this year's accepted fashions! The smartest beach clothes remain simple and classic in design, and turn to unexpected fabrics and trimmings for their appeal.

* * *

NO RESORT scene is complete without examples of the invasion of rope—it is seen everywhere. For instance, the bathing suit sketched at the lower left, of soft gray and yellow plaid. The brassiere top graduates into two straps that cross in the back and fasten to the skirt—and the whole suit is held up by ropes! (One gray and one yellow. This combination continues to be good.) At the front neckline there are two very nautical metal anchors.

* * *

NOTICE THE smart woman in the stunning pajama ensemble. Wide red and white military stripes run down the length of the trousers. Cleverest of all is the tiny red, white and navy striped jacket, the neckline gathered together by a drawstring of ropes! It's fun to wear it as she does, with the opening in back, when there's no bathing suit underneath.

* * *

A CURRENT fad is to have children dressed like younger editions of their parents. The cunning little youngster in the picture has a red, white and blue plaid suit exactly like one her mother wears! (Not sketched.)

* * *

IF YOU'VE "that kind" of a figure—quite perfect, to be exact—you can wear the chic one-piece bathing suit, of white with red polka dots, to advantage. More generally suited to all types is the brief little suit in the background, with cardigan jacket. Cardigans have swept the fashion world by storm this year.

JOB MARCHERS DEMAND GAS

COLUMBUS, O., June 28.—(AP.)—Unemployed marchers from all parts of Ohio refuse to leave the fair grounds unless the state finances their evacuation.

In a letter to Gov. White, the marchers say they are unable to pay for a return trip to their homes and demand that the state give them the gasoline, food and shoes they were denied by the chief executive following a demonstration at the state Capitol.

A letter, signed by A. Onda, secretary of the marchers, said:

"We demand that you either reconsider and make the necessary provisions for our departure or make it possible for us to remain at the fair grounds until we can arrange to secure the assistance of our fellow workers back home in securing the fuel, shoes and food that we require."

Former Klan Dragon Loses Last Appeal

INDIANAPOLIS, June 28.—(AP.)—D. C. Stephenson's last hope for aid from the Indiana Supreme Court in gaining freedom from state prison, where he is serving a life term for murder, was gone today.

Three petitions of the former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, once a political power in Indiana, were denied or dismissed by the court yesterday. Stephenson was convicted of second degree murder in 1925 for the death of Madge Oberholtzer, who took poison after she alleged she was attacked by the Klan leader.

Suspect in Home Looting Arrested

Frank Miller, 42, of 24 Isabella street, was held in North Side Police Station today in connection with the theft of clothing and other articles, valued at $30, from the home of Mrs. Mary Sykes, 500 Sherman avenue, last night, according to police report. He was arrested near the Sykes home on a suspicious person charge.

Wife Dies of Poison Taken After Dispute

Mrs. Marjorie Taggart, 24, of 1619 Murray avenue, died last night in Pittsburgh Hospital from the effects of poison, swallowed following a party in her home June 21, according to a coroner's report. She took the poison after quarrelling with her husband, John, the report said.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Convulsions and Epilepsy Are Often Confused

To the average man and woman convulsions and epilepsy mean the same thing. The words are greatly abused, misunderstood and misapplied. Convulsions and epilepsy are two distinct and separate ailments.

Dr. Copeland

Convulsions are frequently encountered among infants and young children. Too often the trouble is neglected and merely considered the result of an "upset stomach." In fact, I have often heard mothers say that convulsions are a "natural event" in childhood.

Chronic constipation, ptomaine poisoning, rickets, undernourishment and high fever, such as develops in certain infectious diseases of childhood, may lead to convulsions. It is a common occurrence in severe attacks of whooping cough. In this disease it is due to a disturbance of the circulation.

One attack need not cause undue alarm. But repeated attacks of convulsions are serious and must never be neglected. When the attacks recur and the underlying cause cannot be determined, epilepsy should be suspected.

In epilepsy, the disturbance is often traced to some change in the brain. Meningitis, hemorrhage or tumor of the brain, abscess, or injury of the brain, are causes that must be considered. Epilepsy occurs in adults as well as in children. It is a serious affliction and requires prolonged supervision.

There are two types of the disease. "Grand mal" is a severe form of epilepsy. In this type the victim loses consciousness and has repeated attacks of convulsions. The mild form is spoken of as "petit mal." Convulsions may or may not be present. Loss of consciousness in "petit mal" is mild and usually of short duration.

If you have ever seen a victim of epilepsy you can appreciate the distress and real alarm caused by this affliction. In children, it is especially alarming. The child suddenly becomes pale and the eyes are fixed in a steady gaze.

This is followed by convulsive movements of the whole body. The face now becomes blue. The pulse is feeble and the child appears to be at the point of death, but of course is only unconscious.

It is easy to become excited when the scene is witnessed. Do not lose your head, but call a physician. Meanwhile, place the child in a warm tub and apply ice-packs to his head.

The victim of epilepsy should lead a quiet and well-regulated life. He should avoid mental strain and emotional excitement. When the cause can be determined cure is possible.

We are indebted to the splendid work of military surgeons who, during the war, successfully operated on many cases of epilepsy. They awakened the hope of a cure for this affliction. Since then, intensive studies have been made to master this dreaded disease.

Miss Pickford Will Write Comedy

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, June 28.—Next fall may see Mary Pickford blossom out in an entirely new role, co-author of a play for Grace Moore. This much Mary has told me, reluctantly, for the actual writing of the piece is yet to be done.

Miss Moore

The affair has gone beyond the preliminary stage, however. Grace Moore is enthusiastic over the idea, and one of Broadway's best known producers has given it his okay.

Talking to me over the telephone a few hours after her arrival from New York, Mary said:

"The temporary title of the play is 'Coco, the Notorious.' It will be a comedy drama with music, based on an idea I once had in mind for myself.

"Realizing that it fits Miss Moore perfectly, I spoke to her about it in the East. She came in from her country home, heard the story and liked it very much. She wants me to have it ready for rehearsals by August 15."

Mary will try to do this. She will have a collaborator, and Miss Moore also will confer on the script.

As for her own plans, Mary isn't ready to make a definite announcement. She says she found nothing suitable on Broadway and may fall back on another idea of her own—a story in which she plays the elder sister in a large family.

The star also told me that Douglas Fairbanks may be back sooner than he expected—perhaps in a couple of weeks.

* * *

Paramount has bought the motion picture rights to many of the King Features Syndicate comic strips and will combine them in a big production to be called "Funny Page."

Mr. Laughton

It will bring to life the characters from "Boob McNutt," "Polly and Her Pals," The Captain in "The Katzenjammer Kids," "Popeye," "Blondie," "Tim Tyler" and others.

No one will be more pleased to hear this than Charles Laughton. He is an inveterate reader of the comic sections and has long cherished the ambition to play The Captain in "The Katzenjammer Kids." Now he is to do it. Other players assigned to the picture are Wynne Gibson, Charles Ruggles, Jack Oakie, Shirley Gray and Bradley.

Some time ago, we all made a to-do about Harry Green working in the Cecil B. De Mille picture for $1 a week. It's a shame to spoil a good story, but Green confidently expects to receive a bonus after the film is released . . . Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl Zanuck will sponsor Col. Roscoe Turner's attempt to beat his own east to west record during the national air races. In return, he'll paint across the plane: "Twentieth Century Pictures. 'The Bowery' Special" . . . Saw Sylvia Sidney and B. P. Schulberg listening to Henry Starr's singing at a popular late spot. B. P. is leaving for Europe soon and he says he will not discover any stars.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Madeline Skelly Foust, who played a leading part in "Another Language," had a sequence in the second act in which she was required to portray a faint. At Monday night's performance at the Willows she actually did swoon at the proper time, and the audience knew it not. She had recovered sufficiently to go on when her cue came in the third act.

The next production of the Stage Guild at the Willows, Oakmont, will be "Honeymoon," to be given Monday and Thursday evenings, July 3 and 6. It concerns the spats and reconciliations of a young couple on a honeymoon in Paris. Elizabeth Drake will be seen in the leading role, and Marjory Macqueen, daughter of the director, Madge Blount Macqueen, will make her debut as a member of the company.

'Gas Gun' Robber Suspect Seized

SCRANTON, Pa., June 28.—(INS.)—Edward Borkowski was arrested today as the gasoline station robber who employed gas to overcome his victim.

He was charged with holding up James O'Donnell, station attendant, shortly before last midnight. O'Donnell refused to turn over his cash and made a lunge for the intruder, who discharged a gas gun twice.

Officers said Barkowski attempted to battle them with his gas gun, but they overpowered him.

Amusing Film In Fulton

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

An entertaining comedy, "Made On Broadway," opened in the Fulton yesterday, two days ahead of customary day for putting new pictures on the screen in that theater. Robert Montgomery, Sally Eilers and Madge Evans are the players of the principal roles in an amusing story, forming a triangle that is different. Miss Evans is Bob's ex-wife, and recipient of alimony, but they remain friendly. So the triangular part of it when Sally comes into the scene has nothing of a sinister nature.

Mr. Montgomery has a very nice comedy talent that finds abundant outlet in his characterization of a big-shot publicity man, who never forgets to turn the spotlight on himself. Miss Eilers' a jobless girl, jumps into the river from a ferry and Montgomery leaps in and saves her. As a boat is taking them ashore he coaches her in a story to tell the reporters, but she "crosses him up" and makes it appear she had rescued him instead of attempting suicide.

Then he trains her himself, hires teachers for her, and, as he says, "makes her" as one makes a mud pie. And for what does he raise her? Answer: To shoot a guy who makes a pass at her. That may sound tragic, but it's all comedy, for, of course, Montgomery has to coach her all over again, with the aid of a lawyer, so her story will stick with the jury.

Bob imagines he is in love with Sally for a while, but one judges by the way he scraps with his ex-wife that he thinks quite a lot of her all the time, and that's the way it proves to be.

Miss Eilers' part is one that does not win sympathy, but she acts it nicely.

Must Aid Church To Get Two Homes

To his cousins, James Colford and Anna Colford, of Monterey street, James W. Adams leaves his house at 1101 Hay street, Wilkinsburg, and a bungalow at Homestead, Fla., on one condition—that they give St. Peter's Catholic Church $1,000. In his will, filed for probate today, the estate was valued at $6,000.

M-G-M Plans Big Year

CULVER CITY, Cal., June 28.—(INS.)—Revealing confidence in the national upturn of business, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio has announced a schedule of 46 feature productions for the coming year, in addition to a number of short subjects and novelties.

Unofficially the cost of the budget was estimated between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 with employment assured 2,500 men and women.

Louis B. Mayer, vice president in charge of production, in announcing the program revealed that expenditures and salaries will be on a plane equal to any past previous year.

Greta Garbo, recently returned from a European trip, will make two pictures during the coming year, and Norma Shearer, who is due to return from abroad in July with her producer-husband, Irving G. Thalberg, will make at least one.

ALL IN A DAY

By Mark Hellinger

The March Of Time.

AT ONE OF THE WINDOWS in a very exclusive Fifth avenue club, from the hours of three until six in the afternoon, there generally sits a dignified, elderly man. Passersby, I suppose, sometimes envy his surroundings, his wealth and his apparent position. They can hardly be expected to know that he is one of the loneliest and unhappiest men in all the world.

In telling his story, it is my privilege to refer to this character as Mr. Theodore Clark. It is also my privilege as an alleged columnist to turn back the pages of time as many years as I wish in the space of a single sentence. Exercising that prerogative, we remove Mr. Clarke from his exclusive club and whisk him back to the cold tenement in which he spent his early life.

Theodore was the fourth child born to his parents and, incidentally, he was the only one of the brood who lived.

The tenement was one of those holes that the reformers take such delight in finding. Poverty lurked in every corner, and there was no attempt to turn the spot into anything that might resemble a home. The cold rooms, the undernourishment and the lack of clothing killed the other three children before they had a fighting chance. And how Theodore Clark managed to grow to manhood is just one of life's little mysteries.

If ever a child was neglected, Theodore was that child. His parents were two of fate's derelict's — fighting, drinking, and hating each other with an ugly intensity. This boy was just an incident in their lives; an incident that poverty and hardship and drink caused them to forget. They were evil people, and sordid, and he can dismiss them at this point without loss to anyone.

Almost as soon as he was able to cry the name of a newspaper, Theodore Clark was earning his own living. Where he slept and what he ate made no difference to his parents—and it made little difference to him. He was learning about life in the bitterest of schools, the University of Poverty.

We dismissed the boy's parents two paragraphs ago, but Theodore wasn't able to dismiss them until he was 14. His father died then and, although the boy hadn't seen either his father or his mother for some three years, he was decent enough to scrape up enough money for a hurried burial.

His mother wasn't there. One of the neighbors told the boy that she had disappeared about a year before. The boy shrugged his shoulders. Never having known anything about a mother, it made no difference to him.

But, as the cheap casket was being lowered into the grave, Theodore Clarke clenched his fists and raised his eyes to heaven.

"I'm gonna get some place," he breathed. "I'm gonna have children of my own some day. And if I ever neglect them the way my father did me, may God strike me dead" . . .

Again employing the columnist's privilege, I skip briefly over the next period of Theodore Clarke's career. The fates were just as kind to him at this point as they had been unkind in his earlier years. When he was 30 he held a responsible position in a Wall street brokerage house. And at the age of 36 he was a member of the firm.

All these years, he had worked incessantly. Pleasure had been something that never entered his mind. And all work and no play had made a dull boy plenty of jack.

But now, he felt, it was time to call something of a halt. He began to take short trips—to Bermuda, to Havana, to Miami—and to enjoy a few of the rewards that sucess had brought him. And it was on one of these trips that he found what he thought was his greatest reward: the woman who was to be his wife.

She was very much of society—too much so for Theodore Clark, I'm afraid. Not that she didn't love him. She unquestionably did. But there was always that little touch of fancied superiority that has wrecked a million ships on the sea of matrimony.

Nevertheless, to repeat the best known of all famous last words, they were married. When Theodore was 40, he was the father of a daughter. When he was 44, he was the father of a son. And never was there a prouder or happier man anywhere in the universe.

In his work on the Street the children were now an added incentive. The education he had missed, they would most certainly have.

The man worked like a demon—and all for his wife and children. He was successful before; now he was sensational. His shrewd investments and quick, successful plunges were the talk of the Exchange. He became a great power, and he was called in and consulted on deals of international consequence.

True, as the years rolled on, he wasn't able to see as much of his wife and children as he desired. It was always a question of a meeting here, a conference there, or a hurried trip to Europe on a financial matter of great consequence.

Then, too, his children were studying at the very finest private schools—and when he was at hove they were often away. But when he was with them he was ardently proud. They were growing up as real blue bloods. And from the basic inferiority complex that had been hammered into him as a child, he saw in them the very thing that he had always wanted to be . .

The news that his wife wished a divorce came as a sudden and complete shock. Theodore Clarke was bewildered and heartbroken, but he was wise enough not to attempt to fight the issue. The thing was arranged as quietly as possible, and announcement of the divorce—while it, of course, made the front pages—was highly dignified. The wife was awarded the custody of the children.

Since that day, Theodore Clark hasn't been of much use to any one. He has no worries of a financial nature, but that means nothing to him. He cannot understand, and it is useless for him to attempt to do so. He knows only that he slaved for his wife and children—only to lose them when he desired them most.

Today, then, Theodore Clark is one of the loneliest and unhappiest men in the world. Hour after hour, he sits at that window in that very exclusive club and envies the passersby who are envying him. And only a few of his intimates know that, a few weeks ago, he talked to his wife for the first time since their divorce.

He talked to her on the telephone—from the club.

"Even if we are divorced," he said pleadingly, "why do you continue to keep the children away from me? Must I have a court order to get them? Why can't I be with my own children?"

His wife's sarcastic laugh struck his ears harshly.

"If it weren't so sad," she replied, "that would be funny. You want to be with your children! If you love them so much, why did you neglect them all your life!" . . .

JUAN PREPARES FOR THRONE

PARIS, June 27.—(AP.)—Juan, the third son of former King Alfonso, of Spain, is expected in Spanish Monarchist circles to resign shortly from the British navy in view of his new obligations as successor to his brother, the former Prince of the Asturias, as heir presumptive to the Spanish throne.

He will study law, the reports say, at the University of Louvain, where his brother Gonzales is now a student.

The former Prince of the Asturias, the eldest son of former King Alfonso, of Spain, renounced his title and lost his rights as heir to the throne by his marriage, last week, to Edelmira Sampedro, a Cuban commoner. Jaime, the second son, who is deaf, in turn renounced his rights in favor of Juan.

LLOYD'S 'GAG' WRITER DIES

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 28.—(AP.)—A writer of gags, which made millions laugh at the pictures of Harold Lloyd, died yesterday after a lingering illness. He was John Grey, 60.

Grey was born in California, but his parents moved to New York when he was 4. He was admitted to the New York bar, but after several years as a lawyer gave it up and became a dramatic actor.

Twenty-two years ago he joined the Vitagraph Company as a writer and later was associated with Mack Sennett and then Tom Ince.

Ten years ago he joined Harold Lloyd and his brilliant wit sparkled in every picture Lloyd made during that period, among them "the Freshman," "Speedy," "Welcome Danger," "Girl Shy," "Feet First" and "Movie Crazy."

Independents Approach Mackrell, McArdle

By MARK SHIELDS

Business and industrial leaders seeking a candidate whom they may harmoniously support in the Republican primary against Mayor John S. Herron have within the past few days conferred with Councilman P. J. McArdle and Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell.

Mr. Shields

So fas as is known, no overtures were made to either directly touching on a candidacy against Mr. Herron, though both McArdle and Mackrell are known to be turning the matter over in their minds.

The discussions with Mackrell and McArdle indicated a realization that the wrong procedure had been adopted when initial overtures were made to Judge Frank P. Patterson, asking that he become the candidate against Herron.

* * *

Patterson Negotiations Without Consultations

All of the negotiations with Patterson were undertaken without consultation with McArdle, Mackrell or former President of Council James F. Malone, who some weeks ago announced entry into the field.

Subsequently Mr. Malone indicated a willingness to discuss the potentialities of other candidates with any group which desired such a meeting, an extremely fair proposition. Those dickering with Judge Patterson, however, put no such interpretation on Mr. Malone's remarks, which was unfortunate.

Had there been prior discussions with Malone, McArdle and Mackrell, then the business group appealing to Judge Patterson would have known without question whether it could definitely promise him a unity of support which is regarded as necessary to success for an independent, or anti-administration candidacy.

* * *

Lack of Harmony Quickly Disclosed

One of the things which first inclined Judge Patterson toward a candidacy was an implied understanding that harmony had been arranged. Very little time was required to disclose that such was not the case, after the story was printed that Patterson had been approached and was sympathetic to the proposal.

Mr. McArdle broke forth with a statement that he couldn't understand what was going on, and that he knew of no approaches toward those who had been active in the independent campaign of 1931, when he was a successful anti-administration candidate for Council.

Mr. Mackrell said nothing, a somewhat eloquent silence.

Judge Patterson then was aware that he had been dealing with a group which, well intentioned, apparently sincere in its desire for better government because of the carte blanche it had offered him in the conduct of a campaign, was not in a position to deliver to his assistance political factors which cannot be overlooked.

* * *

Things Don't Happen That Way in Politics

These business men figured that, Patterson having received an indorsement from them, from the forces which had fought former Mayor Charles H. Kline and had continued the fight against Senator James J. Coyne, would per se become the candidate of all forces out of sympathy with Mayor Herron because of his support by Senator Coyne, or for other reasons.

Things don't happen that way in politics.

The lesson has been learned, a valuable one. It is to the credit of these business forces, most of the participants new to the practicalities of politics, that they learned so quickly.

With Judge Patterson having eliminated himself without reservation, it is expected that the conferences which have been held with McArdle and Mackrell will be renewed. Eventually it should be possible, if harmony is to be reached, for all elements, principals and backers, to sit down about a table, face up all the cards, and go thoroughly and constructively into the situation.

* * *

Each Faction Can Contribute Something

Certainly such a conference should include Mr. Malone. It should include W. P. Witherow, originally mentioned as the candidate of the business group.

Each faction has something to contribute. Any one can become a fly in the ointment, not necessarily through positive opposition, but through a disinclination to energetically enthuse for a movement.

Unless something of this nature is done the field will perhaps become cluttered with candidates. The whole situation is something of a challenge to unselfishness if the men involved sincerely believe the present system of government is bad and must be altered.

Meanwhile, there is no question but what the dissatisfaction with the recent record of Senator Coyne is widespread, discovered in quarters where least expected. This is to the disadvantage of Mayor Herron, who has made no secret of the fact that he welcomed the Senator's aid, and in view of the accepted view that the Senator is the Mayor's chief political backer.

200 Changes Being Made on Each Of County's 1,100 Voting Machines

35 Corrected Daily In Job to Cost $125,000

Mass production—or rather mass correction—is the latest distinction for Allegheny County's 1,100 new and practically unused vote machines. A complete assembly line is operating full time now with 125 mechanics doing a $125,000 repair job on the machines.

The machines cost $1,200,000 in the first place, but there are something like 200 changes and adjustments being made to each of them at the Thomas Spacing Machine Company, Glenshaw.

Thirty-five machines enter the front of the factory each morning, and when they are trucked back to their storage places at the end of the day they have undergone a complete face-lifting operation, according to Albert Lauer, a custodian of the county Bureau of Elections.

Every 15 minutes the machines are moved to a new position on the assembly line, that reminds one of the production line in an automobile factory. And at every step some new gadget is fastened on or something else is taken off.

The last of the vote machines will leave the assembly line August 1, according to Lauer, and they should be in "perfect shape," he said, because of a rigid inspection system in force. Every process in repairing them is double checked by county and factory inspectors.

Some of the things the County Commissioners are having fixed on the machines are a new bell that rings every time a ballot is cast, "star wheels" to permit voting a straight ballot, and an electric light to illuminate the public counter showing number of votes cast.

All machines are now being equipped with a new attachment intended to prevent jamming and locking, either intentional or accidental.

FLOOD LEVELS CITY IN CHINA

HANKOW, China, June 28.—(AP.)—The rapidly changing moods of the Yangtze yesterday favored valley residents and the mighty river recorded a sudden fall of six inches, thereby allaying fears of further destructive floods.

In Eastern Kweichow Province, however, a cloudburst resulted in the destruction of Tungjen, with a great loss of life. Meager reports said the flood, which supposedly occurred June 20, swept through the Mayan River valley, destroying scores of villages. The death roll was set at more than 2,000.

The American Evangelical Mission Hospital at Tungjen, whose headquarters are in Cleveland, was said to have been partly destroyed. The disaster was called the worst in 30 years.

U. S. Is Moving Ahead, Defying World Gravity

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Looks like America is going right ahead. That's defying the laws of international gravity.

The circumference of business is three times its optimistic diameter. Which violates the theory of pessimistic European centrifugal force.

Our internal revenue is booming. Proving that water will seek its own level if beer doesn't get there first.

Prices of home-made commodities are rising. A very neat bit of commercial levitation.

The capillary attraction of depression has lost its power. The industrial magnet is pulling the other way.

COUNTY SLEUTH ACCUSES ZIEFEL

Used Payrollers on Private Contract, Riordan Says

William H. Ziefel, former chief clerk of the County Commissioners, sent Henry Kunkle, a county employe, to remodel the Parker's Landing (Pa.), home of the mother of Mrs. Ruth Williams, of the Fairfax Hotel, according to a report by Leo A. Riordan, chief county investigator.

Mrs. Williams was for eight years an employe in the Allegheny County transcribing room. Regarding the alleged use of county labor at Parkers Landing, she said today:

"I don't know anything at all about it."

Ziefel recently was adjudged guilty by Judge Sylvester Snee on a charge of conspiracy to divert county gasoline to his own use.

Riordan said he would present his report of the Parkers Landing incident to commissioners today.

The work was done during June and November, 1930 according to the report, in remodeling and painting the home of Mrs. Margaret McLaughlin, mother of Mrs. Williams. Kunkle and three other men did the work with materials purchased by Kunkle, it is stated.

Mrs. McLaughlin stated, according to the report, that the men were paid by Mrs. Williams, and that their services were obtained, so far as she knew, through Ziefel.

County payroll records, according to Riordan, show that in June, 1930, Kunkle drew $300 from the county, and in November of the same year, $288, during the time he was alleged to be at work at the McLaughlin home.

Kunkle was discharged from his position in county road maintenance division No. 5 this spring, according to Riordan. Kunkle also was involved in the investigation regarding use of county materials in private homes, Riordan said.

Fisher said he saw the man lying in the road and swerved the automobile he was driving to avoid striking him. The automobile was found overturned nearby. Fisher denied he struck Former.

SEEKING WORK ON CANOE TRIP

Nosing down the muddy reaches of the Ohio, "The Spirit of Pittsburgh," 18-foot canoe, today is carrying two modern argonauts in quest — not of adventure — but work.

No whistles blew, but a small crowd of friends called good luck from the pier of the McKees Rocks Swimming and Boat Club as Bill Maybury, 21, of 1314 Vine street, and Jack McCagh, 23, of 323 Russellwood avenue, McKees Rocks, pushed out for a 3,200-mile journey.

Brownsville, Tex., to be reached by way of the Gulf with paddles and a 15-foot sail, was, they said, the destination of the "Spirit of Pittsburgh."

There the canoe would be traded, sold or given away. And from there the boys said they would push on to regions unknown, looking for work, if they hadn't found it yet.

Bill, who graduated from McKees Rocks High School this year, says he has worked at many trades, been in all the 48 states and around outside them as a sailor. Jack formerly did railroad work.

Schools represented were the Homewood, Westinghouse High, Baxter Junior High, Belmar, Brushton, Crescent, Bennett, Holy Rosary grade and high, Mother of Good Council and Our Lady of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

The committee in charge consists of Dick Briney, general chairman; Frank E. Shaughnessy, co-chairman; F. J. Halferty, William M. Crawford, Joseph R. Robinson, John A. Blair, A. J. Gosser, G. L. Workmaster, William L. Ross, John A. Schnabel, D. H. McClelland, Morris Browdy and J. Scott Morgan.

THRONGS HERE FOR SPECIAL SERVICES

2 Pittsburgh District Pastors Mentioned For Moderator

The United Presbyterian Church today began the celebration of its seventy-fifth anniversary in Pittsburgh, the city of its birth.

Anniversary services will be held nightly in Syria Mosque, beginning tonight and culminating Sunday. The conference of the General Assembly opened this afternoon in the First United Presbyterian Church, Fifth avenue and Thackeray street, Oakland.

DR. CLELAND SPEAKER

Hundreds of ministers, laymen and missionaries from all parts of the world were gathering, when the moderator, the Rev. Dr. Charles S. Cleland, of Philadelphia, made the opening address at the anniversary services this afternoon.

Two Pittsburgh district ministers were being mentioned for the office of moderator. Four possibilities have been mentioned. The local ministers were the Rev. Dr. Henry W. Temple, of Washington, Pa., a former congressman; and the Rev. Dr. C. D. Fulton, Beaver. The others were the Rev. Dr. W. P. Aikin, of Omaha, formerly of Canonsburg, and the Rev. Dr. W. B. Anderson, secretary of the foreign board.

Other celebrations include the fortieth anniversary meetings of the Young Peoples Christian Union in the Bellefield Presbyterian Church and the fiftieth annual meeting of the Women's General Missionary Society in the First United Presbyterian Church, North Side.

The denomination was founded in Pittsburgh in 1858 in a convention in Old City Hall, site of the present market house. It came into being through the merger of the Associate and Associate Reformed churches, whose total membership at that time was 55,547. At present the denomination includes 243,000.

MASS MEETING SET

The Rev. Dr. J. A. Alexander, of Pittsburgh, will preside at the anniversary mass meeting to be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock at Syria Mosque. The Rev. W. P. Aikin, of Omaha, and the Rev. W. E. McCulloch, of Los Angeles, will speak.

Last night the conference was addressed by the Rev. Dr. Robert E. Speer, general secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, on "The Task of the Church."

The closing celebration Sunday night will be addressed by the Rev. S. E. Irvine, of New Castle, and the Rev. S. C. Gamble, of Butler.

The Rev. Dr. George William Brown, of New York, general secretary of the American Bible Society, will address the assembly tomorrow at 11 a. m. In 1932 the society distributed more than 8,000,000 copies of the Bible in 180 languages.

The task of the coming church is to eliminate spiritual illiteracy, Dr. Robert E. Speer, told delegates.

He said:

"More than twenty-five million young people are deficient in religious education. During the World War it was found that British and American soldiers were 80 per cent illiterate on religious subjects."

He declared the church should be the witness to the truth of Christian Gospel, the source and custodian of sacred ideals and the standard of righteousness.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 28.

Had lunch yesterday at the studio with Udet, the greatest living German ace, with 63 planes to his credit, a marvelous stunt flier, and Lieut. Falconi, Mussolini's crack acrobatic ace flier, a young fellow just twenty-five. Both speak English. A couple of fine young fellows. Saturday we see these babies do their stuff, along with all our crack boys.

Will Rogers

During the war we wouldn't let our boys have parachutes, for somebody "decided they wasn't safe." The latter part of the war, Germany had 'chutes, and Udet had had his only eleven days, when his plane was shot down. Had there been no 'chute, there would have been no Udet today.

It makes you sick when you think of the boys we might have saved. But they was afraid maybe one of the 'chutes wouldn't open.

Yours, WILL.

HEAD MACHADO KILLER TAKES 40 LIVES

Karl Decker, noted American journalist, who has just returned from a trip through insurgent territory of Cuba, tells in this article some of the things he learned at first hand in his journey through the provinces.

By KARL DECKER
Newspaperman and Soldier of Fortune.

Maj. Arsenio Ortiz, the most cruel of Machado's military killers, has left Cuba, but his record of 40 murders will remain a black blot on the history of the island for generations. Yet, Ortiz merely acted under Machado's orders and Machado is known to have approved of every act committed by him.

Ortiz is a square-jawed, squat, bulky mulatto, and he carried terror with him as a cloud that spread for miles in all directions.

SAFE FROM KILLERS

Time after time attempts were made to kill him. But Otiz was a careful soldier and he was never out in front. Wherever he went he was protected. His duty was merely to kill. He killed the utterly defenseless and the innocent. He was sent into Santa Clara and Camaguey provinces after the outbreak in that section on May 18 and 19, and while never in an engagement himself and while his forces never encountered an insurgent band, scores of murders were committed and in each case the victim was reported as a rebel.

It is impossible for one who has not been in Central Cuba to comprehend the terror Ortiz inspired. The news that he had entered a town spread before him like a prairie fire and men who had reason to believe they were suspected of anti-Machado sentiments slipped away and without arms or mounts began hunting for an insurgent band they could join. They were safer as insurgents than they would have been in the towns and villages with Ortiz near them.

INFAMOUS AIDES

Working with Ortiz were officers of the national army and rural guard who were only less infamous because it was impossible to exceed Ortiz. The names of Lieuts. Arias, Acosta, Nordelo and Llanes are more bitterly hated in Central Cuba than that of Gen. Weyler 35 years ago.

Wherever Ortiz and these fellow workers traveled there was constant, senseless slaughter.

Between the towns of Florencia and Lowrey a poverty stricken Jamaican was thrown off a passenger train because he had no ticket and no money. As the train passed on Ortiz and his band of rurales rode out from a by-trail and, without investigation of any sort—without a challenge to the helpless, unarmed Jamaican—shot him down and then stuck a shotgun, taken from a guajiro they had killed that morning, under the dead body and reported another insurgent killed.

One corporal killed a laborer, unarmed, helpless and harmless, who was tramping along a country road, and the report of another insurgent killed placed the corporal's name first on the list for promotion to a sergeantcy. Thereafter, every corporal was on the hunt for a helpless guajiro to kill in order to achieve promotion. The murder of the two youths—Cervantes, in Guadalupe, and Venegas, in Mayuba—was sheer slaughter as was the murder of the three guardias Jurados, in Jatibonico.

FINAL OUTRAGE

These were mill guards, paid by the mill owner, but sworn in as government soldiers. There were four of them on duty and on May 18 they were surprised and overpowered by an insurgent band. One, the lucky one, elected to go on with the insurgents as one of their band. The others stuck to their jobs, but their rifles and cartridge belts were taken from them.

Then came Maj. Ortiz. There were no charges made against the three men and there was no trial. Ortiz took them into the woods and left them doing a "a Guasima dance."

It was the unjustified hanging of these three men that caused Ambassador Welles to force Machado to recall Ortiz to Havana.

Ortiz and his men were guilty of 40 murders of record before Ortiz was recalled and not one of the men killed was a known insurgent.

ATTACK VICTIM DIES; IDENTITY SOUGHT

The body of the man found unconscious near the railroad tracks at Brilliant Cutoff yesterday lay unidentified in the county morgue today as police sought to unravel the mystery.

Death was due to inter-cranial hemorrhages, an autopsy by the Coroner's physician revealed. Although his head was injured badly and one side of his face was marked, apparently by a beating, Homicide Lieut. Frank Ferris scouted the theory that the man was a gangster's "ride" victim.

Ferris' detectives yesterday expressed the opinion that the man was probably beaten and left on the tracks to be mangled beyond identification, and based their theory on the finding of footprints and automobile tracks directly below the track bed.

The man was found clad only in underwear and shoes, by the crew of a shifting engine, and died after being taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital.

HEARING IN FAKE CASH CHARGE

Robert P. Kerrick, 34, alias Hobart W. Henderson, of Brooklyn, will be arraigned Saturday before the United States commissioner on a charge of possessing 48 counterfeit $5 notes. Twenty-four of the bogus bills were said to have been found on him when arrested Monday night by police on a charge of drunkenness. The same number of fake bills were said to have been found in his room in an Arlington avenue house.

He was turned over to United States Secret Service operatives and committed to jail in default of $2,500 bond pending the hearing.

He remembered Albert Klein, 30, of 2710 Niles street, who, according to a police report, paid a $2 fine in South Side Police Court on a drunkenness charge yesterday, had worn his shirt the same way. O'Donnell went to the Klein home. Relatives identified the victim at the hospital.

PALS SCORNED BY WIDOW OF COLL

By DOROTHY ROE
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Lottie Kreisburger Coll, a gangster's widow who carries her own gun, sneered at the weakness of her two male pals as she sat in Bronx County Jail for women today, indicted for murder in the first degree.

She was arraigned and indicted within 15 minutes yesterday, together with her co-defendants, Albert Guarino, alias Thomas Pace, and Joseph Ventre, a couple of Italian youths who confessed to a string of drugstore holdups, as well as the murder of 21-year-old Mollie Schwartz.

JEERS AT PALS

The Lottie Coll who sobbed her grief last year when the bullet-riddled body of her gangster husband, Vincent Coll, "mad dog of the underworld," was lifted from a drugstore telephone booth, jeered at her covering pals in court when told they had confessed. She said:

"That was pretty rotten."

The once-comely Lottie then lowered her eyes and quietly followed her attendants from the courtroom.

A still striking figure in a summery blue-and-white checked frock, white linen hat and white shoes, she made just one request of the police—to return to her the picture of the slain Vincent Coll found in her handbag at the time of her arrest several days ago, when she, Pace and Ventre were seized in a midtown hotel room, charged with a string of petty holdups in the Bronx.

KILLING ACCIDENT

The murder of Mollie Schwartz, according to the police account of the confessions of Pace and Ventre, occurred accidentally when the gunmen fired on an intended robbery victim, Isidor Morch, sidewalk jeweler of the Bronx.

Lottie, her pals said, had urged them to give up this "five-and-ten-cent racket" and "stick up a big shot." So they selected the sidewalk jeweler, known to carry large amounts of cash and diamonds.

Shortly after Lottie and her two confederates were arraigned, indicted and locked in separate cells, Morch was held in $25,000 bail as a material witness and jailed at his own request, to insure his safety.

Cordons of special police surrounded the jail today to guard against a surprise move from the pals of the jailed trio.

LOTTIE WEEPS

But Lottie, with the picture of her dead gangster husband propped up in her cell, wept as she was interviewed by her lawyer, H. Bennett Saloman. And as she wept she sang the praises of Vincent Coll, known to police as the "Harlem Baby Killer."

Coll was of sterner stuff than the two trembling youths who broke under police questioning. Scorn of her new pals was written large on Lottie's handsome features as she cried:

"If Vincent Coll were living things would be different. He's the only man I ever loved, and I'll keep on loving him, no matter what happens."

Lottie, according to her lawyer, charges a frame-up.

FLOOD CONTROL PLAN BACKED IN CAPITAL

The Pennsylvania Democratic organization will support the plans for flood control reservoirs on the upper Allegheny and Monongahela rivers, according to an announcement made today in Washington by Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic leader.

The organization will use its good offices with the administration in speeding an allocation of funds for the $60,000,000 project, Guffey announced.

This followed a conference of Chamber of Commerce officials from Pittsburgh and a number of West Virginia cities with officials of the United States Department of Commerce at Washington.

It was pointed out that the surveys have been made, that the engineering plans are immediately available and that 60 per cent of the entire expenditure would be for labor. With the final approval from the United States engineers the work could be started without delay. The project would be handled directly by the federal authorities and would not come under the jurisdiction of a state public works administrator.

Thomas A. Dunn, national councillor for Pittsburgh in the United States Chamber of Commerce, presided, and John L. Kirkpatrick, of the Department of Commerce, explained the course of procedure under the National Recovery Act.

Indorsement of the Flood Commission's plan was set forth in resolutions presented by a committee composed of Frank C. Harper, Pittsburgh, chairman; H. O. Cole, Morgantown, and R. W. Holcombe, Wheeling. Members of the West Virginia delegation declared they would continue the campaign in their own state and at the same time further support is expected from Ohio cities between the Pennsylvania boundary line and Cincinnati.

CITY MAY ASK WABASH DEAL BE DROPPED

A resolution asking the County Commissioners to abandon the Wabash tunnel project and assist the city in financing other public improvements will come up for action in Council next Tuesday.

The resolution came before Council's finance committee yesterday afternoon, but was tabled after three councilmen voted for and three against passage.

Favoring the resolution were P. J. McArdle, Robert Garland and Charles H. Anderson. W. Y. English, George S. Oliver and Frank L. Duggan were opposed.

English urged that Council meet with County Commissioners and discuss the Wabash project before taking action.

McArdle and Anderson held that the cost would be a hardship on city taxpayers and that the tunnel would serve only a limited and undeveloped territory. McArdle said the eyes of the County Commissioners were "too often directed to a small part of the county."

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

The granddaughter of one of Pittsburgh's and Sewickley's social leaders, Mrs. James B. Oliver, of Sewickley was married today in Rome.

She is Maria Dusmet, daughter of Mrs. Oliver's son-in-law and daughter, the Marchese and Marchesa Dusmet de Smours. According to a cable from Rome, she became the bride today of Duke Filippo Lante Della Rovere in St. Teresa's Church, Rome.

Mrs. Oliver went abroad late this spring with her granddaughter, Mrs. David F. Barry, Jr., and Mrs. Barry's husband, Maj. Barry, to attend the wedding.

The past summer the Marchese and Marchesa spent in Sewickley as the guests of her mother and her sister, Mrs. William J. Crittenden. * * *

Outdoor Concert

Pittsburgh, as to the manner ner born, turned continental last night at the opening of the Victor Saudek outdoor concert series on the cool, spacious, tree-enclosed Hotel Schenley lawn.

Folks sat at small tables arranged about the lawn and on the terrace, chatted with friends, had a cigaret and beer or lemonade or just plain water.

Informal Affair

For such an informal affair, of course no one appeared in formal evening clothes, but the audience looked most attractive. Women chose simple gowns of organza and flowered chiffon or linen lace. And many wore cool crepe ensembles and cool-looking pique or straw hats.

Many of the most faithful supporters of Pittsburgh music were there—as one might expect. At one of the tables I saw Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., who may be counted on to support any new musical venture.

She looked most attractive in a gown of white chiffon, a long black chiffon coat, with full, loose sleeves, and a small black straw hat, trimmed in white. With Mrs. Thaw was Miss Coral Quay in flowered chiffon.

The William Maclay Halls were there—Mrs. Hall is president of the Pittsburgh Symphony Society. She wore a beige and brown figured chiffon gown.

Patrons Of Music

At another table were Mrs. William Reed Thompson and Dean Thyrsa Amos, of the University of Pittsburgh. I had a glimpse of Mrs. H. Allen Machesney in black and white polka-dotted chiffon.

Representing Pittsburgh artists were Mrs. Mildred Flovd Schmertz—Mrs. Robert Watson Schmertz, in private life, and William R. Shulgold. Mrs. Schmertz wore a pink lace dress and a white jacket with pagoda sleeves.

Others I noticed in the throng were Mrs. Edward O. Taber, Mrs. Victor Saudek, in brown flowered chiffon; Mrs. William E. Flaccus, in black and white figured chiffon; Mrs. W. W. Decker, in an all-white costume; Mrs. A. G. Holmes, Mrs. Chester B. Storey and Mrs. David V. Murdoch, in yellow and brown chiffon.

Mrs. Sidney Blackmer was in blue crepe with a middy collar, cut in deep points in back, and Mrs. Ferdinand Weil was in beige, printed with a small henna motif. Tiny cartridge pleats distinguished the sleeves.

Among the aides I saw distributing programs were Jane Sloan, Joan Diehl, Bettie Guiler and Harriet Fickes. Jane chose a frock having a black crepe skirt, a white bodice cut wide over the shoulders, and a wide girdle of royal blue. Joan Diehl and Harriet wore flowered crepe dresses, and Bettie Guiler chose ashes of roses crepe with a jacket having lace and crepe puffed sleeves.

"Franklin Farms," the magnificent Sewickley Heights estate of the W. C. Robinsons, was the scene yesterday afternoon of the debut of their young daughter, Althea, at a tea from 4 until 6 o'clock. And in the evening there was a dinner-dance for her in her home for the younger set.

The bud received in the large hallway of the home, and then the guests strolled about in the lovely garden, greeting friends.

Althea's brunette coloring was enhanced by her frock of pink organza. Her bouquet was of coral-colored African daisies and white bouvardia. Mrs. Robinson chose green organza, and her older daughter, Mary Franklin Robinson, appeared in deep pink organza and carried pink African daisies and orchid delphinium.

Charming Debutante

The Robinson home was decorated with colorful garden flowers as were the tea tables. Guests here for the party were Nancy Tileston, of Columbus, O.; Charles Nichols, of West Orange, N. J.; John Winslow, of Punxsutawney, Pa., and John Overall, of St. Louis, Mo.

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

The orchestra—which motored down from New York—playing at the debut tea and dinner-dance given Monday at the Pittsburgh Golf Club for Alexandra Mellon Grange, also played at Althea Robinson's tea and dinner-dance yesterday at Franklin Farms, Sewickley Heights.

And the same orchestra played here just a few years ago at the twentieth wedding anniversary of the George S. Olivers.

The orchestra was to have played at a dance at the Golf Club for their daughter, Laura, this past winter. But the depression came along, and the dance for Laura became a home tea.

Mrs. George S. Hasbrouck, of Berwyn, Pa., daughter of James Ross Mellon, and mother of debutante Alexandra Mellon Grange, wore as her only ornament at her daughter's tea twisted strands of small white beads.

Of course the necklace comes under the head of costume jewelry. Which reminds me that few smart women nowadays wear valuable jewelry made of precious stones.

Something I never realized before—that brides in all their glory of white satin and tulle and old lace veils wear the same colored stockings they'd wear on the street—of course they don't show at all.

White stockings, then, even for brides, are passe.

Speaking of brides, I'm reminded of a few faces I always see among the wedding guests. Mrs. Albert Pancoast never misses a wedding.

And petite Miss Neil Stewart, who always describes herself as spinster, is another lover of weddings. Saw her at the Jenkins-Rhea wedding with Mrs. William Zang.

Music-student Margret Brill, home from the Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia, is sporting the tiniest of pert fabric diminutives of the beret.

Joan Diehl, here visiting Jane Sloan from her San Francisco home—she's a former Pittsburgher — is a blithe young woman. She always looks as though she'd just heard something both amusing and exciting.

Honorable mention to the Pittsburgh Golf Club: The window boxes lining the long, open terrace are flaunting brilliant masses of pink and red and white petunias—perfectly stunning against the lofty white pillars and walls of the club.

Scholarship Party Of Southern Club Gala Affair

It was a gala and beautiful affair that the Southern Club gave yesterday at the home of Mrs. J. Audley Pierce in McKeesport boulevard. More than 250 persons attended the garden party-scholarship benefit and the majority of these, after hearing the program and having tea at Mrs. Pierce's home, visited Mrs. F. T. Nason's lovely gardens nearby.

Mrs. Pierce and the benefit committee, including the new president, Mrs. D. B. Frampton, received together, the hostess wearing flesh-colored lace, and Mrs. Frampton poker-chip dotted organdie in black and white with a large black hat. Mrs William O'Lee was in white crepe, Mrs. Otto G. Richter dark blue chiffon and Mrs. J. S. Mack in flowered chiffon. The young aides were lovely in organdies and other sheer summer materials. Nancy Metcalfe in ruffled chartreuse organdie with a horsehair braid hat to match with touches of green.

Elisa Pierce had on gray organdie with a bright red velvet sash. Frances Frampton's gown was a striking model of flowered crepe and Mary Bell Vilsack wore turquoise embroidered organdie with a white hat. Grey Powell's caped frock was of white organdie which she wore with a red hat; Helen Moss' was white crepe and a white hat and Margaret Mears was in pink organdie. Mrs. Ralph McDonald, of Roanoke, Va., who is visiting her aunt, Mrs. James McFall, and is, by the way, the club's youngest member, had on a charming frock of pale blue mousseline de soie with touches of pink.

Two short but charming musical programs were given, Miss Janet McMillan singing and Miss Mary Redmond contributing violin solos, both accompanied by Mrs. Beulah Taylor Marston. Mrs. Frampton and Mrs. Calvin McAteer, in turquoise lace, presided at the tea table.

Festival of Song Will Entertain Welsh Club

Mrs. Frank Van Winkle will entertain the Women's Welsh Club of Pittsburgh at a twilight song festival at her home, Grimes street, Sewickley, on Friday evening.

Assembly singing will be a feature of the affair and two soloists will contribute to the program. The club members will motor to Sewickley for the event and those having automobiles available are asked to communicate with Mrs. J. Harry Jones, Gladstone road, the president.

The meeting of the club scheduled for Monday night has been postponed until July 10.

MUSIC

Lawn Concert

PROGRAM

Overture—Carneval ..... Dvorak
Symphony No. 8—Allegretto ..... Beethoven
Fantasy—Lohengrin ..... Wagner
Dalce from the Vienna Woods ..... Strauss
Music in the Air ..... Kern
Boiero ..... Ravel
Selections from "The Student Prince" ..... Romberg
Rhapsody No. 1 in F Minor ..... Liszt

The Schenley lawn concerts were revived last night under most auspicious conditions. Almost a thousand persons came in their best mood to patronize an event that was so popular years ago. Now that some of Roosevelt's principles for personal freedom have become effective a dull summer evening has been transformed for Pittsburghers into a delightful rendezvous.

Mr. Lissfelt

Victor Saudek is conducting and made a program that must have pleased everyone. It was a question just how 35 players might create music that could be heard, but even the "Lohengrin" fantasy and the Liszt Rhapsody sounded well. There is surprisingly little interference from street noises, although a shell would improve the acoustics enormously for those sitting in the wings.

That the audience was pleased was proven by the many encores called from the orchestra. Each extra was some popular well-chosen number which kept the program within a most comfortable time limit. It was really a most happy summer concert.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

BIRKOFER, BRUBAKER RATED SURE BETS

THAT THE PIRATES have two of the best prospects in the minor leagues in Pitcher Ralph Birkofer and Third Baseman Bill Brubaker at Toronto is the expert opinion given by a scout connected with another major league club, who was impressed by the showing of the optioned Buccaneers while he was making a general survey of the International loop. The scout is particularly enthusiastic about Birkofer. He reports that the left-hander has a great fast ball and a fine curve, that his control is improving from game to game, and that his slow ball, though not yet perfect and needing to be developed, eventually will be a strong part of an excellent slab equipment.

Ralph Birkofer

Brubaker, the observer says, still is green, but is coming along nicely. The young third sacker was discouraged for a time because he was not hitting, and when the fans began to ride him it got under his skin and he could not get started. Manager Dan Howley took him out of the lineup for a spell to give him a rest, but Bill is back on the job now and looking better every day. The opinion is expressed that the razzing experience will do Brubaker a world of good, as every player has to go through it, and it has come to be looked on as a most essential part of any youngster's test. The way Brubaker came back after it proved his courage and convinced the scout that he is a future major league star. "Brubaker is just the kind of player I'd like to run across," the scout said. "If I could find another like him I'd call my year a success. The Pirates are lucky to own a pair like Birkofer and Brubaker. Neither can miss, in my opinion."

Fitting right in with this scout's views, unbiased because he is working for another major league club, is the fact that while discussing the two Pittsburgh-owned youngsters with some other baseball friends recently, Manager Howley gave exactly the same size-up in every detail. When two baseball minds, trained to find flaws and working from opposite angles, agree on a matter of this kind without having consulted each other, they're generally right.

THE GIANTS HAVE a trick bat that plays a regular part in their games, though it never goes to the plate. It's a hickory stick, weighted with lead at the business end, and registers seven pounds on the scales. It takes the place of the two or three extra bats you generally see a player swinging before he steps into the batter's box.

The object of this practice, of course, is to make a single bat feel light when the hitter faces the pitcher. Bill Terry's men get the same results by using the weighted bludgeon in their preliminary swinging. Johnny Vergez, in particular, insists that it has helped him get more power in his swings while at the plate.

FANS IN PHILADELPHIA have no expectations that Fritz Knothe will fill the gap at third base that resulted from the trading of Pinky Whitney, but they see lots of promise in Wes Schulmerich, who has succeeded Hal Lee in the outfield.

Schulmerich is doing plenty of execution at the plate and is pounding the ball against the fences. He is showing surprising speed on the bases, too. Twice in recent games he scored from first base on doubles that were fielded rapidly by the opposing gardeners.

THOUGH HE HASN'T been back with the Reds very long since his recovery from an attack of pneumonia, Donie Bush has seen enough to make him view the Cards as the probable pennant winners in the National League. "That ball club's hot," said Donie, "running out everything, and with an infield that's ablaze with Martin, Durocher and Frisch burning themselves up alive to win. Collins is doing a fine job in Bottomley's place, and Jimmy Wilson is handling the pitchers smartly. The Cubs are getting the pitching, but no hitting, and the Pirates don't look to have the pitchers to stand up. That's the way it is with the ordinary ball club—when the pitchers go well the team isn't hitting, and when the batting wakes up the pitching turns sour. I suppose the mark of a good ball club is to get the two to dovetail. Or to win on light hitting."

Joe McCarthy

REPORTS THAT A new deal on the Yankees had been demanded by Owner Jacob Ruppert brought an emphatic denial from club headquarters. Joe McCarthy is being given a free hand, it is insisted, and neither Ruppert nor Ed Barrow is trying to tell him what to do. The benching of Babe Ruth was McCarthy's own decision.

The making of any changes that may be deemed advisable to put the club on the high road again is entirely up to the manager, according to word from the front office. "Col. Ruppert has not communicated with McCarthy since the Yankees went West, and I have called Joe on the telephone only twice, both times on offers of new players," Barrow said. "McCarthy is the absolute boss."

WITH THE BRITISH amateur championship going to the 55-year-old Hon. Michael Scott, and old Abe Mitchell causing the defeat of the United States team in the Ryder Cup matches yesterday by a big upset in which he won 13 out of 14 consecutive holes, the ancient wheeze about youth's being served appears hardly to apply to golf.

It seems not to be in the cards for the American Ryder Cup team to win abroad. But neither does the British team ever win in this country. Five meetings since the international trophy was first played for in 1926 have seen the home golfers win every time. They might save time and travel by awarding the cup biennially to the country in which the matches are scheduled.

IN THE REPORT of the Research Committee appointed under the Hoover administration three years ago to make appraisal of the nation's changing life, there are some interesting statistics on golf gathered by Dr. Jesse F. Steiner. In 1910, there were only 24 public courses in the United States. In 1931 there were 543 maintained by municipalities in 46 states. There were 743 private and public courses in 1916. Seven years later there were 1,003, and in 1923 the number had leaped to 5,856. The value of golf equipment manufactured in 1929 was $21,067,216.

THE LAND USED for golf courses approximates 500,000 acres, the estimated value of which is $850,000,000. About 90 per cent of the courses are owned by private clubs. Two years ago there were not enough public and semi-public courses to accommodate those who wanted to play golf and could afford membership in a club.

In 1916 there were four states that had no courses, 16 states with fewer than five each, 28 states with fewer than 10 each, and only one with as many as 100. In 1930 there was only one state with fewer than 10 courses. Eighteen states had from 100 to 400.

DR. ALEXANDER ALEKHINE, world chess champion, will sail from Paris this week for the United States, prepared to go through with the record-breaking exhibition of blindfold play in Chicago on July 15, in which the Franco-Russian master will meet 32 opponents, six more than he met in a similar exhibition in New York in 1924.

Joe Jacobs

Dr. Alekhine also will take a part in a game of living chess in Chicago on July 9, in which the pieces will be portrayed by living persons in medieval costumes on a chessboard 68 feet square.

DEFINITE INFORMATION IS expected to be forthcoming soon after the Sharkey-Carnera fight tomorrow night on the report that Joe Jacobs is to supplant Jimmy Johnston as boxing boss for the Madison Square Garden Corporation in New York. Garden officials have denied the rumor, but a man who carries much weight in the Corporation councils is known to have discussed terms with Jacobs, and another conference is scheduled for this week. The financial success of the Baer-Schmeling fight, conceived by Jacobs, is said to have sealed Johnston's fate. Jimmy is blamed for alienating Schmeling and Jacobs, and the Garden chief figure that if Schmeling had met Sharkey under their auspices, instead of fighting Baer under Jack Dempsey's promotion, the gate would have been in excess of $400,000

KISKI GOLFERS WIN TEAM LAURELS

GREENWICH, Conn., June 28.—(AP.)—Morris Nee, 17, of Washington, D. C., a student at Georgetown Prep, won the qualifying medal of the twenty-second eastern interscholastic golf tournament on the Greenwich Country Club course yesterday with a card of 155 for the 36 holes.

Playing steady golf, Nee captured the medal, although his 79 was bettered by Alec Gerard, of Peddie, who qualified with a card of 156.

Sidney Carson, of Kiski, Saltsburg, Pa., leader of the field Monday with his 73, trailed with an 85, which put him in sixth place.

Kiski School led in the team awards with a total of 642. Georgetown Prep was second with 659; Choate School, third, with 665, and Lawrenceville, last year's victor, fourth, with 668.

Match play gets under way today.

Texans Survive College Net Play

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 28.—(AP.)—A University of Texas quartet was the only contingent intact today as the forty-ninth National Intercollegiate Tennis championships entered the fourth round.

Today, however, saw the four—Karl Kamrath, Martin Buxby, of Miami, Fla.; Capt. Sterling Williams and Hal Surface, of Kansas City—facing the most serious threat to their solidarity.

Although Kamrath, seeded second, and Buxby, seeded fourth, were favored to triumph, respectively, over Bill Reese, of Georgia Tech and Fred Roll, Pennsylvania, their teammates faced seemingly greater hurdles. Surface was to take on Wilmer Hines, North Carolina ace, who is seeded eighth, while Williams faced Joe Coughlin, of Stanford.

Coughlin's 54-game set yesterday with Egbert Miles, of Yale, was a new record for major tournaments.

WHITNEY, LEE ADD BALANCE TO CLUB

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

With Independence Day chasing prosperity around the corner, it becomes apparent that Willie McKechnie, of Wilkinsburg, is getting ready to assert himself on his right as a free-bo[ot] American as well as a "durn" good major league pilot. If you will glance at the club standing today you will note that Wilkinsburg Bill has his Braves within one and one-half games of the first division.

McKechnie knew what he was about when he lured Pinkey Whitney and Hal Lee away from the Phearless Phils, who do not appear to have any definite terminal in the present race. Since Pinkey and Hal landed at the home of the cod and baked beans the Braves have been acting up like a flag contender.

At the present time, Skipper Bill has a balanced ball club, including plenty of strength in the important battery points. Leo Mangum, who blanked the classy Redbirds yesterday, was a Pirate rookie almost 10 years ago. He has wandered around the country in the interim, but apparently has "arrived."

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

CLEVELAND, June 28.—After all, folks, a home run is a home run. And when you sock one into the stands or over the fence, you don't need a squeeze play or any other strategy to bring the run in. And that is just why the Yankees are sitting so sweet and pretty around the top in this pennant race.

Nick Altrock

If you will delve into the folklore of our national pastime, you will discover that three employes of Col. Ruppert are liable to bopp a grand slam over the barbed wire entanglements at any minute, without previous notice. And those employes are yclept Ruth, Gehrig and Lazzeri.

And, my friends, although the hour is late and there are other speakers to follow, I can't refrain from telling this enthusiastic and intelligent gathering that if it wasn't for Ruth - Gehrig - Lazzeri homers, our noble Washington club would be leading the American loop by one mile, 18 yards and 3½ inches. I thank you.

U. S. Tennis Aces Sail for Europe

NEW YORK, June 28.—(AP.)—Three members of the American Davis Cup tennis team, George Lott, Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, sail tonight on the Bremen for England.

They will join the fourth member of the team, Ellsworth Vines, in London and then proceed to Auteuil, France, for the inter-zone finals and, if successful, for the challenge round against France July 28-29-30. Vines, national champion, already is in England and now is defending his British title at Wimbledon.

Horseshoe Champion In Exhibition Here

SECOND DIVISION CLUBS BOTHER LEADERS

CARDS FALTER IN PURSUIT OF GIANTS

Associated Press.

Second division clubs of the major leagues have been dipping their thumbs into the pennant pie in the past week or so with results costly to two leading contenders.

First it was the Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Browns who ripped the Yankees loose from the American League lead and now the Boston Braves appear to have taken up where the last-place Phillies left off on the job of knocking the Cardinals deeper into second place in the National.

Outslugged by the Phillies in three out of four games, the Cards went to Boston yesterday and ran into an unbeatable brand of pitching that gave them another defeat. Leo Mangum, who hadn't started a game since early May, blanked them with six hits, to beat Bill Walker in a brilliant mound duel, 1 to 0.

The defeat put St. Louis three and one-half games behind the New York Giants, whose doubleheader with Pittsburgh was halted by threatening weather.

The Brooklyn Dodgers remained in a virtual tie for fifth place with the Braves by pasting the Cincinnati Reds, 11 to 2.

The Washington Senators lost half of their American League lead over the Yankees when the ninth-inning wildness of Bill McAfee and Jack Russell gave Cleveland two runs and a 7-6 decision, while the Yanks nosed out Detroit's Tigers, 9-8.

Jimmy Foxx's seventeenth homer, which tied him with Lou Gehrig for the major league lead, was not enough to win for Philadelphia as the Chicago White Sox took advantage of Merritt Cain's wildness to score five runs in the second inning and beat the Athletics, 8 to 3. The Red Sox smacked Sam Gray and Ed Wells for four runs in the eighth and a 5-to-4 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

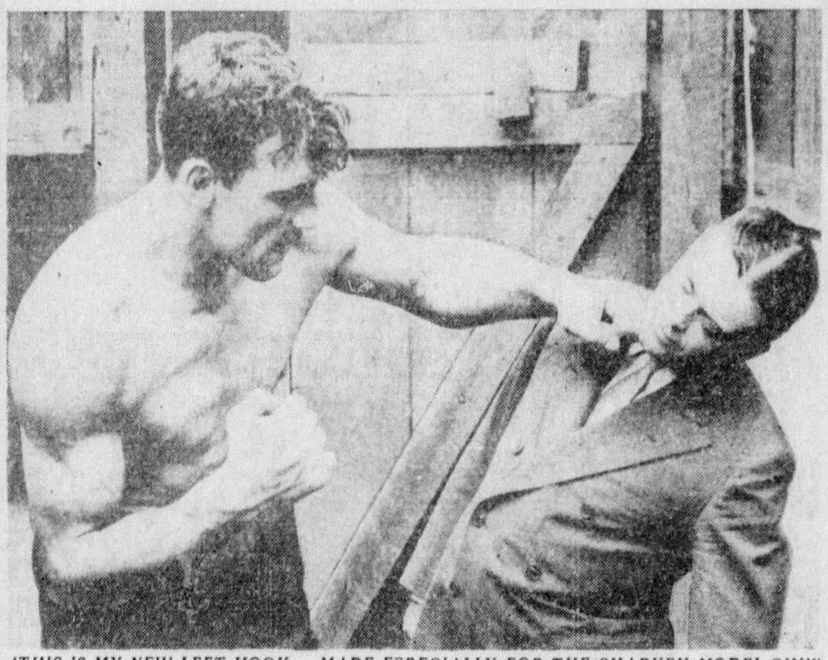
HOW I'LL BEAT SHARKEY

Italian Heavyweight Challenger Tells Picture Story of His Plans for Championship Battle

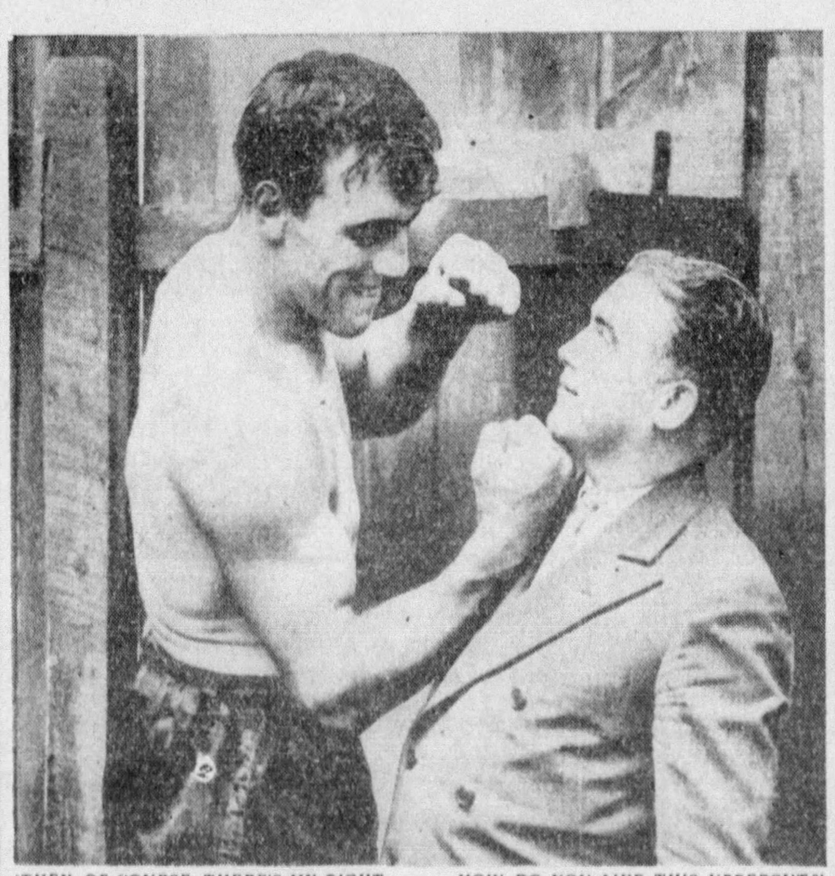
By PRIMO CARNERA

'THERE'S THE LEFT . . . IT'S BIG AND TOUGH AND WILL BE MY PRINCIPAL WEAPON'



'THIS IS MY NEW LEFT HOOK . . MADE ESPECIALLY FOR THE SHARKEY MODEL CHIN'

'AND THIS IS THE SAME LEFT HOOK TO THE BODY . . . WILL SHARKEY LIKE THAT?'



'THEN, OF COURSE, THERE'S MY RIGHT . . . . . HOW DO YOU LIKE THIS UPPERCUT?'

Primo Carnera, the giant Italian heavyweight, is confident he will win the world championship when he meets Jack Sharkey a second time tomorrow night. He says he has improved considerably since their first battle, two years ago. International News Photograph Service pictures above show him demonstrating his fighting equipment on Bill Corum, sports columnist of the New York Evening Journal, a Hearst newspaper.

YANKEES LOSE RYDER CUP TO BRITONS

SOUTHPORT, England, June 28.—(AP.)—America's blue ribbon golf professionals, fighting from behind to the very last putt on the home green, yesterday bowed in defeat to Great Britain and lost the Ryder Cup, emblematic of international supremacy, 6 to 5, with one foursome halved.

The singles play, yesterday, resulted in an even break. Capt. Walter Hagen defeated A. J. Lacey, 2 and 1; Gene Sarazen defeated Alf Padgham, 6 and 4; Craig Wood won over W. H. Davies, 4 and 3, and Horton Smith defeated Charles Whitcomb, 2 and 1, to gain points for American. The vanquished invaders were Olin Dutra, who was routed by Abe Mitchell, 9 and 8; Paul Runyan, who bowed to Percy Alliss, 2 and 1; Leo Diegel, who lost to Arthur Havers, 4 and 3, and Densmore Shute, who was defeated by Syd Easterbrook, 1 up.

Great Britain won the foursomes, 2½ to 1½, on Monday.

AMATEURS GET K. O. WINS

Three knockouts were recorded in the city's two amateur boxing shows last night, two of them of the technical variety.

At the Allegheny stadium on the North Side, the St. Peter's Church staged its second benefit show of the season. Steve Levandowski, of the Todd A. C., Donora, won by a technical kayo over Steve Mazur, of New Kensington, after 41 seconds of scrapping in the second round. Both are middleweights. The show drew another fine turnout.

The Pittsburgh Lyceum opened its outdoor season with a six-bout show. Bill Johnson, of the Y. M. H. A., won by a technical knockout over Don Shaffer, of the Lyceum, in the second round, and Red Davidson, also of the Y, stopped Jim Auth, of the Lyceum, in the first round.

VETERAN GRID LEADER HERE

By JESS CARVER

Parke H. (Dink) Davis, who comes pretty close to being football's current Grand Old Man, is a Pittsburgh visitor today, and despite the heat, and season, remains very much football-minded.

The former Princeton star, along with Walter Camp, William Sanford, E. K. Hall, Bill Heffelfinger and others, played an important part in the development of the game and the codifying of the rules. Davis at present is the game's leading statistician and the statistical expert of the Football Guide.

Besides being a great football lineman, Davis was a boxer of note in his younger days and boxed with such luminaries as John L. Sullivan, Jake Kilrain, Dominick McCaffery and others. He formed and coached the first football team Wisconsin ever supported after playing five years at Princeton.

WYMAN LEADS AT HIGHLAND

Jerry Wyman, of Highland, scored a gross 79 to pace early finishers in the Pennsylvania State one-day handicap golf tournament at the Highland Country Club this afternoon. H. C. Metz, of Edgewood, led for the low net prize with 80-11-69. The scores:

Jerry Wyman	79	4—75
H. C. Metz	80	11—69
J. B. Barclay	109	23—86
R. M. Barclay	80	9—71
Ed. Ludwig	90	16—74
E. A. Eisenbeis	83	10—73
L. L. Reilly	98	27—71
M. E. Cavanaugh	96	22—74

CHAMPION GETS 76

Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, national women's champion, demonstrated some of the form that carried her to titular honors last year, when, paired with W. C. Carnegie, she defeated C. E. Anderson and J. G. Hulton, 7 and 6, in an 18-hole match over the Latrobe Country Club links yesterday afternoon.

The champion was one over par for the outgoing nine. With the match well in hand, Miss Van Wie eased up from the sixteenth green in. Her card:

Out	534	344	444—35

Miss Van Wie and her sister, Mrs. H. S. Sullivan, are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Schrodes, at Morningside Farms, Ligonier.

Miss Mary Kuhn, of the Pittsburgh Field Club, who has been shooting good golf all season, won the Western Pennsylvania 36-hole, two-day tournament played over the links of the Westmoreland Country Club yesterday, with a gross 94-84—178; Mrs. L. K. Friedman, of the home club, finished second, one shot behind, while Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Edgewood, was third with 180.

MISS ABERNATHY FAILS

Betty Abernathy, the young Oakmont star, who led the field at the end of the first round with an 87, was affected by the extreme heat. The best she could do yesterday was add a 94 to her score and give her a tie with Mrs. Frank Campbell and Barbara Warmcastle at 181.

Mrs. William McCready, of Edgewood, won low net honors for the first division with a 160. Mrs. Beverly Shirver, of Fox Chapel, won the runner-up net prize with 161.

In the second division, Mrs. R. C. Kramer, of St. Clair, took the low net prize with 162; Mrs. H. A. Neeb, of the Country Club, copped the low net laurels in the third division with 145.

Hundreds of tri-state district golfers are expected to participate in the 'bargain day' mixed foursome competition at Nemacolin tomorrow.

Ring Rust Chief Menace To Sharkey in Bout

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

NEW YORK, June 28.—Ring rust has beaten more boxing champions—especially heavyweights—than thudding fists have dethroned.

Jack Sharkey knows this as he awaits the bell to risk his world heavyweight championship against big Primo Carnera, of Italy, in a 15-round battle for the benefit of Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's Milk Fund in the Long Island City Bowl of the Madison Square Garden interests tomorrow night.

Sharkey, at 30, is four years older than Carnera. At 205 pounds, he is approximately 55 pounds lighter, and, at 5 feet 11¾ inches, he is 6¾ inches shorter than his gargantuan foe, and he lacks 6½ inches of approximating the reach of Primo. He has been boxing five years longer than Carnera, yet he has had only a little more than one-half as many fights as the challenger. And, what is more important—

JACK LACKS PRACTICE

Since their last meeting, two years ago, Sharkey has had only one bout. The 15-rounder in which he won the title from Max Schmeling last summer, while Carnera has engaged in 24 fights, totaling 136 rounds.

Reviewing the circumstances, it is only reasonable to assume that Carnera must be an improved fighter over the Primo who lost to Sharkey before, while the barnacles of inactivity must be clinging to the Sharkey fighting craft and barging him down.

The only question that need be answered—and will be answered under those strong lights tomorrow night—is this:

Does Sharkey retain enough of his best stuff to beat an improved Carnera?

It is not so much a matter of how much Carnera has come along as it is of how far, if any, Sharkey has slipped.

We all know what advancing age, dissipation and ring rust did to John L. Sullivan when he met Jim Corbett.

We all recall what happened to Jim Jeffries when he tried to come out of retirement and win back the championship for the white race against Jack Johnson at Reno in 1910, and, more recently, the wreck that was Dempsey against Gene Tunney in their first bout, which followed a three-year layoff for the champion.

HAS EDGE IN EXPERIENCE

Sharkey is one of the cleanest livers in the boxing game and should deteriorate very slowly. This writer, who always has had a great deal of respect for the Gob's boxing class, does not think the time has arrived for him to be through. He thinks that in his first fight to prove he is a real champion and not an accidental one, as the furore over the decision which took the title from Max Schmeling last year implied, Sharkey will be somewhere near his peak, and that always has been high and above the level of Carnera's best.

With all of the physical factors against him, Sharkey, if he is properly conditioned and mentally attuned, should win on his experience and natural skill. He did it two years ago, at a time when he was just about despairing of ever winning the title, and he should be able to husband his forces again for a battle as champion against the same foe.

INTEREST PERKS UP

That is, if the immutable law of the game, that ring rust beats 'em all in the end, doesn't catch up with him and lay him low. Those mere 15 rounds of fighting against Carnera's 136 in two years loom ominously in weighing his chances.

With the fight only a day away and the fighters anxiously awaiting the zero hour, excitement has caught hold here, and, given a good night, the show promises to outdo Jack Dempsey's recent Max Schmeling-Max Baer attraction at the Yankee Stadium in the matter of box office business.

McKechnie is serving the final year of a four-year contract. In the event that he lands his club in the first division this season he will receive a bonus, for it was written into the original document he would be so rewarded were he to get the Braves "up there." He missed out by one victory last year.

NET FOLLOWERS MOURN DEATH OF LEADER

The untimely death of T. Coleman Ward Monday afternoon, a few hours prior to the final matches of the forty-fifth Western Pennsylvania net tournament, called from the tennis realm one of its ablest and best beloved figures. An asknowledged builder of the game here, Mr. Ward passes to join those other stalwarts of his day, Clinton Childs, Charles Garland, Sr., and Dr. Tom Stephens, who preceded him during the past decade or so into the Valhallah of Pittsburgh court warriors.

Grant Siverd, dean of the local recqueteers, in commenting upon the death of Ward, said:

"Coleman Ward was one of the finest characters I have ever known. His courage in facing issues, his straightforward honesty, and his sincere interest in all that is best and cleanest in sport will never be forgotten by those who enjoyed the privilege of his friendship.

"His knowledge of tennis, particularly the doubles game, was profound. He was not our best player mechanically, but in understanding of tactics he was unsurpassed."

Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. protege of Mr. Ward and winner of the West Penn singles title last Sunday, was moved deeply on learning of the demise of his veteran counsellor.

Mr. Ward was a native of Louisville and won the Southern singles crown before coming to Pittsburgh in 1903. Here as a player, a director and sometime president of the P. A. A. and an official high in the local and national councils of tennis, he did much to spread the sport in the early years and, later, to keep it alive in the lean era following the war.

RETURN BOUTS FOR WINNERS AT BOWL

Return engagements on next week's card will be the reward for winners who click in tomorrow night's show at the North Braddock Bowl, Matchmaker Jules Beck announced today.

The Bowl will stage the only professional show in the district next week, on Thursday night, Hickey Park giving up its usual Monday night date because it falls on the eve of the Fourth of July.

Four 10-round bouts are listed tomorrow night. Billy Holt and Jimmy Belmont, local welterweights, are in the main event; Lloyd Clements and Frank Novak, heavies, in the semi-final; Sunny Jim McVey and Joe Doktor, heavyweights, in the second bout and Jimmy Thomas and Nat Litfin in the opener.

Between Rounds

George Engel is handling Jackie Wilson, local Negro featherweight, who recently went to New York.

Add another welterweight and another middleweight to the local boxing colony. They are Tommy Doyle, of Minneapolis, formerly Babe Amos, of New Kensington, the 147-pounder, and his stablemate, Al Salvano, 155-pounder, who accompanied him here yesterday from Chicago, where Salvano boxed on the Tony Canzoneri-Barney Ross card last Friday night.

Doyle has boxed Joe Trippe, Mike Dempsey, Darcy White and others known to the fans, while Salvano has boxed Bucky Lawless, Al Trainor, Johnny O'Keefe and others of this caliber. Both plan to stay here for the summer.

Dominick Mancini has issued a challenge to all Pittsburgh lightweights, with Eddie Zivic, Patsy Hennigan and Don Asto on the "preferred" list.

Frankie Hughes and Joe Huff, who recently boxed a draw, meet in a return bout in St. Louis tonight.

CANADIAN BEATEN

NEW YORK, June 28.—(AP)—The elimination of Walter Martin, Canadian star in the third round marked play in the Eastern clay court tennis championships yesterday. Martin was beaten by Ray Palmer, of New York, after three hard sets, 4-6, 7-5, 9-7.

Deacon Phillippe, Doyle Make Up Seals' Bill

Former Pirate Star Holds Mound Record

Pitching secrets of the past and present, comparisons of the stars of his time with those of today and other salient features of the curving art will be discussed by Charles L. (Deacon) Phillippe, former Pirate ace, and now a Buccaneer scout, in an interview with Charles J. Doyle, baseball expert of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight.

It will be the regular weekly program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, and Doyle will be in charge of the bill in the absence of Harry Keck, sports editor, who is in New York for the Sharkey-Canerra fight tomorrow night. Doyle also will touch upon the playing of the Pirates in the East, the rise of Joe Cronin's Washington Senators and other high spots of the moment in baseball.

Phillippe was the first world series pitching star, in the Pirates-Red Sox battles of 1903, and his record of 44 innings in a single world series never has been equaled. He walked only four batters in four full series games. For 12 years, from 1900 to 1911, inclusive, he was the leading pitcher of the Pirates. He came to Pittsburgh with Fred Clarke, Honus Wagner and other stars of the old Louisville Club.

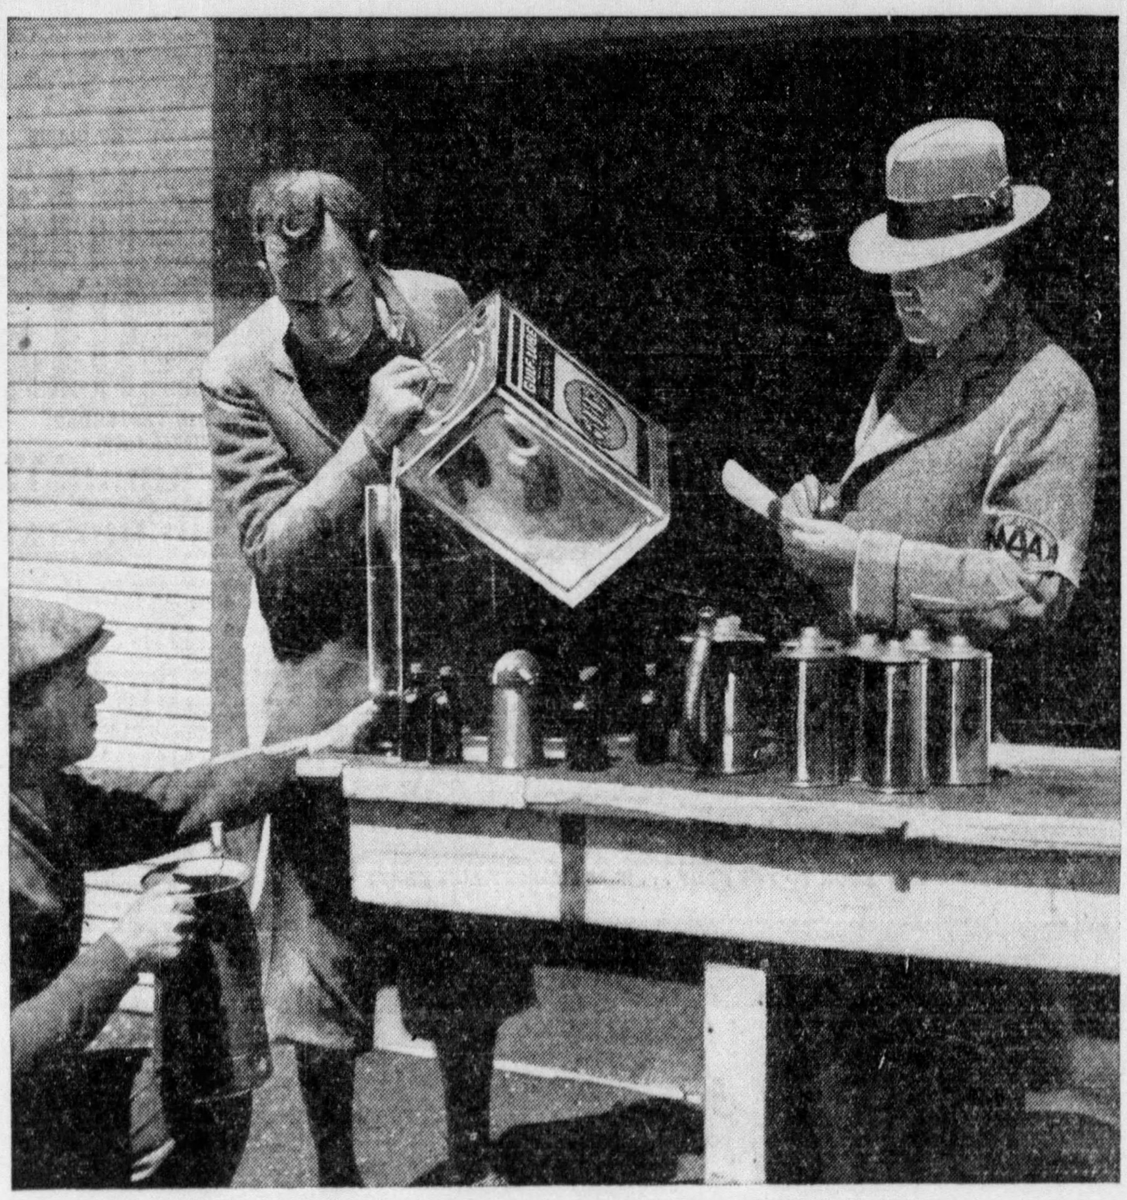
New motor oil shows America how to get 28½% more miles per quart



MEASURING THE EXACT AMOUNT OF OIL placed in each of the test cars. Representatives of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association tested Gulf-lube against leading brands of 25c oils in 6 borrowed cars—and Gulf-lube stood up 28½% longer before a quart of oil had to be added.

1930

3 YEARS OLD—One of the cars borrowed for this test run had piled up thousands of miles on its speedometer—yet Gulf-lube cut its oil consumption to the bone!

1931

2 YEARS OLD—Pistons and rings in this car had never been replaced—but that made no difference to Gulf-lube! For Gulf-lube outlasted every competing oil tested in this car by a wide margin!

1932

1 YEAR OLD—This roadster was in good average mechanical shape, with pistons and rings well "broken in" but not worn. And again Gulf-lube carried off top honors against other leading 25c motor oils!

1933

BRAND-NEW—This car's mileage was little over 1000 miles. Rings and pistons were tight and oil consumption was low. Yet even in this almost new car, Gulf-lube lasted 37.4 more miles per quart than the average of the competing oils!

Gulf-lube wins amazing test with borrowed cars of different makes

SIX AVERAGE CARS—from new to several years old—were borrowed from their owners and placed on the Indianapolis Speedway.

In these cars, representatives of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association tested four of America's leading brands of 25c oils.

In a 4-day grind around the track, at a constant speed of 45 miles an hour, these cars tested each of the competing oils.

And, at the end of the test, Gulf-lube had beaten every oil in every car! In Car No. 2, for example,—when oil "C" was replaced with Gulf-lube, consumption dropped from a quart every 652 miles to a quart every 1447 miles!

And, averaging the figures for all cars, Gulf-lube cut the oil costs on these cars 28½%!

Buy less oil—get better lubrication

Switch to Gulf-lube now. You'll buy less oil. And you'll get better lubrication. Try it! It's the finest motor oil a quarter ever bought. Get it at any Gulf station.

STOCKS JUMP AS DOLLAR BREAKS

NEW YORK, June 28.—(AP.)—The stock market forged ahead today to the accompaniment of another slump in the dollar in foreign exchange markets and the erratic movements of grains.

The British pound sterling spurted around 10 cents to another post-gold standard peak and French francs got up above the 5-cent level. Wheat lost most of its spectacular gains of yesterday in the early trading, but retrieved a large part of the loss after the first realizing rush. Corn, oats and rye followed wheat. Cotton was somewhat uneasy at times, but it, too, showed reviving tendencies. Bonds were a trifle irregular.

The so-called "wet" shares were again the feature of stock transactions as sentiment for prohibition repeal apparently was strong. Owens-Illinois Glass led the group with a gain of some 10 points. United States Industrial Alcohol was up about 6, and advances of 1 to around 3 were recorded by National Distillers, Crown Cork, American Commercial Alcohol and Liquid Carbonic. Strength was shown by most of the rails. Among the specialties, Drug, American Ice and Celanese gained about 5 each. Such issues as American Telephone, United States Steel, Allied Chemical and American Can were up fractionally to about a point.

Some bankers with European connections were inclined to believe that France might now decide to shelve the gold standard and that if the divorcement occurred, Belgium, Holland and Switzerland could be expected to follow. With the franc up over the 5-cent mark, it was felt the French financial authorities would not long delay taking steps to get the currency back to somewhere near its par value of about 3.92 cents.

If France does abandon gold, it was generally admitted here that depreciation of all European currencies would follow with a consequent enhancement of the dollar's value. At the same time, it was thought in some quarters that the long-range interpretation of the move might be rather optimistic.

Followers of rail shares were distinctly cheered by the sharp improvement of carloadings of several leading roads. The fact that New York Central's freight traffic was some 31 per cent ahead of last year was considered a highly important dictator of rising revenues generally. The Pennsylvania's traffic last week was the best since 1931. Carloadings of Norfolk and Western in the same week exceeded those of the 1932 week by some 7,000.

With prospects for increased purchasing power of the farmer the brightest in several years, various mercantile organizations are anticipating a continued upward movement in trade. It is estimated that the rise in wheat prices since last March has added some $250,000,000 to the value of wheat still held on the farms. This, it is believed, will go a long way toward overcoming a short crop. Not only have wheat raisers been benefited by the price upswing, but farmers with holdovers in other grains stand to profit substantially.

WHEAT REGAINS SHARP LOSS

CHICAGO, June 28.—Wheat dropped 6½ cents a bushel today as soon as trading began in a whirl of selling. July wheat contracts sold as low as 89 cents compared with 95½ at yesterday's close.

Extraordinary conditions in regard to foreign exchange, together with wholesale selling on belief that wheat prices had reached the top at least for the time being, led to severe unsettlement in all the speculative grain pits. Wheat opened 1¼ to 6½ cents down, and later fluctuated violently.

Every delivery of wheat tumbled to below the dollar mark. However May rallied quickly more than 4 cents to $1.04. July wheat rallied 5 cents from initial bottim figures, and December rallied almost 6 cents.

According to some trade authorities, today's sharp break in grain values was largely due to the fact that the general public, which had rushed into the market as buyers on a huge scale, had generally determined that the time was ripe to take profits. Nevertheless, after prices had fallen more than 6 cents for wheat and 5 cents for corn, big public buying was again apparent.

The maximum tumble in wheat was exactly 7 cents a bushel. December wheat contracts reached as low as 93¾ cents, against $1.00¾ at yesterday's finish. A rebound of 6 cents ensued.

Provisions gave way with grains, but largely recovered.

About midsession, wheat was 2⅝ to 3¼ under yesterday's finish, and corn 2 to 2½ down.

COTTON PRICES RULE HIGHER

NEW YORK, June 28.—Cotton futures opened steady, 2 to 6 higher in response to steady Liverpool cables and higher foreign exchange. July, 10.30; October, 10.57; December, 10.76; January, 10.80; March, 10.95; aMy, 11.09.

Cotton buyers were cautious during the early session owing to nervousness over the international monetary situation. Consequently demand was limited and when heavy liquidation developed following the opening break in wheat prices broke 25 to 30 points from the early highs and showed net losses of around $1.00 per bale.

The declines attracted renewed demand from trade and speculative sources and prices recovered about 15 to 18 points of their losses in the later morning trading. The market was nervous however and later fluctuations were somewhat irregular. The weekly report of the weather bureau indicated that the crop had withstood the dry weather well, and while this may have attracted a little additional selling, the failure of the official forecast to indicate relief for West Texas acted as an offsetting factor. By midday December was selling at 10.58 with the general market 13 to 15 points net lower.

LIVERPOOL, June 28.—Cotton, 11,000 bales, including 3,200 American. Spot in fair demand; prices 6 points lower. Quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 7.28; good middling, 6.98; strict middling, 6.68; middling, 6.53; strict low middling, 6.38; low middling, 6.18; strict good ordinary, 5.98; good ordinary, 5.68. Futures closed qiet. July, 6.21; October, 6.21; December, 6.23; January, 6.25; March, 6.29; May, 6.32.

SUGAR LEADERS SEEK CODE

WASHINGTON, June 28.—(INS.)—Drafting of a plan for control of the American sugar market, now disorganized by world over production, was begun today by a special committee authorized by the sugar conference called by the farm relief administration.

Although beset by jealousies and rivalries the sugar conference yielded to the proposals of administration farm relief heads that a co-operative plan be devised.

Dr. John Lee Coulter, member of the tariff commission, who was named ex-officio chairman of the committee to draft the plan for presentation to the farm relief administration, urged speed in completing the agreement.

After a plan is outlined, it will be submitted to refiners and producers both in the United States, dependencies and Cuba, and then presented to the farm relief administration.

The Cuban delegation, which failed to arrive for the conference, will be invited to participate in the framing of the plan.

SAVAGE PARADISE

Audacious Girl Reveals Secrets Of the Southern Seas

By MARGARET MATCHES

CHAPTER XXXVII.

We were now in the midst of island groups two degrees below the equator, headed up the coast of New Guinea for the wild Aitape district; more exactly, for the islands of Tomleo and Seleo, where the great Melanesia Company has a concentrating station for copra. We were now to lift a copra cargo in real earnest, to take back to Madang, whence the island steamer would carry it on to Rabaul.

I had enjoyed the early freedom and comparative comfort of the schooner, but when we began loading copra and passengers, including kanakas, I found I had not sufficiently appreciated it.

We were scheduled to stop at Walis Island, about halfway between Boiken and Aitape, to pick up a planter and his wife and children, their household goods and native labor, to take them back to Madang and on to a new plantation in the Admiraltys. I looked forward to the company of another woman with mixed emotions; life had been so pleasant alone on the Nuloa. But on the whole I welcomed it.

At Walis they had not expected us for another two days, and were not ready to depart. Would we please wait, at anchor, until they could complete their departing arrangements? The skipper cursed a bit when he got the message, although we could have lain outside the reef a week for all the difference it would have made. So it was decided that we should proceed up to Seleo, and stop at Walis Island in a couple of days on our return trip.

A TROUBLESOME PIG

It was at this time that the sow traded to us by Father Kirschbaum developed wanderlust and became a nuisance. The day we left Walis was meant for nothing but siesta. The sun beat mercilessly down; the humidity was terrific, the air breathless. I was in my bunk, the only place to escape the equatorial sun, drowsing off. Suddenly from the skipper's cabin adjacent to the forward deck came explosions of nautical Australian—the most utter in profanity—and the grunts and scuffling of the sow.

With feminine and (perhaps) pardonable curiosity, she had negotiated the door combing and had wandered over the sill of the skipper's curtained doorway, arousing him from his siesta. He was mad, and the sow in her alarm could not make the grade of his high brass doorsill, over which she had a few moments before climbed so happily. The mate ran to the rescue—whether of the skipper or the sow I wasn't quite sure—and the poor beast was returned in ignominious defeat to her former habitat.

But she was now a troublesome pig, and this was not her last offense, although she fought shy of the skipper's cabin thereafter. More than once amid the shrieks of delighted boys, beating of sticks, and cursing of the mate, the wretched, wandering animal was extricated from beneath the mess-table. She never visited me.

LONELY PLACE

We were anchored outside the reef surrounding Tomleo, which is a mission station. From the deck I watched a blue-robed nun working in a little enclosed cemetery under the fierce sun. I whiled away some time conjecturing what could make a woman come out to this dot of coral to spend the rest of her life. A broken or disappointed life? Apathy? A fierce yearning for beauty that only the tropics satisfy? The unadmitted hope of romance? Or self-effacing piety and humanitarianism, the desire to labor thanklessly among a benighted race?

Down at the rough wharf a priest checked up the cargo, which was largely cases of excellent German wine. Little naked pickaninnies were alternately diving into the green water within the reef, and dancing about the white beach, like brown monkeys on a string. Joyous water babies!

It looked to be a pleasant place Tomleo. But so lonely! So terribly serene! In the nun's swathed and bent figure I seemed to see the symbol of the loneliness of these islands on the verge of the world, where beauty can cut like a knife. But perhaps I was wrong.

So much do I love wandering,
So much I love the sea and sky,
That it will be a piteous thing
In one small grave to lie.

NATIVES INDEPENDENT

And now we turned back, bound for Madang once more. We passed close to Angel Island, a bouquet of palm fronds set in water that had deepened into madder. Natives watched us curiously as we passed; few ships go near Angel Island.

Walis is lovely to approach. A coral reef makes a green bracelet around it and the island of Tarawai next to it, and between them lie other reefs over which the blue water breaks in glorious, care-free white spray. It's very beautiful, this impetuous, free rush of breakers on a reef. Our German chart (quarter of a century old) showed no channel through the reef, no anchorage within the lagoon, but both were marked by buoys, and we were able to anchor close to the bridge. The engineer and skipper and I negotiated the remaining distance in the pinnace.

The Walis and Tarawai natives are an independent lot of savages; they are "free kanakas," under government control but living pretty much according to their own code. They are too proud to be recruited for labor except on the plantations of their two islands. As we stepped ashore, I noticed that here were more lapoons—old kanakas—than I had seen at one time in all New Guinea. They were revolting old men, filthy, drooling, and quite naked save for the briefest of fiber-cloth loin-girts.

We had stopped here to pick up the Dennises, bag and baggage, including barnyard fowls, for transport to a new and unknown plantation. Before Mrs. Dennis' time no white woman had ever lived at Walis; it had never been meant that a white woman should live there. At her husband's request I wandered up to the plantation house. It was on top of a little rise. The island was a forest of cocoanut palms. In the short walk to the dwelling I passed native boys, in faded laplaps, bearing pieces of furniture or boxes of stores.

TROPICS TAKE TOLL

In a God-forsaken hovel of a plantation house I found a white woman and two little children, one a boy of four, the other a baby in arms. The woman was young, not over 30, but the tropics and the conditions under which she had lived had taken terrible toll both of youth and good looks. Her lack-luster bobbed hair was pushed dejectedly behind her ears; her skin was yellowed and unhealthy, and fine lines crossed her forehead; her eyes showed pain, unhappiness and disillusionment — also a fine courage. The chubby infant slept, despite the flies, in a pram just outside the veranda. Mrs. Dennis excused herself to see about having some tea served us. While she was away I said to myself: "Oh, no! a woman couldn't live here! If she did, that is what happens to her."

One side of the three-room house was caving in. Birds had built nests, unmolested, on the veranda wall, and were flying back and forth undisturbed by human beings. Ropes of bananas hung here and there to ripen; a mangy pup tried to make friends with me.

We had tea; mine was served in a whole cup. A mary (with the rickets) picked up the sleeping cherub, and through a rubber nipple fed him lukewarm sweetened condensed milk and water. Then she put him back again in his pram, and a large fly fastened itself on his sticky-sweet mouth. Oh, the saints preserve us! I thought of our babies at home, sterilized and scheduled to within an inch of their precious young lives. But this Terry was a bonnie little one.

MORE PASSENGERS

The natives, sensing that their white neighbors and masters were about to leave them, hovered about, some of them dejectedly, because a kanaka takes a parting very hard, at the moment. And they were very fond of the two children. One old native—he was longlong (draft)—hovered close to the baby's carriage and would not be sent away. He wanted just to be able to caress the carriage, and he had a handful of bright shells for Terry.

We were headed back to Madang with our copra and our human cargo. Besides the immediate Dennis family, the Nuloa carried their household furniture, fifty natives to labor on the new plantation, a flock of geese, and a half-dozen goats to supply fresh milk for the baby at least some of the time. Two mornings out from Walis, I looked down from the navigating deck, and saw two bleating wobbly-legged little strangers. Yannis, the bo's'n explained: "Two fella mee-maa catch 'im pickaninny belong 'im along night-time." By the time we finally reached the Admiraltys and said farewell to our menagerie, we had added two more pickaninny-belong-mee-maa. On the return trip we picked up a number of passengers, bound either down south on furlough, or to new plantations, or to Rabaul via the island steamer that was soon due at Madang. By the time we reached Potsdamhafen the passengers were nine (enough to split the seams of the Nuloa) and there were a hundred and fifty raw bush-natives huddled on the foredeck. One night the mate called me to look down from the topdeck; I saw in the light of a quarter-moon and a hurricane lamp what looked like a Dore horror out of an old hell-book—kanakas sleeping on the deck with legs and arms so closely intertwined as to be an indistinguishable mass of brown humanity.

PAPER CROCHET IS THE VOGUE

CROCHET HATS AND PURSES PATTERN NO 478

By LAURA WHEELER

Crochet is in vogue—crochet in a variety of forms on countless dress accessories. The smartly dressed woman not only has accepted it, but is indulging her need for quantities of summer hats by crocheting them of paper. To complete her costume, she makes a purse to match her hat. A is an exceedingly easy hat to make; it lends itself to a variety of drapings and is flattering to most women. B is another variation of A. The daisy flowers are crocheted on afterwards, using odds and ends of wool. The envelope purse, D, shows the same daisy decoration. C is a brimmed hat that looks well either with a simple crocheted band with crocheted flowers, as illustrated, or with a plain band of ribbon. The purse, E, has a crocheted flower as decoration. Pattern No. 478 includes directions with illustrations for making the hats, the purses and the floral decorations. The paper can be had in gray, sand color, dark blue, black or white, at a cost of 10c each for the hat or bag (20c for both). Price of pattern 10c additional.

Send for the pattern and paper to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Rosy cheeks and red lips are the rewards a girl reaps by following the laws of health and hygiene. No girl can have them if she doesn't exercise sufficiently to keep her blood streams galloping, nor will she display these evidences of vitality if she doesn't have her three good square meals a day. Local treatment of the skin should include cold water applications in the morning, an ice rub at night atop the layer of massage cream or muscle oil.

The voice is an important element of personality. Listen to the whiners, the droners, the screecher; you place them immediately in their proper classes. Few voices are really unpleasant, it's just that the bad ones are abused, not used properly. Pitched too high or too much volume. Mouth breathers acquire a nasal quality that is raspy and tiresome. For the comfort of the public ear voices should be soft pedaled.

Suggestions for Members Of Junior Patrol

Howdy, fellows!

Junior has had some letters lately asking about organizing patrols. Many fellows and girls wish to know how a patrol is organized, and what to do after they get started.

Yesterday, we talked it over with Mr. Hall, and now we are all ready with some plans for patrol activities. But before we tell you about them, we want to explain again how any girl or fellow can start a patrol in his neighborhood, and have all the fun which a swell bunch of playmates always have together. A patrol can have any number of members. The best way to start is for the fellow who wants to be captain to ask all his friends to meet at his home. If all aren't already members of the Junior Patrol, you can tell them all about it then and show them the pledge blank on this page, ready for them to fill out and send in.

The Sun-Telegraph will send a button right away and as soon as six or seven fellows in a neighborhood are signed up, you can all meet again and elect the captain and lieutenant. The lieutenant, don't forget, should be the secretary, too, and should keep the minutes of every meeting.

Besides keeping the minutes, the secretary should also write Junior or Mr. Hall, what his patrol is doing — particularly in helping others.

If some of your friends don't live near you, perhaps you can meet at each other's homes. The lieutenant, if all members don't see each other often, should send card reminders of the meeting.

Once you have been meeting a while, it will be easy to find plenty of things for your patrol to do. A good captain will ask for new plans every meeting, and he should expect every member to help with everything the others do. Have you noticed that Junior, Snuggins, Spike and Claire all help each other get good ideas, and to do the things?

Each patrol should have a program, and work out its problems.

If you have enough boys in your patrol, you can start a mushball team. Mushball is a fine exercise, and we find that there are lots of places in which to play in almost every neighborhood—a very large field isn't needed. And if your patrol is organized as a team, it should be easy to find other patrols with which to play. Maybe we can start a league in the Pittsburgh district, and others in other counties and towns.

Then, how about a camping trip this summer? Maybe you can get a big brother or a father to spend part of his vacation with you, and spend a night out under the stars.

Did you notice that in "The Junior Patrol" comic strip that Spike's big brother, a sailor, may go on the boat trip with Junior and his friends. It's always safer and more fun for youngsters if they have a large friend with them when they go away very far from home. He can answer your questions, and tell you how to find out many things that he doesn't know himself.

And how about a library party? There are thousands of good books, many written for boys and girls, and during the summer is one of the best times to read. At the library the librarian can suggest good books to read, and if you tell her in what you are most interested, she will give you a list of such books.

At patrol meetings, you can talk about the books each has read and suggest good ones for your friends. That's helping others.

Now here's a very special suggestion. When your patrol is well started, why not appoint a lieutenant photographer? He should be the member most interested in taking pictures. His camera doesn't have to be an expensive one. Mostly, taking good pictures is knowing how to do it. Again, there are many books at the libraries which explain how to be a photographer.

The lieutenant photographer can send Junior and Mr. Hall pictures of all the members of your patrol, and pictures of your patrol having fun and helping others. More suggestions tomorrow.

FUN TO BE FOOLED; MORE FUN TO KNOW

Illusion: The hostess, after serving beer, suddenly realizes that it hasn't done much for the guests, who are beginning to yawn. She suggests that her husband tell one of his dialect stories. This makes things worse. So she jumps up on a table and does what passes for a tap dance in the apartment house wild life zone.

Explanation: The old gal can't tap dance. In fact she never took a lesson in her life—until a year ago last winter—and even then she couldn't seem to make any progress. So someone rigged up a glass top table, with burning candles beneath. The glass gets pretty hot, thus forcing the lady to lift one foot then another. Everyone by this time has found the gin, and so there is scattered applause. It's fun for her to be fooled, but it'd be more fun if she'd know enough to relax.

No Cure for Head Wagglers

Saw a golfer the other day who kept his head down by going to a dentist and having his back teeth filled with lead.

That's a very good idea and much better than biting your neck tie.

One duffaloo had a bright synopsis when he grew a beard and laced it to his shoes. Every time he threw his head up he pulled out his feet. And the house of cards toppled on a grand slam bid, doubled and redoubled.

The average golfer cannot do much about it except swing and nod like a general's war steed when it hears the bugles.

We've been taking lessons on keeping the nose to the grindstone for 11 years. Do you want to be a good golfer and never see anything? Or do you want to be a duffer and view your environment?

A neat, tidy method of keeping the bean pointed toward terra divot is to harness a three-pound dumbell to each ear. Have ropes running through pulleys on your heels. At the start of the swing your caddy yanks the cords and pulls your head down between your knees. After the swing he can either let you loose or hold you for ransom.

We've watched the golfers with the jerky chins for years. And we've decided there is no balm in Gilead or any other place within the metropolitan district.

If you are the spasmodic type there ain't enough salt in the world to save you. We happen to be a looker-upper whose name must lead every preferred list of star gazers.

We do know one splendid recipe for keeping the skull parallel with the carpet while driving. Take a barber to the tee with you and let him shave the back of your neck on your down swing.

That will cure you quickly. Outside of this one drastic prescription we can suggest no others. Try it once. And if not pleased we will refund the price of repairs.

Council Important

Voters Should Choose With Care in Selecting the Five Members to Be Named This Year.

So far discussion of the coming municipal primary and general election has revolved principally around candidates, near and real, for the mayoralty nomination.

Of almost equal importance is the choice of five councilmen.

The mayor is the administrative and executive officer of the city. He has wide powers.

But council through its legislative function, particularly through its control over appropriations and the fixing of the tax rate, has a final word, an authority which permits it to deal correctively with a mayor who shows lack of the proper conception of public service.

A mayor and City Council working in harmony for the benefit of the city offer the ideal combination. But in the past few years, while that harmony has existed, the charge has been leveled that it was harmony of the political machine type. There were corrective measures which Council could have taken, but did not.

Five sitting members of Council, Messrs. English, Oliver, Duggan, Connelley and Little, intend to be candidates this year. They have been allied with the present city administration, and, with the exception of Oliver and Duggan, were loyal politically to Mayor Kline until near the end of his term, which was curtailed by a jury and the courts.

The most active independent councilmanic candidate now in the field is James P. Bailey. Other men are known to be considering entering the race, many of them men of tried ability.

When the mayoralty primary shapes itself it is probable contending Council slates will be formed, the five sitting members running with Mayor John S. Herron, another slate affiliated with the anti-Herron mayor candidate. In addition to these slates there will be other independent councilmanic candidacies.

What applies to the Republican primary applies equally to the Democratic party.

In choosing councilmen voters should not blindly vote a slate, but employ a selective process which will make Council an able and representative legislative body. These positions are of extreme importance, and if regard for qualifications marks the primary vote, there will be less danger in November of the people losing, no matter which party wins.

Juvenile Court Judge

Candidates To Answer Questions on Their Attitudes Toward County Wards.

The shocking disclosures of conditions in foster homes for county wards have directed public attention to the importance of selecting a competent judge for the Juvenile Court.

The candidates for this seat on the bench will be asked to answer a questionnaire adopted by representatives of civic groups and social agencies headed by Joseph A. Beck.

The proposed questionnaire would make a searching inquiry into the policies to be followed by the candidates if elected. It is aimed at forcing candidates to commit themselves to a complete reorganization of the present system of supervision over county wards.

The candidate would be asked to express his policy on the selection of officials and workers of the court and his attitude toward the creation of a Juvenile Court psychiatric clinic and the organization of a health service for the court wards.

Such a questionnaire should be helpful to voters in selecting a competent judge for this important position.

The most important consideration in filling this newly created seat on the bench is to secure a judge who will think of the problem in terms of flesh and blood children, not in terms of legal cases to be tucked away in the files.

A return to institutionalism in caring for county wards would not be desirable. It is far better to put children into good homes where they will receive personal attention and sympathy than it is to make them mere numbers in a public institution. The idea behind our present system for handling county wards is excellent in intent. But it requires honest, intelligent and sympathetic administration. We need a Juvenile Court judge who will think more of the future of the children who come before him than he will of immediate political considerations.

Keep Politics Out

New Bureau of Investigation Should Retain Pennington When Prohibition Enforcement Bureau Is Abolished.

Within a few weeks the national prohibition enforcement bureau in its present form will be abolished. Instead there is to be created a Bureau of Investigation, attached to the Department of Justice, with supervision over liquor violations as well as jurisdiction in other forms of investigation necessary to the enforcement of other federal laws.

Present employes of the prohibition bureau may be reappointed in the Bureau of Investigation without civil service examination. They may be assigned to the territory in which they now are located, and with which they are familiar. The matter is left to the option of the Attorney General.

It is important that politics, so well interwoven with the illicit liquor traffic, should not interfere with the setting up of the Bureau of Investigation. Such men as John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator for the Pennsylvania-New Jersey district, should not be lost to the federal service.

In his record here and in the East, where he now is stationed, there is constant evidence that Mr. Pennington in law enforcement was immune to the pressure of politics. And the pressure was great right here in Pittsburgh.

He has been indorsed by Senator David A. Reed, Republican, and Joseph F. Guffey, the Roosevelt leader in Pennsylvania, who put performance of duty first. Against these indorsements stands the sniping of antagonistic politicians which upon more than one occasion almost have succeeded in handcuffing Pennington, who in his work has had the respect of sincere wets.

Pennington should be reappointed, and assigned to his present district.

Cut Loose From False Guides

By Nelson Harding

Uncle Sam, do not go farther
With the guides who urge you onward,
They know little of the pathway,
And themselves are blindly climbing.

Do not step across the chasm
Nor permit that rope to drag you,
Where the footing is too doubtful
For so perilous a venture.

Man's Sartorial Revolt

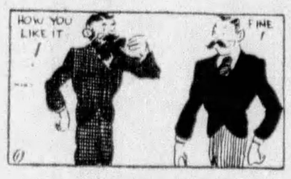
Nudism is not exactly here—but the topless bathing suit (for men) is quite the proper thing on the fashionable beaches.

* * *

Well, who cares? Most of our illusions about the divinity of the human "form divine" have long since been shattered. And, anyhow, we can look the other way. It is only the woman, who has to rub the ointment on some man's sunburn, who will suffer.

* * *

Funny, but MAN is the only species that never seems satisfied with his own scenic effects. The human race is always either taking something OFF or putting something ON!



Adam went around without a collar and Eve swam in a coat of suntan. But were they CONTENTED? Never! They had to look about for some way to persecute themselves—and so, they discovered petticoats!

* * *

Once, in the good old pre-Revolutionary days, it looked as though man had discovered the ideal costume for health, comfort, utility—and above all, for beauty. Knee-breeches and silk stockings, which left his shins and legs carefree; soft, flattering neckcloths, which did not chafe or pinch his windpipe; and becoming periwigs which spared him the shame and terror of growing bald!

* * *

But, did the male of the species know when he was fortunate? Not HE! He wanted a CHANGE of sartorial scenery, and he wasn't satisfied, until he had spoiled the picture and made himself utterly uncomfortable.

All of a sudden he discarded his useful and beautiful periwig and grew an unbecoming and utterly useless BEARD on his chin. Heaven knows why!

* * *

He discovered long trousers and went in for embroidered suspenders, hard-boiled derbies and stovepipe hats and hung himself with gold watch-chains decorated with alligator teeth. In winter, he was stuffy-looking and in summer he broiled manfully in balbriggans, woolen coats with padded shoulders and high leather shoes. For a half century he went about feeling like a martyr, looking like a museum freak, and acting like one of Mrs. Jarley's waxworks.

* * *

That was the era of putting things on. Now, he is gradually taking things OFF, again, and emerging from his chrysalis. His spirit is expanding and his body yearns for freedom. He doesn't yet know where he's going, sartorially—but he's ON HIS WAY!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 28.—Down under Brooklyn Bridge is a warren of mean, forgotten streets Dickens would have loved. Turning abruptly from Park Row into Frankfort at the old World Building, one comes suddenly upon another stratum—a cluster of cobwebby burrows with the look of finality.

Old women, in sullen clench of the Broadway's rot-gut, snore in doorways, and yipping yellow mongrels run wild. Under every bridge-arch hoboes and riff-raff clot in monosyllabilic talk, and at dusk brew their potion of Mulligan stew. Among one group a hipshot hunch-back regaled with a mouth organ.

Blowzy cafeterias, coffee pots and nickel-a-cue pool halls are in each block. In one elbow glow feebly the green lights of the old Oak street police station. Amid all the squalor there seems only one hope, the clean white fane of Jerry McCauley's Mission on Water street.

Under the bridge is a step lower in despair from the Bowery, a few blocks away. Yet, like the Bowery, there is that same pretense of cheerfulness, the effort to fight off the demon, crouching at conscience, whispering of things undone. And opportunities muffed!

No layman in the world has done more flying than the famous European correspondent, Karl von Wiegand. Aside from his dirigible trip around the world, he has flown all over Europe, America and the Far East. Although a confirmed globe trotter, he has all his life suffered sea sickness, and that was his reason for taking to the air. He believes most air sickness is caused by tautness, those who relax and sway, oopsie daisy, with the ship are seldom affected. Von Wiegand has spent 23 years in journalistic service abroad and secured as many interviewing beats as any man in the foreign service.

Before Pierre Cartier opened his avenue jewelry establishment his best customer in Paris and London was the late J. Piermont Morgan. One day the elder Morgan said: "Why don't you come to America?" Cartier bowed and when Morgan returned home after several months of cruising a Cartier establishment glittered in New York. And that's how Cartier's was born!

Russell Patterson, the artist, gave re-birth to the Ascot tie with the Ascot shirt he designed recently. This encompassed a shirt, collar and Ascot of the same hue, in one piece and requiring only a quick flip of a tie end for the jaunty effect. The Gay 90 stock is also puffing among veranda hounds on Long Island. Noel Coward's white stock, in the first act of his play, played a part in the revival. In the days when the stock reigned the most consistent wearers were John Mason, John Drew, Raymond Hitchcock, Flo Ziegfeld and Clyde Fitch.

Few humorists achieve the giddy nonsensical twists of Frank Sullivan. Like all jesters, he has owlish graveness and rarely shakes the foundations of life by laughter himself. I was set off in a gale of chuckles today by reading the blurbs on the back of the jacket of his recent "In Your Ear." He had evidently culled them for the publisher and they ran high with praise of notables here and abroad. But the impish Sullivan could not refrain from burying innocently in quotation marks, and for no reason at all, this: "We still have no word from you . . . Will be glad to settle for $25.00.—Man ger, Hotel Upton, Poughkeepsie."

After completing a five-mile walk in the heat the other day, Joseph Urban stopped at a drink stand and downed in quick succession four large beakers of orange juice. Immediately thereafter he had to gallop after his wind-blown straw hat down the street. As he passed a Negro porter sweeping a sidewalk, the darkey called out: "Mister ,ou sure glurkity glurk!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

He's waiting for his Big Moment.

He has been waiting for 36 years.

What sort of a Big Moment?

He doesn't exactly know. He had never made any definite plans, but—something swell! Some gorgeous stroke of luck that would suddenly give him his place in the sun.

Maybe a wonderful job. Or a chance to go to Europe. Or perhaps some one will realize that he can Really Write. Or offer him a position to sing over the radio. Or leave him a few thousands in their will. Or ask him to run for Congress.

He isn't choosey. Almost any kind of a Big Moment will do, just so long as it removes the shabbiness and monotony from life—fills the days with fizz—gives him His Chance at last.

Way back in his 'teens he began to dream of that Big Moment. He didn't do so very well in school. What was the use of plugging away at Math, and English Lit, and Chemistry, when he'd probably never use a word of it? The Big Shots out in the world—they weren't depending for success on their old Math lessons. Some of 'em hadn't even gone to school. No; they'd had a Lucky Break. Then they'd gone booming.

That was the way it was going to be with him. Some day he'd have his Lucky Break, too. In the meantime, why worry? He didn't.

Then came the twenties. He expected his Big Moment to arrive 'most any day. So what was the use of starting some mean little job that led nowhere? That's how fellows spoiled their chances—getting off on side tracks—getting out of touch with the Main Stem. He wasn't going to make a mistake like that; not he! He'd take his time.

And suppose they did call him a loafer? Well, he'd make them eat their words. Just wait and see!

Then, presently, though he knew it was all wrong, he had to take a job anyway. Queer, how your Own Folks failed to understand you—refused to give you a hand.

So he took the job in Max's Emporium—shipping department. But he knew it was 'way beneath him, so he didn't pay much attention to it. Just went along killing time, with his mind on that Lucky Break which was bound to come any day.

But he's 36 now, and his Big Moment hasn't come yet!

Sometimes he gets discouraged. These last 16 years have been pretty dreary. One small, stupid job after another, and not one of them "meant a thing." But never a Big Chance that was really worth his attention.

And he can't understand why. No fellow was ever more eager to make good than he is, but he can't seem to get the breaks. Yet other fellows, that everyone knows are nothing but Big Stupes or Downright Saps—why, they get no end of slick chances.

Yes, it's certainly strange. But he's sure that something will turn up. His Big Moment will come yet. In the meantime, he's waiting.

And he'll probably be waiting when the judgment trumpet sounds.

For he hasn't learned—and he doesn't want to learn — that THERE AREN'T ANY BIG MOMENTS; ONLY LITTLE ONES...

Little Moments, to be used as they come along.

Tiresome little Moments, filled with discouraging drudgery and dreary discipline.

Despised little Moments, which, we feel, are getting us nowhere—moments that seem to our rebellious souls to be a downright waste of life.

YET IN THE END ALL THOSE LITTLE MOMENTS ADD UP INTO A BIG MOMENT — AND WE CAN'T GET OUR BIG MOMENT ANY OTHER WAY.

GOOD LUCK ISN'T AN ACCIDENT. IT'S THE BY-PRODUCT OF ALL OUR SWEAT AND TEARS, OUR PRAYERS AND CURSES AND HARD LICKS.

Our Breaks don't "just happen." WE ACCUMULATE THEM.

IF YOU HAVEN'T USED YOUR LITTLE MOMENTS, IT'S A CINCH YOU WON'T HAVE ANY BIG ONES.

The Human Side of the News

Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, Language Policeman—His Fight Against "Proposition"—Westminster Abbey—Sad Story of Earl of Essex

By EDWIN C. HILL

LANGUAGES, like cities, must have their policemen. They must be protected against words of low origin and bad associations—words that sneak in over the rooftops and through the back door. Our American language has its policeman in the person of that delightful gentleman and accomplished scholar, Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly. One might almost call him a whole police force and detective bureau when it comes to guarding the American language from ragtag and bobtail words, from hooligan words, from words that are the toughs and racketeers of correct speech and writing.

My good friend, Frank Vizetelly, spends his life collaring these rascally words and kicking them out of the language. His latest battle is against the word "proposition," used in the sense of "prospect" or "proposal." In fact, it is used to cover most anything. We even say "He's a tough proposition," to describe someone not easy to deal with. Dr. Vizetelly shakes his fist at this hobo word and threatens to jail it and send it to the stonepile. If anybody can do it, he's the body—but it looks like a losing fight. I'm afraid that the good doctor is up against a proposition that is too tough even for him.

An interesting and delightful personality, Frank Vizetelly—robust and ruddy, brimming with good nature and sparkling with wit, nothing at all about him of the cross and crabbed scholar, gray-haired, blue-eyed, pink-cheeked, vigorous. He has been making a dictionary for nearly 40 years, and every word in the great tome from A to Izzard is his personal friend. He is one of the few great lexicographers of the world, of international fame, and has written an armload of books on correct and vigorous diction.

The family is English of Italian origin. Frank Vizetelly's father was a celebrated London engraver and publisher, one of the founders of the London Illustrated News. The name Vizetelly comes from an Italian word meaning farsighted, and Dr. Frank can spot a criminal adjective 50 leagues off.

Congestion in Westminster Abbey

FROM London comes the singular news that the last resting place of the Kings and Queens of England, of the great soldiers and poets and statesmen, is becoming overcrowded. In ancient Westminster Abbey space is at a premium, and the authorities are worried about the future. What a fascinating treasure house of history and of human memories is the great old Abbey where every English monarch has been crowned since William the Conqueror! I know of no building so alive with the deathless spirit of the men and women that made England what she is today.

Entombed in Westminster Abbey is much more than royal bones. For as one strolls through the dim corridors, upon whose marble and granite walls falls the divinely lovely light from old, old stained glass, one pauses, with quickening breath, before symbols and mementoes of love and hate—symbols and mementoes that still have power to flood the heart with wonder and emotion.

Of all these silent talebearers of dead loves and dead hatreds, no single thing ever touched me so deeply as the sudden glimpse of a finger-ring set in the center of one side of the slab of pure white marble under which lies the greatest queen that ever reigned, Elizabeth of England. The marble slab is supported by four lions. Upon the slab is the recumbent effigy of the queen. Her head rests upon tasseled and embroidered cushions, her slim feet upon a crouching lion. She is mantled in her royal robes, lined with ermine. Her closely-curled hair is covered with a simple cap. Elizabeth Tudor, as she was when she broke the power of haughty Spain.

But it is the ring—the simple little memento that lies behind a protecting plate of glass, underneath her stilled heart—that draws the eye and by the power of its magic turns back the very centuries. For that ring stands for a great love, a woman's treachery and the death on the block of a young man whose pride over-leaped his love.

* * *

The Treachery Of a Countess

ELIZABETH madly loved the young Earl of Essex. In a moment of tenderness she gave him that ring with the queenly pledge that if ever he forfeited her favor he could win her forgiveness, no matter for what offense, by sending her the ring.

Handsome, brilliant young Essex, sent to Ireland in command of an army, and the victim of misfortune and his own hasty temper, bitterly disappointed Elizabeth. She ordered him to remain and retrieve his failures. In wild anger he not only disobeyed the order and returned to London, but stormed one night into her bedroom and loosed upon her the violence of his intemperate anger. Punished by the deeply offended queen, he conspired against her crown. She sent him to the Tower. Her council condemned him to death.

At the very last, with the executioner waiting, his pride gave way. He threw the ring and a message to the Queen out of a window, to the Countess of Nottingham, whose love he had rejected. The spiteful and treacherous Countess kept the ring and suppressed the message. Waiting until the last minute in trembling hope of submission from the man she still loved, Elizabeth signed the death warrant, and the head of the proud Earl of Essex rolled in the Tower yard.

Years later the dying Countess of Nottingham sent for the Queen, confessed her treachery and craved her pardon. Elizabeth, in a transport of grief and fury, struck the dying Countess across the mouth. "God may forgive you," she cried, "but I never can!"

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

That old conscience of yours is a pretty reliable pilot if permitted to guide you.

Don't stifle its whisperings or you may regret it.

If you obey the suggestion to halt before you get into difficulties, you are wiser than the one who disregards the still, small voice of conscience.

There have been things in your life that you regret.

You wish you had no such recollections.

They disturb you enough to make you ashamed when you remember them.

The only consolation you have is that they are not generally known.

But there is no real comfort in that thought.

You must live with yourself and you cannot get rid of those mind pictures which your misdeeds have imprinted on your memory.

Your conscience, right now, is battling with you to prevent you from doing something that will cause you embarrassment and regrets later, perhaps.

Not only listen, but heed the voice of conscience.

Bigger and better men than you recognize and heed conscience.

Well, maybe they did learn their lessons by costly experience, but they really learned them.
